Cabinet Rushes to Prevent Cuts.

The United States government has asked the nations benefited by the one year moratorium expiring in June to place in legal form their agreements to pay their postponed war debt installments. Page 6.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 20.—[Special.]—The administration drive for reductions in the cost of government skidded almost to a halt today as cabinet members mobilized to combat the arbitrary 10 per cent cuts slapped on appropriation bills by senate 10 per centers striving to translate White House pleas for economy into dollars and cents savings.

After a conference at the White House Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills tonight voiced the dissatisfaction with which cabinet members generally have met the senate action in arbitrarily ordering 10 per cent cuts in all appropriation bills. The treasury head asserted that while he took a back seat for no one in a desire for economy, he felt that the senatorial method of "applying arbitrary cuts uniformly and without discretion to every bureau and activity alike is unbusinesslike and may not even be economy."

Fears "Demoralizing Bureau."

In a letter written to Senator Tasker L. Oddie [Rep., Nev.], chairman of the subcommittee handling the treasury department appropriation bill, Secretary Mills said the acceptance of the proposed 14 million dollar senate cut by the treasury would cause the dismissal of 6,000 employés and demoralize his office at a time when he must take on the task of collecting the revenue from a new billion dollar revenue bill.

He asserted that dismissal of these men might result in greater losses than the savings effected. If applied to revenue agents and deputy collectors, he said the cuts might result in more than 100 million dollars losses in unmade collections.

The Mills outburst was simply the leaping into flame of the indignation kindled in the President's official family by the senate reaction to President Hoover's calls for congressional economy. Secretary of the Interior Wilbur yesterday assailed the senate cut of the interior department appropriation as "sham economies and paper cuts." Postmaster General Walter F. Brown also criticized the senate reductions for his department.

Would Cut 50,000 off Pay Roll.

Secretary Wilbur conferred with President Hoover yesterday while Secretary Mills and Postmaster General Brown met with the President today. The decision to assume the offensive against the arbitrary cuts followed today's session between President Hoover and Secretary Mills. Earlier, cabinet officers had said application of the 10 per cent cut to all department appropriation bills would result in the dismissal of at least 50,000 workers now on federal pay rolls.

Administration dissatisfaction with the senate cuts already has had the effect of widening the gap between the White House and economy advocates in congress to a point where the 166 million dollar economy omnibus bill, now being perfecting by the house economy committee, is in danger of failure. Just what effect the open attack on the senate 10 per cent appropriation cuts will have was problematical tonight, although leaders in both houses appeared determined to go ahead with their programs for cutting supply bills.

Offers Furloughs as Substitute.

In his letter, Mr. Mills said a flat 10 per cent cut would effect a saving of about $14,000,000 in the $146,000,000 appropriation for the treasury department. He said that when he appeared before the Oddie committee he would show the members how savings in excess of this amount could be effected without impairment of the efficiency of the department and without necessitating the dismissal of thousands of employés.

Mr. Mills suggested writing the President's proposal for putting per diem employés on a five day week basis and giving annual employés one month's furlough without pay into the treasury apropriation bill regardless of whether or not the senate adopts the flat pay cut method.

"If the flat cut measure is to prevail," he said, "the furlough is essential to mitigate the hardships incident to this program."

The treasury secretary recommended that the internal revenue bill

SUPREME COURT DOOMS STRIKE OF TAXPAYERS

Holds Jarecki Erred in Voiding Rolls.

JUDGE JARECKI.

The high court announced a reversal of the decision by County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, in which the 1928 and 1929 tax levies were held invalid. Although only a bare announcement of the court's action was made, and the full nature of the decision will not be learned until a formal opinion is filed later, attorneys for the county felt certain that the Supreme court will validate the assessments and order judgments entered against delinquent taxpayers.

Taxpayers Plan Appeal.

Spokesmen for the groups of taxpayers who have protested against paying taxes indicated yesterday that they would carry their battle to the United States Supreme court. But even if this is done, the tax dodgers will face a penalty of 1 per cent each month on the unpaid portions of their tax bills.

Mayor Cermak, jubilant yesterday over the news of the decision, declared that the back of the taxpayers' strike was broken. Tax dodgers will not be willing to bear the penalties to be assessed, the mayor said, and he felt the Supreme court's action should have the effect of causing the tax strikers to repudiate the influences which have led them to protest payments.

County Attorney Hayden N. Bell, to whom much of the credit for the legal victory is due, expressed confidence that the United States Supreme court would not disturb the decision of the state courts.

Must Pay by May 1.

Taxpayers who have delayed payment of their 1930 taxes pending the decision of the so-called Cesar case must pay up by May 1, if they wish to avoid a penalty. The legislature was moving yesterday to fix May 1 instead of April 23 as the final date for tax payments. It was indicated the assembly would also postpone the sale of properties for nonpayment of taxes from June 1 to July 1. These additional graces were being allowed taxpayers as the result of an expressed desire of Mayor Cermak to give "misguided taxpayers who have listened to false promises of tax associations" an opportunity to pay.

Mr. Bell pointed out that under a new law the County court is empowered to remit not more than half of the tax penalty in any case in which it was proved to the court that the taxpayers' objections were brought in good faith.

Part of Tax Should Be Paid.

County Judge Jarecki has announced that he will not consider an objection brought in good faith if the taxpayer has not paid at least a substantial portion of his taxes.

In other words, a taxpayer should concede that a portion of his tax bill is legal and must be paid, and if he does not concede this, then Judge Jarecki has indicated he will not remit any part of the penalties assessed.

John Pratt, president of the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers, which has adopted a policy of advising its members not to pay any taxes, said yesterday that the association would hew to the same policy pending an appeal. The Illinois Supreme court a week ago gave a decision denying the relief sought in a suit brought by Pratt's association to restrain the sale of its members' properties. Pratt said a petition for a rehearing of this case is being prepared by the association's counsel, Ferre C. Watkins.

Await Formal Opinion.

Attorney Morris Schaeffer, who with Attorney Roy D. Keehn represented the taxpayers whose interests were joined in the Cesar case decided yesterday, said it was impossible would be taken until the formal sible to forecast what further action opinion of the Supreme court was filed. He did say that if the court orders Judge Jarecki to overrule the objections cited in his suit, an appeal would be taken to the United States Supreme court.

Asked if he would urge his clients to withhold payment of their taxes in the meantime, Mr. Schaeffer said

CHARGES FLYER QUIT HER FOR WAR IN CHINA

Mrs. Edith Badgley Jewett, 23 years old, 6534 Bosworth avenue, yesterday charged that her aviator husband, William Sebastian Jewett, who was an army flyer during the world war, deserted her last March 1 to join the Chinese army in the struggle with Japan at Shanghai.

The charge was included in a divorce bill filed in the Superior court on behalf of Mrs. Jewett by Attorney Clifford G. Roe. The bill alleged that Jewett, whose army rank was that of a major, drank to excess and struck his wife on several occasions since their marriage last July 1.

Attorney Roe yesterday said that Mrs. Jewett has learned that her husband volunteered at the Chinese consulate a few days before he disappeared. He was to have returned for a passport, but attendants at the consulate say he did not, according to the attorney.

Golfer Drops Dead at 18th Hole of Briergate Club

He was the guest of Herman H. Englehard, 377 Sunset lane, Winnetka, and had played up to the 18th green with Englehard and another man. As he was preparing to shoot for the green, Mr. Dreihs fell, apparently the victim of a heart attack. He was 56 years old.

Arrest 7,390 Motorists in License Drive

Motorists who failed to equip their automobiles with 1932 state licenses or city vehicles stickers learned last night that Police Commissioner James Allman's deadline warning, effective yesterday, carried teeth.

More than 7,300 drivers were given court summons during a sixteen hour period ending at midnight last night. The delinquents will appear in city courts today. They face a minimum penalty of $6.50 court costs and the added penalty of fines ranging from $5 to $200.

Continue Drive Today.

The drive will continue today and every day until every automobile appearing in Chicago streets carries the proper license, it was stated. The authorities estimate that there are about 200,000 automobile owners in Chicago who have failed to get licenses. No excuses will be accepted, Commissioner Allman warned last night. Placards announcing "License Applied for" will be ineffectual. Licenseless cars should be kept in garages, he said.

How well police, including traffic men, motorcycle men, mounted men, and patrolmen ferreted out delinquent motorists showed in district reports. The tally showed 7,390 arrests, exclusive of those made by park police. Town Hall and New City led the districts in summonses, the former finding a good hunting ground around Wrigley field during the Cubs game. The tabulation follows:

Traffic division	2,800	Burnside	125
North Racine	100	Morgan Park	25
W. North avenue	65	Gresham	50

No Excuses Tolerated.

"No excuses is our policy," said Commissioner Allman last night. "Even inability to pay doesn't go. I agree with Chief Justice Sonsteby of the Municipal court. He said that a man who can't afford to pay for licenses cannot afford to keep his brakes, lights and other parts of the car in safe driving condition."

Meanwhile, the detective bureau is investigating the sale of a number of fake wheel tax stickers. Willie Fowler, 3448 State street, who was found with several stickers in his pockets, is under arrest. The tags lacked serial numbers.

MR. ZELLER'S BOMB PROVES TO BE A BUST

Charles Zeller of 5427 Harper avenue, whose mother was notified recently that she had fallen heir to a $7,000,000 estate in Australia, received a square, bulky package in the mail yesterday afternoon. His name was carefully printed in old fashioned script and in the "return" corner was the name, "Dominick B. Ausano, 2215 W. Erie street." It looked to Mr. Zeller as if it might possibly be a bomb, so he called the detective bureau.

Lieut. Frank Johnson, the explosives expert, examined the package gingerly and decided to go to 2215 Erie place."

Out they went. An Italian matron came to the door. Behind her peeped three pretty little girls and all nodded when asked if Dominick Ausano lived there. He was their son and brother, and at the moment he was in his attic room on the third floor, they said. Johnson and his aides went to the attic. Lying on the bed was a slight Italian youth, about 16 years old. Beside him was a workbench and upon it various woodcarvings of Washington, Lincoln and other of the country's heroes.

The package? Yes, said Dominick Ausano, he had sent it. It contained a carved bust of Washington. He had seen Mr. Zeller's name in the newspapers and hoped he might make a sale. He hadn't made one since he started trying to help support the family.

"Send that carving out," Mr. Zeller told the police. "I'll give that kid his first sale."

OAK PARK BOARD ELECTS WOMAN TO RUN VILLAGE

Mrs. Dorothy Kerr, trustee, was chosen temporary president of the village board of Oak Park at a meeting of the trustees last night. She will assume the duties of President Willis McFeely, a veteran of the Spanish-American war, who is in the Hines Memorial hospital to undergo an operation for the removal of cataracts from his eyes. President McFeely, who is 67 years old, lives at 721 North Grove avenue, Oak Park. Mrs. Kerr, who lives at 820 North Oak Park avenue, is the wife of Dr. Ellis K. Kerr, prominent Oak Park physician.

Hundreds March Before Bier of Slain U. S. Flyer

SHANGHAI, April 20.—(AP)—Hundreds of Chinese passed today before the bier where Robert Short, American aviator killed while flying for the Chinese army, lay in state. The young man's mother, who came from the United States for the funeral, said she was proud of her son for what he had done.

Revels of Taxi Dance Go on by Court Writ

The revelry was more uproarious than usual last night in Chicago's taxi dance halls. In the Colonial School of the Dance at 1705 West Madison street the entertainment was extraordinarily enthusiastic and the costumes of the girl dancers exceedingly filmsy.

Wednesday is always one of the big nights in taxi dance halls and proprietors also are celebrating several recent court victories in their encounters with the police. The reason for the hilarity in the Colonial hall, run by Harold Lewis, is that it has been operating eleven months under a temporary injunction issued by Superior Court Judge Robert E. Gentzel. Efforts by the city to force a decision in the case have been futile.

What Court Records Show.

An examination of the court records showed the following developments in the case of the city versus Harold Lewis. The place was raided more than a year ago. On May 23, 1931, Lewis filed a petition for an injunction. A temporary order restraining the police from interference with the hall was issued the same day by Judge Gentzel.

The city filed an answer to the petition on June 11, declaring that the hall was the nightly scene of "immoral, revolting and highly licentious dancing." Judge Gentzel referred the hearing of testimony to Master in Chancery Adolph Easter.

A rule was entered ordering the parties to the case to complete their proofs within 30 days. Assistant Corporation Counsel Otto F. Weiner appeared with evidence at several hearings but the complainants were not present. Informed on July 11 that the complainants had not offered any proof, Judge Gentzel extended the time in which to present evidence to Sept. 1, over the objections of the city.

Hall Open All the Time.

During all this period the hall was wide open under the protection of the temporary injunction. On Sept. 1, the time for completing proof having expired, the case came up before Judge Joseph B. David, who was sitting in emergency court, Judge Gentzel being on a vacation. Judge David ordered immediate completion of the case within eight days and specifically wrote into the order: "No further extensions to be granted."

On Sept. 23, however, the proof was still incomplete and on that day, Judge Gentzel having returned from his vacation, he continued the hearing for another 10 days. Evidence was completed before the master in chancery on Oct. 3, 1931, nearly seven months ago.

Master in Chancery Easter was asked yesterday why he had not yet sent his recommendations to Judge Gentzel. He said there was a voluminous record to scan and that it was "not unusual" to delay so long in giving a decision. He finally declared he would submit his report to Judge Gentzel next week.

A Night at the Colonial.

At the Colonial club last night, the dancing of the girl entertainers with male partners who paid 10 cents a dance for the privilege, was even more lurid than in other places visited by a reporter. The costumes were brassieres, shorts and slippers. The girls had apparently vied with each other to see who could have the narrowest brassiere and the tightest shorts. A broken shoulder strap is also an alluring feature, guaranteed to bring the wearer many tickets.

The girls stood in a group in the center of the floor, wriggling invitingly and calling to the customers as they entered the hall. The place was dimly lit and dark in the corners. The corners were popular.

The pace was too strenuous for the men, who at intervals retired to rest.

Above the low moaning of saxophone and cornet could be heard the sighs, squeals and whinnyings of the exhilarated dancers. It was a good Wednesday night, the girls agreed at closing time.

DEFIES SHAFTS OF PROSECUTOR; CROWD CHEERS

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

[Copyright, 1932, By The Chicago Tribune.]

JOHN C. KELLEY. [Acme Photo.]

It was Thalia Massie, looking like a schoolgirl as she faced this Hawaiian world from the witness chair, who reduced the issue of the guilt of her husband, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, U. S. N.; her mother, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, and the enlisted naval men, Albert O. Jones and E. J. Lord, for the slaying of Joseph Kahahawai on Jan. 8 at her mother's residence, to a simple question of justification.

Crowd in Court Applauds.

She wrought the crowd on the courtroom benches to such a pitch that at one interval they applauded her as if applauding superb acting in a theater, although it could not have been that, because there was no reservation of doubt left in that courtroom that her story of rape by Kahahawai and four other hoodlums of a mixed race on the night of last Sept. 12 was all too true.

It was torn from her in agony today as she went to the defense of her mother and her husband to save them from prison, but she did more than this. She embroidered her story with such details that no one could doubt the overwrought condition of Massie's mind when he shot Kahahawai. And the plea of insanity, which was relegated to second place in the defense, was given support, if such support was needed, by her story of the tender care Massie gave her and his progressive weakness under the strain.

Cries Love for Husband.

At the close of her testimony, after a clash with Prosecutor John C. Kelley, in which her dramatic ability was revealed in a new light by flashes of anger, pride and defiance, she rushed to her husband's seat, threw herself into his arms and cried:

"What right had he to say I do not love you Everybody knows I love you!"

It was said in a stage whisper which penetrated to every corner of the room and halted the progress of the prosecution in sending a rebuttal witness to the stand.

It was only a moment before that the even more unusual courtroom scene had occurred—when the audience, which had been in tears through much of her story, broke the precedence of silence. The demonstration was over like a little summer lightning storm. It revealed the reaction in the minds of this mixed group, where the gentle faces of Hawaiian women showed the same emotions as their white sisters.

Grilled By Prosecutor.

The prosecutor went after Mrs. Massie sharply after her main story was concluded. He questioned her first about her Japanese maid and what she had told the maid on the morning of the killing, when Jones rushed in, all excited, and told her about the slaying. Jones told her, she said, that Tommy [Lieut. Massie] was with her mother. In her first fear over him, she admitted, she told her maid to say something that was not true regarding the time of Jones' arrival. She also said she had told Lieut. Leo Pace, a friend who called, to get her husband out to the submarine base and stall off the police.

She was alert and self-possessed during this part of the examination, where before she had sunk many times into a vale of sobs, only to come back like a good fighter for more punishment.

Asked if Jones had referred to his superior as "Massie," she flashed haughtily: "Not in my presence."

Flares Up at Prosecutor.

"Was your husband always kind to you?" Kelley asked suavely.

"Yes," she said.

"Did you have a psychopathic examination at the University of Hawaii last summer?"

She bridled up at once and sat up.

"I went to see Prof. Kelly," she said cautiously.

"Do you remember the response you made on a chart or graph of questions which you wrote?"

The prosecutor advanced with a sheet of paper purporting to be her answers to the examination questions. The paper was said to contain evidence of a rift between her and her husband. The girl leaned forward.

"Do you realize," she asked the prosecutor, "that this is a confidential document? This is a matter between doctor and patient. You have no right to bring this into the court room. Where did you get it?"

"I am asking questions, not answering them," snapped Kelley, handing her the paper to identify her own writing.

"Is this gentleman a doctor?" asked the prosecutor, referring to the university examiner.

"Yes," she said defiantly.

Tears Paper Into Shreds.

As the prosecutor handed her the paper she snatched at it and deliberately tore it up, facing him with flaming defiance. A wave of applause arose then from the benches.

"Spectators will leave the court," the judge said, and the applause stopped instantly. The people sat quietly for a moment while the girl rushed from the stand to her husband.

"Thank you, Mrs. Massie, you appear in your true colors at last," said Kelley, as she ran past him.

"That language is objectionable," said the court.

The lawyers were on their feet and there was some confusion until the bailiffs came forward.

The session for the day was practically ended here, although two rebuttal witnesses were put on the stand in an effort to show that Massie was not insane in appearance after the killing when he was overhauled in the automobile with the body of his victim.

Prosecution May Call Expert.

After the session had closed, the court asked the prosecutor how long it would take him to conclude the case. Kelley replied that this was a matter of policy which would have to be discussed, but he did not think he could finish tomorrow. He said he may call an expert alienist to rebut the testimony of the two defense experts.

Mrs. Massie, in her testimony, told the complete story of the party on the night of Sept. 12, why she walked out of the Ala Wai inn and how she was dragged into a car, beaten and assaulted. She named Kahahawai as the one who had broken her jaw. Her testimony was confined to what she had told her husband from time to time about it all.

She was dressed simply in black with a dark green figured jacket and a small black hat with a black leather bow. She twisted her handkerchief in her hands as she talked. Her eyes were brimming and her voice was low and slow, at times rising with notes of terror and agony as she remembered all she had been trying to forget.

Weeps on Stand.

Several times her head sank into her arms over the rail in front of the jury box and her shoulders shook, but always she rose again and the light in her eyes showed courage. Her mother, who now will not have to take the stand to tell her part in the tragedy, upheld her by sitting erect, head up, facing her twenty feet away.

It was Mrs. Massie's first appearance in court since the trial started. She took a seat between her husband and her mother. She held her husband's hand as she waited for her own ordeal. She seemed contained and listened closely to the cross-examination of other witnesses.

When she was summoned to the witness chair she faced the double row of white and brown faces in the jury box calmly. Her shoulders were slightly bowed. She had removed her hat. Her blond hair was smooth. It was bobbed, but rolled over a comb on the back of her neck. Her blue eyes are prominent. Her face was pale, but not overstrained. Her cheek showed slight marks of her broken jaw and the suffering she had been through.

Testifies in Low Voice.

She had a slight cough and sipped water occasionally. The audience she faced was made up largely of whites, with many friends of the navy and a sprinkling of Hawaiian men and women included. Rear Admiral Yates Stirling sat in the front row near the defendants, leaning forward with deep interest.

"Mrs. Massie," Darrow said. She walked slowly forward.

Q.—Your age? A.—Twenty-one.

Q.—Where were you born? A.—Washington, D. C.

Q.—When were you married? A.—Thanksgiving day, four years ago.

Q.—Where did you go after your marriage? A.—Edgewood, Md., for three weeks and then Boston.

Her curious voice had a remote quality and she kept her eyes on Darrow alone. She followed Massie's ship to the west coast, she said, and she will have lived in Honolulu three years in June.

Q.—All this time your husband has been in the navy? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you remember the night of the party at Ala Wai inn? A.—Yes [in a low, deep tone].

Q.—Where did you live? A.—Manoa Valley.

Q.—The date? A.—Sept. 12.

Q.—Did any one go with you and Tommy [Lieut. Massie]? A.—Two other officers, Lieut. Branson, Lieut. Brown, and their wives.

Q.—How many people were at the dance? A.—Seventy-five or 100.

Q.—Did you dance? A.—Yes.

Drank Half a Highball.

Q.—Did you have anything to drink? A.—Yes, I had half of one highball.

Q.—Did you ever care for drinking? She shook her head.

Q.—What time was it? A.—About 11:35 o'clock.

Q.—Did you know where your husband was at that time? A.—No.

Q.—Why did you go? A.—I wasn't enjoying myself. I was tired and bored.

Q.—Where did you go? A.—Right to the corner of the John Ena road—I turned down there.

Breaks Down on Stand.

Q.—How far did you go? A.—Within twenty feet of where it turns to Fort Derussy—I took this way because it was better lighted.

Q.—Where were you when something unusual happened?

Prosecutor Kelley objected. He said the Ala Moana case is not being tried and that the only thing admissible is what Mrs. Massie told her husband.

DR. E. H. WILLIAMS.

The objection was well taken, the court said.

"I have this in mind," Darrow answered.

Q.—When did you next see Tommy? A.—Later on that night.

Here her calmness broke and she put her head down in her arms on the rail, sobbing. Her uncle, Robert Bell, ran to get water. She soon lifted her face and went on.

"I asked him please to come home right away as something terrible had happened," she said.

Her voice rose on the word "terrible" to a high moan. She sobbed again, but Darrow kept her going.

Q.—Did Tommy come? A.—Yes, he asked me what had happened. I didn't want to tell, it was so terrible. He kept asking me, "please." I sat on the couch and started to cry. I said they had beaten me up and raped me.

Long, deep sobs came from the suffering figure on the stand. Many of the audience were in tears. Her mother, with her head up, looked bravely after the girl.

Q.—Did you give any names? A.—No.

Q.—Did you tell Tommy what you did when you got home? A.—Yes, I said I had taken medical precautions.

Q.—What? A.—Against disease and pregnancy.

Massie Keeps Face Covered.

Q.—Did you go to bed? A.—No, I undressed on the couch.

Q.—Were you questioned by the police? A.—Tommy told me what happened. I was crying all the time. My jaw hurt me. They took me to the hospital and then to the police station.

Q.—Was Tommy there? A.—Yes, when I got home I told him I had seen one of the men at the police station—the one who was driving, who wore a brown leather coat—and I told him about the number of the car. I told him the car was striped, that it was an open car. Two of the men got out, I told him, one was Henry Chang and the other was Kahahawai, and Kahahawai struck me on the side of the jaw and put his hand on my mouth. Chang pulled me in the car and Kahahawai pushed and said, "Come on, baby, you're going for a ride." I asked them please to let me go, but they just kept on beating me.

There were more sobs, but she went on.

Tells of Beating.

"They drove me off into some bushes," she said. "Chang and Kahahawai dragged me out. Kahahawai hit me and dragged me in the bushes and——"

With sobs her mother came up with water which Attorney Leisure had given her.

Q.—What else? A.—I told him that Kahahawai had broken my jaw. He used me just as hard as he could. I got away a little. "You knocked my teeth out," I said. "What do I care? Shut up," he said, and swore at me.

Q.—Did the others get out? A.—Yes, the others assaulted me, too.

Q.—Were there beads on your dress? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you see any afterward? A.—Yes, I told Tommy the string was broken, but that some were caught in my dress. Later the police showed me the beads which they found, they said, in an old quarantine station. One policeman said he found some of the beads in the car the boys were driving.

Regains Her Calm.

The worst part was over now, and Mrs. Massie stopped crying and became more calm.

"When the police brought them to my house I told them they were the men who attacked me," she continued.

Q.—Did they say anything in the car? A.—Yes, they asked for money and took my pocketbook, but there was nothing in it. I said my husband would give them money, but they just laughed.

Q.—Where was Tommy? A.—With me.

Q.—How many policemen did you talk to?

"I object," said Kelley.

Objection sustained.

Court Rebukes Darrow.

Q.—Where did you go? A.—I went home and to bed, but couldn't sleep.

"I object," said Kelley. "I don't want to object all the time."

"I don't think you should," retorted Darrow.

"Confine yourself to material matter," the court ordered Darrow.

Q.—Where did you go from the station? A.—Home. Tommy put me to bed, and he kept walking up and down, trying to do something for me.

Q.—Where did you go the next day? A.—To Queens hospital. Tommy went with me. I saw a lot of people and policemen, some of the men who assaulted me, and doctors. I saw Joseph Kahahawai [she pronounced the name slowly and deliberately]. They brought in Ben Ahakuelo and Kahahawai. I told them these were the ones. Tommy asked if I were sure, and I said "Yes." I identified four of them.

Says Massie Was "Wonderful."

Q.—How long did you stay at the hospital? A.—A week. Tommy was there most of the time.

She told of the treatment given her jaw. The storm of her emotion had subsided now, and she fingered the beads on her neck and talked calmly. The side of her face that was broken was toward the jury. Some in the box looked at her, while others gazed away or had their heads down. It was a story few men would care to listen to.

From the hospital she said she went to the home of Col. Sherman Miles at Waikiki, then later home. Tommy started to go back on duty but acted as a night nurse, she said.

"He was wonderful," she said, sobbing again. "He was so kind and never minded how many times I waked him."

Describes Weeks of Illness.

After the recess Mrs. Massie had fairly recovered. She was still on the verge of tears as she described how her husband acted and the medical treatment she underwent. She told of how she had splints on her jaw for six weeks.

Q.—Where were you? A.—At home, with Tommy.

Q.—Was there any pain? A.—Yes. Her doctor examined her, she said, and performed an operation to stop pregnancy.

Q.—Was it due to Tommy? A.—I knew it wasn't.

Q.—How long were you in recovering from that? A.—I was in bed in a hospital for from five to six days.

Says She Heard Rumors.

Q.—Do you remember when these men were indicted? A.—Yes, in the middle of October.

The trial lasted a long time, she said. Tommy was there during the first part and then had to go to sea. She said that she had testified there.

Q.—Did you wire Tommy? A.—Yes, I wired it was a mistrial.

Q.—Was that case ever tried again? A.—No.

Q.—Did you know about the circulation of stories? A.—Yes, I heard all sorts of rumors and discussed them with Tommy. I heard that Tommy hadn't believed me, that he was going to get a divorce, and how I was not assaulted by these men but by navy men, and that Tommy had beaten me up. I heard all kinds. Tommy was worried. I tried to tell him not to worry because it didn't matter so much to me. He didn't seem well, anyhow.

Q.—Did Tommy talk about a confession? A.—He said it would be wonderful if he could get one. I wanted to forget about it. He walked up and down and talked about it. He couldn't eat and never wanted to go out anywhere. He would get up at night and smoke cigarets.

Q.—Do you remember Jan. 8? A.—Yes, I do.

Q.—Had Jones been at your house before? A.—Yes, one Monday in December, as a bodyguard while Lieut. Massie was at sea. He was there a week.

Q.—Do you know where Jones was on Jan. 8? A.—Yes, he came to my house that morning about 10 o'clock.

Q.—That was after Kahahawai was killed? A.—Yes.

Q.—What was his condition? A.—He came to the living room. He was excited and looked pale. He said Kahahawai had been killed. I said, "Where is Tommy?" He said, "Tommy is with your mother." He asked for a highball, and started to mix it. He said it was not enough, and filled a glass.

The prosecution opened the day's testimony with an attack on the defense testimony that Massie was insane at the moment of shooting. Barry Ulrich, assistant prosecutor, cross-examined Dr. E. H. Williams, one of the defense experts, on the theory that Massie merely acted under an uncontrollable impulse of anger and that the insanity was feigned. Ulrich made an effort to show that sanity can exist with the same facts out of which the expert deduced insanity.

Dr. Williams elaborated on the theory that Massie suffered a chemical shock insanity. He said that if Massie had been examined at the time of the killing his blood would have shown a chemical explosion or abnormality, indicating amnesia. Extreme anger or fright would bring the same result, the witness admitted.

Dr. Williams testified recently in the Ruth Judd case at Phoenix, Ariz., that she had been abnormal since girlhood because of glandular trouble. He also testified in the Hickman murder.

Denies Plea Is Fake.

During this testimony the attention of the courtroom was divided between the witness and the music which the Royal Hawaiian band was playing in the park outside the legislative palace. Strains of "Swanee River," "Massa's in de Cold, Cold Ground," and other old songs floated in through the open windows.

Ulrich sought to get an admission that many pleas of insanity are faked.

The witness replied that the faking of insanity is not common nor often successful, but that such pleas are often made by lawyers in order to get in testimony which is not otherwise admissible.

"That, however, does not refer to this case," he said. "Very much not."

Ulrich read from a book written by Dr. Williams in which he said the medical profession often prostituted itself to give partisan testimony. Dr. Williams was taken over the evidence of Massie's acts after the shooting. He insisted they fitted into the picture of amnesia, and that his glands were not working.

During this Massie borrowed a pencil and paper, wrote a note, and passed it to his lawyers.

Dr. Williams said that 97 per cent of the acts of the insane are "normal." He said Massie came out slowly and was sane two or three hours later, but that he was still subject to a recurrence of his condition under a new tense situation.

An important circumstance, the witness pointed out, is that Massie shot only once, despite the fact that he had seven more bullets. If it had been mere rage, he said, he would have fired more.

MAYOR ASKS LAW TO LET HIM PICK CEPAK SUCCESSOR

On the grounds of economy Mayor Cermak yesterday urged passage of the bill introduced in the legislature in the name of his secretary, Representative Henry Sonnenschein, giving the mayor the power to fill by appointment the city council vacancy caused by the recent death of Ald. Joseph Cepak [32d]. Asked if it was his intention to appoint Sonnenschein if the bill passes, the mayor replied that there would probably be only one candidate were a special election held in the ward.

"It would be a joke to call a special election," said Mayor Cermak. "The ward is Democratic anyway, the authority would be only for this year, and a special election would cost the people a lot of money."

Computing election costs at $30 a precinct, the normal rate, a special election in the 22d ward, which has 42 precincts, would cost $3,360.

Aldermen and election authorities said, however, that passage of the bill would create an important precedent in giving an executive officer power to fill a vacancy in a legislative office. It was pointed out that had this power been vested in the mayor in 1929, when six aldermen were elected to county offices, the appointees might have constituted a balance of power in the council.

COPS THINK CAR HAS A LICENSE, BUT IT HASN'T

Detective Sergeants John Griffith and John Warren drove away from the detective bureau yesterday morning on the lookout for pickpockets. A loop traffic cop, watching for cars without 1932 license plates, flagged the sergeants to the curb, glanced at the sign "Police" on the side of the car, and shook his head sadly.

"If I can't make you guys get license plates, how can I make the others do it?" he asked.

"Get out and look," said the traffic man. Griffith and Warren did. Both front and rear tags were gone, although they had been in place at 9 a. m., an hour earlier, when the two parked the car in the rear of the bureau to receive their day's orders. Later in the day a message went out ordering police to be on the lookout for a car bearing the number 138-796, stolen from behind the police station at 11th and State streets.

20TH CENTURY TO BEGIN STAR TIME RUN ON SUNDAY

The New York Central railroad's 20th Century Limited will be started on Sunday on its initial 18 hour run to New York by star-fixed time, which, according to Frank Urie of the Elgin observatory, is accurate to two 1,000ths of a second. For the last week Urie has been testing apparatus to make this possible.

According to the astronomer, two light beams at the La Salle street station will be connected by direct wire with master clocks at the Elgin observatory, which register sidereal, or star time, for 30 minutes before the train leaves. At 1:30 p. m., central standard time, a green light will flash in the face of Engineer Marion A. Overleese, who will be waiting with his hand on the throttle. The train will be on its way instantly.

SUPREME COURT RULING OUTLAWS TAXPAYER STRIKE

Mayor Hails Reversal of Jarecki Decision.

he had never counseled his clients not to pay their taxes, but to withhold only the excess assessment, which he estimated was more than 50 per cent.

The contentions in both the Cesar case and in the Bistor case brought by the taxpayers' association were that personal property in Cook county, amounting to 16 billions of dollars, had practically escaped taxation, putting an unfair burden upon real estate.

Ruling in Bistor Case.

In the Bistor case the Supreme court held that courts could not invalidate an assessment because of discriminations against various classes of property; that the taxpayers' remedy was in forcing the assessing agencies to levy an assessment against all property evenly.

The oral decision by the Supreme court was apparently in response to statements made in the legislature that action for the relief of Chicago's tax muddle could not be granted until a decision of the Cesar case was made. Chief Justice Clyde E. Stone, in announcing the decision, said:

"This cause has been submitted at this term in briefs and oral arguments. It has been considered and the judgment of this court is that the judgment of the County court of Cook county be reversed and the case be remanded. An opinion giving the reasons will later be filed."

Will Sue Delinquents.

County Treasurer Joseph B. McDonough said his staff was prepared to seek judgments against delinquent taxpayers immediately upon the expiration of the penalty date. He issued a statement showing the unpaid taxes for 1927, 1928, and 1929 to be as follows:

Year.	Items unpaid.	Amount due.
1928	60,209	19,537,973
1929	130,283	51,719,125
Totals.	192,945	$72,881,845

Mr. McDonough yesterday turned over an additional $6,050,000 to various taxing bodies, including $5,000,000 to the city. Collections of the 1930 taxes, computed up to Tuesday night, were $71,799,498, of which $55,797,849 was paid on real estate and $16,001,649 on personal property.

Mayor Cermak said the Cesar decision places the city and the county on the way to a normal condition.

"It restores confidence in our securities," said the mayor, "particularly those securities sold in anticipation of the collection of the 1928, 1929, and 1930 taxes. With the collection of the balance of these taxes, Chicago's municipal securities market will return to normal.

"I make a personal appeal to all those who have not paid their taxes for 1928, 1929, and 1930 and who are in a position to do so, to pay at once."

The Cesar test case was based on the protest by Mrs. Lillian Cesar of the taxes on her bungalow at 439 North Taylor avenue, Oak Park. She was one of 2,000 taxpayers organized by the Oak Park Real Estate board.

"If we can't get any relief in court," Mrs. Cesar said yesterday, "my husband and I might as well turn over our home to the county. So far as I'm concerned, it was ridiculous for anybody to turn any such case down. We paid $9,800 for our home and our tax bill then was $219. Now they want $544 in taxes on the same property."

Another effort to get the federal courts to invalidate the 1930 tax levy was made yesterday with the filing of a suit by Attorney B. A. Fried on behalf of the G. R. Kinney company, a Delaware corporation operating several shoe stores in Chicago. A similar suit was filed several months ago and argued at length before Judge Charles E. Woodward. The judge dismissed the suit, holding that the proper remedy for taxpayers was in the state courts. The lawyer declared, however, that since the Illinois Supreme court has denied relief, the federal courts should intervene.

The Gums?
THEY HOLD THE TEETH. When attacked by pyorrhea and other infections they cannot hold them any longer

Many wield the toothbrush regularly morning and night. They clean and polish their teeth as nicely as possible. And they think that their teeth will be preserved. The truth is they are merely protecting the surface enamel.

The cause of half of the adult teeth which are lost is not a lack of cleanliness. It is pyorrhea—a gum disease so prevalent that it claims, as victims, four out of five people past the age of forty. Pyorrhea starts at the gum line and works downward toward the tooth sockets. It works quietly. Sometimes it is not seen or felt for years.

Then the trouble begins. Then you begin to lose teeth. There is no knowing how many teeth you will lose from gums which are ravaged by this disease. Face this pyorrhea business frankly. There is no use in putting off the dentist until you think you need him. Visit him twice a year and make a point of it. That is prevention—and sensible prevention too.

Then there is the question of home treatment and care. There is no use in making believe that white, shining, "clean" teeth are either safe or sound. Nobody believes that any more. The gums must be considered as well. Forhan's Toothpaste is the double-duty toothpaste that does both halves of the job. Originated by Dr. R. J. Forhan, for 26 years a pyorrhea specialist. Save pain, expense and humiliation. Start the whole family today with the big brown tube of Forhan's at all druggists.

MYSTERY VEILS SLAYING OF GIRL AND HER ESCORT

Couple Beaten to Death; Man Married.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 20.—[Special.]—A trail of shattered romances that already has touched three homes was being followed tonight by detectives seeking a solution to the mysterious murder of a young woman and a married man who had posed as her fiancé. The bodies of the two victims, apparently beaten to death by some one in a jealous frenzy, were found early this morning in a vacant lot on the fringe of Long Island's polo country, half-hidden from the roadway by a hedge of yellow-blooming forsythia.

The north shore's latest crime of passion led back through the striped-awning cottages of Long Island to a tiny apartment in Brooklyn, a more pretentious home in semi-fashionable Jackson Heights and a comfortable old residence on an elm shaded street in Flushing, but the trail remained unended.

Motorist Finds Bodies.

The girl was Miss Rose Welk of Flushing who held a responsible secretarial position in Manhattan. The man was Edward B. Brinker, a salesman. Brinker was dead when a passing motorist spied the bodies and Miss Welk died without regaining consciousness in a nearby hospital. Their heads had been crushed by ferocious blows. A stained tire iron later was found. A ring had been torn from the third finger of the man's left hand.

Before the day had passed two women appeared in the case. One was Mrs. Ruth Brinker, to whom Brinker owed several hundred dollars in unpaid alimony. She is a telephone operator in Brooklyn and the mother of Brinker's 10 year old son. The second woman gave her name as Mrs. Edward Brinker. She had lived for the last year with Brinker in a Jackson Heights apartment.

Women Are Questioned.

Detectives questioned the two women. The second Mrs. Brinker expressed indignation when she returned to her apartment and found detectives waiting. She drove up in her husband's automobile for which Long Island detectives had been looking.

The woman told them she had received a call from a traffic policeman saying the car was abandoned near Douglaston, L. I. [Douglaston is about ten miles from the scene of the crime]. She said she did not know why the automobile should have been left there, but that she went after it. Then, she said, she spent the rest of the morning canvassing for a book company.

Leaves Home on Business.

Brinker, according to the Jackson Heights woman, left home last night on business. She told a story of a happy normal married life.

Miss Welk's home life appeared to be that of a young girl commutor. She lived with her parents, two brothers and two unmarried sisters in a two story brick house. Her father, Otto Welk Sr., is a well to do Manhattan tailor. Miss Welk's employer, Hugh Burnette, personnel manager of the Consolidated Gas company, said she was an exceptionally able worker and was popular.

This is the story of the double crime as reconstructed from information obtained from the Welk family, those who discovered the bodies and the police. There are unexplained and unconnected links throughout the narrative which detectives tonight are trying to piece together.

Crime Is Reconstructed.

Brinker, apparently a man of wide feminine acquaintance, judging by the long list of names and telephone numbers in a notebook found in his pockets, had been calling on Miss Welk for almost two years. He came to her home regularly two or three times a week, and often stayed for dinner with the family. He was accepted as a suitor.

Last night the girl and Brinker left the Flushing home in a car. They did not return, and this morning the family became alarmed.

Apparently Brinker and the girl drove or were kidnaped and taken to the place where their bodies were found. There were evidences that Brinker had put up a hard fight for his life. The girl's skull was fractured and her body covered with bruises. There was a ball of gauze thrust into her throat and her lips had been sealed with heavy tape.

Evidence of Battle.

Police believe the couple drove to a trysting place. There they were surprised by their assailant or assailants. A terrific fight took place and Brinker was beaten unconscious. Then the girl was gagged and her mouth taped and the pair of them thrown into another car and dumped out not far from Roosevelt flying field. Brinker revived and again fought with his abductor, but was beaten to death with a tire iron. The girl was already dying and was not molested further.

John Hulburt, truckman, was driving toward Mineola when he saw two heaps of clothing lying in the tangled underbrush. Investigating, he found the dying woman, her hair stained and disheveled and her clothes torn and dirt spotted. Her hat and handbag lay nearby. One patent leather pump had been flung thirty feet away. A few yards further on Brinker lay, his blue serge suit ripped and stained. A loosely knotted handkerchief around his throat appeared to have been used as a gag. Greasy lengths of knotted cloth were found in the dust.

None of the personal effects of the couple had been molested. In Brinker's pockets detectives found two letters, both mailed recently from Brooklyn. One was from his Brooklyn wife and the other was a personal note signed "Gee-Gee."

Arrested for Nonsupport.

Records of the Domestic Relations court in Brooklyn showed that on Dec. 27, 1929, Mrs. Ruth Brinker of Brooklyn had caused her husband, Edward Brinker, then living in Jackson Heights, to be brought to court on a charge of failing to provide support for their child. The court directed Brinker to pay $15 a week for the child's support.

On Dec. 20, 1930, Brinker was $520 in arrears and his wife caused his arrest. The court reduced the payment to $10 a week and placed Brinker under bond to insure payment of the money.

10 N. Y. BROKERS ARE CALLED FOR SHORT SALE QUIZ

Records Since Jan. 1, '31, Will Be Scanned.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 20.—[Special.]—In an effort to pierce the fog which surrounds the identity of leading Wall street bears during the stock market collapses of the last sixteen months, the senate banking and currency committee today summoned representatives of ten New York brokerage houses to testify tomorrow at the resumption of the short selling inquiry. All subpoenas served today called for the records of all short accounts of customers since Jan. 1, 1931.

In disclosing that the bear raid inquiry has been widened in scope, Chairman Peter Norbeck stated that at least twenty-six brokerage firms will be required to place their records before the committee during the next few days. The committee chairman declined, however, to make public the names of the more important men on the list of 24,000 shorts submitted Tuesday by Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock exchange.

List of Firms Summoned.

The firms served with subpoenas today included:

While Mr. Whitney will be the first witness examined tomorrow it is anticipated that several of the brokers will be questioned during the day. While committee members were reticent as to details, it was assumed that the records of the brokerage houses subpoenaed contained the names of shorts found in the Whitney list. It was learned, however, that the 24,000 names have been winnowed down to 350 of the larger shorts. Only men who sold 2,500 shares of stock or more are being investigated, it was said. Most of these names will eventually be made public, according to Senator Norbeck.

Willing to Release List.

William A. Gray, committee counsel, completed his study of the list of shorts today and stated that so far as he was concerned it could now be given to the press.

The taciturnity of committee members caused considerable uncertainty about the subpoenas until it was learned that records covering more than a year of short selling are desired.

"We are anxious to find everything we can," Mr. Gray said. "We are asking for the general books of brokers in some instances and for specific transcriptions in others. We expect important developments tomorrow."

It was assumed that the committee was making its plans for an intensive study of short operations on the basis of the Whitney report. Mr. Gray declined to say whether the committee was on the trail of any particular broker or simply was embarking on a fishing expedition.

Thus far the hearings have developed largely into lectures on short selling operations, with Mr. Whitney in the rôle of lecturer and the committee as students.

SHRINKAGE OF DEPEW ESTATE COSTS YALE AND HEIRS FORTUNE

New York, April 20.—(AP)—A shrinkage of more than $2,000,000 in the estate of the late Chauncey M. Depew, Jr., since his death 15 months ago was disclosed in an accounting filed in Surrogate's court today.

As a result, Yale university loses more than $700,000, and the bequests to four cousins decline more than $350,000 each.

The gifts to Yale university include stocks and bonds, a third interest in Depew's home and $72,500 in cash. The executors reported they had a net estate of $5,849,128 as of April 8.

WET PLATFORM FOR ONE KANSAS G. O. P. CANDIDATE

Topeka, Kas., April 20.—(AP)—Prohibition became an issue in the Republican as well as the Democratic senatorial primary contests in Kansas with the announcement today by Tom Harley, Wichita attorney, that he would seek the Republican nomination on a wet platform.

Harley, formerly a representative in the state legislature, declared in a statement he believed the prohibition question "overshadows all other national issues" and said he favored repeal of the 18th amendment, leaving control of liquor sales to the individual states. He also would abolish the federal farm board, which he termed "useless and expensive."

Chauncey B. Little, Olathe attorney and former congressman, also seeks the Democratic nomination on a wet platform.

U. OF C. STUDENT, HURT IN MOTOR CRASH, IS DEAD

Fatalities in County Pass 325 Mark.

Emmons Riddle, 21 years old, 5622 Woodlawn avenue, a University of Chicago senior and president of the local chapter of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity, died at the Billings Memorial hospital yesterday from hurts sustained April 14 when his motorcycle skidded into a motor truck. The youth was the son of L. W. Riddle, a Hyde Park realty dealer. The accident occurred at 56th street and Woodlawn avenue.

The death of Riddle and three others raised the 1932 Cook county toll to 327. The other victims:

Joseph Dedaninski, 8 years old, 3035 West 42d street. Killed when he was run down by a truck in front of 4232 Archer avenue. Lawrence Comerford, 30, of 2929 South Kominsky avenue, carried the boy to a doctor's office, but the youngster was dead on arrival.

Unidentified Mexican, about 30 years old. Fatally injured by a hit-and-run taxicab at Jackson boulevard and Racine avenue last night.

Robert Dunne, 34 years old, 9700 South Western avenue, an employé of the city water pipe extension bureau died in the Little Company of Mary hospital of injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile at Ninety-fifth street and Western avenue, Tuesday night. Henry LeBleu, Lockport was the driver.

Breaking away from his mother, Samuel Malazzo, 4 years old, 1234 Oregon avenue, ran in front of a truck in Harrison street at Racine avenue yesterday. He was knocked down and his skull was factured. William Leverenze, 39, of 2930 South Talman avenue, the driver, took him to the Mother Cabrini hospital.

Miss Edith Black, 30 years old, 496 Arlington street, Elmhurst, a pianist, was critically hurt yesterday when the automobile in which she was riding was struck by another machine at Lake street and North Karlov avenue.

Sidney Feldman, 7301 Sheridan road, was severely injured when the small coupe in which he was riding collided with a truck south of Maryville, Mo.

KILL BOOTLEGGER FROM AMBUSH AS HE LEAVES FLAT

Sam Mule, alias Morley, 37 years old, a bootlegger believed to have defied the Capone syndicate, was killed by shotgun slugs fired from a window across an areaway from his headquarters at 325 Menomonee street yesterday.

Two men and a blond young woman, who gave the names of "Mr. and Mrs. Lazzaro," rented two rooms at 327 Menomonee street Tuesday afternoon and kept a vigil until their victim appeared in the areaway about noon. A rocking chair stood at the window on the first floor of the rooming house and cigaret stubs littered the floor.

Mule was leaving his place when he was slain. As he passed through the areaway, his head was on a level with and only about three feet from the window at which the gunman waited. Only one shot was fired, but it tore away the top of Mule's head.

Passed Up One Chance.

Hudson avenue police under Capt. Martin Mullen said the killers passed up an opportunity to assassinate Mule Tuesday night, apparently fearful of injuring his wife, Lillian, a 22 year old Minnesota girl, who came to the city a year ago. Mule passed through the areaway with her, but the killers waited until they caught him alone.

Esther Nagy, 1752 Cleveland avenue, who was visiting friends at 334 Menomonee street, said she saw two men leave a car parked in Hammond court, which ends at Menomonee, and walk half way across the street toward the lattice entrance to the areaway. One of them was carrying a shotgun. When the shot was fired, the men turned and fled in their car. Police believed this was a precaution against Mule's escape. The killers were believed to have escaped through the rear door of the rooming house.

Quiz Brother of Victim.

Mule's brother, Leo, who runs a booze place at 1537 Cleveland avenue, was questioned, but no important information was obtained from him. Police said the slain man was an independent bootlegger and there were reports that he sought to take over a place operated by Alcido [Chito] Lorenzi at 1953 Lincoln avenue. Mule was released from Leavenworth penitentiary in 1928 after serving a five year sentence for counterfeiting.

Fred Kohler, who had been transferred from the Menomonee street establishment to another one operated by Mule at 1901 North Clark street, said he had talked with his employer at Clark and Wisconsin streets at 11:30 a. m. He said Harold Cushing, employed in the beer flat-bottling plant, talked to Mule just before he left and was killed. Cushing ran over and told Kohler and then fled.

Police said last night that Mule was questioned several years ago in the plot to kill Tony Lombardo, afterwards assassinated at Madison and Dearborn streets. The plot was nipped when detectives seized a gun nest in an apartment near Lombardo's old Washington boulevard home. Police also said that Mule was one of the last of the old Aiello-Moran mob. He specialized, they charged, in shakedowns.

NAVAL BUILDING PLAN DISRUPTED BY FUND SLASH

6-Inch Gun Cruisers Left Off of List.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 20.—[Special.]—The navy's warship building program may be disrupted as the result of the failure of the house appropriations committee yesterday to include in the list of authorized warships five 6 inch gun cruisers which the navy department contends, it has a legal right to construct as soon as appropriations are provided.

The cruisers in question were authorized in 1929 when congress approved a law authorizing the construction of fifteen cruisers, slated to be built as 8 inch gun ships of 10,000 tons each and one aircraft carrier.

When the London treaty, limiting this country to eighteen 8 inch gun cruisers, made construction of five of the fifteen cruisers impossible, the navy department at first gave up hope of building these ships at all.

Backed by Legal Opinion.

Last spring, however, when congress failed to approve the 274 million dollar warship construction bill, Secretary of the Navy Adams revived the fifteen ship authorization and asked the navy judge advocate general for an opinion as to the legality of building the five of the cruisers as 6 inch gun vessels.

The judge advocate general looked up the law, found that the act did not stipulate the caliber of guns, and rendered an opinion that 6 inch gun cruisers could be built on the 1929 authorization.

In submitting the 226 million dollar navy supply bill to the house yesterday, the appropriations committee failed to include the five 6 inch gunned cruisers among the list of ships which are now authorized, apparently taking the view that the authorizations were not legal.

If this view is upheld by congress next year when appropriations are slated to be asked for at least two of the 6 inch gun cruisers, the navy's construction program will be slowed up almost to the zero point. At present the navy has seven destroyers and the problematical five cruisers on its list of authorized ships.

New Ships Limited.

As all indications are that no new naval authorization bill will be passed at this session, the only new ships the navy can lay down during the next two years must come from the seven destroyers, two 8 inch gun cruisers which can be laid down under the London treaty, and the doubtful five 6 inch gun cruisers. Sixteen warships, mostly 8 inch gunned cruisers, are now building.

The action of the house committee came as a blow to naval officers, although there is still a chance that congress may adopt the navy department's point of view. Immediately after the judge advocate general's opinion was rendered the five cruisers were placed on the navy department's future building program authorized list.

In aiding the senate and house naval committees to frame the Vinson and Hale warship authorization bills last winter, the five cruisers were left out. Committee members were told these five ships could be built as soon as appropriations were available.

Probed by Committee.

It now develops that the appropriations committee examined the judge advocate's opinion, questioned naval officers regarding the merit of the contention that the 8 inch gun cruiser authorizations could be converted into 6 inch gun ships, then left the five cruisers out of the list of ships for which it held that authority to build now exists.

"Every vessel," it stated, "for which authority exists to build or commence the construction of during the fiscal year 1933 is provided for in varying degrees in the budget and bill, save seven destroyers, one transport and an experimental submarine.

Treaty Terms Cited.

"Under the terms of the London treaty the United States is entitled to 180,000 tons of 8 inch gun cruisers. Eight have been built, seven are building and, according to the treaty, three more may be built. The budget and bill include $800,000 for commencing the one which may be begun after Dec. 31, 1932. The seven building and the three yet to be begun were authorized along with five others in 1929."

ROME'S 2685TH BIRTHDAY DUCE'S PROMOTION DAY

Il Duce and 10,000 young Fascists will gather for the day's ceremonies, which Mussolini observes with solemnness. The youngest, "balilla," at 14 becomes an avanguardista, and he at 18 becomes a young Fascist of combat, who at 21 becomes a black shirt.

Throughout Italy there are similar gatherings. Some 115,000 balilla, who have carried dummy stocks, will receive rifles, denoting their graduation, and 100,000 avanguardista will become young Fascists of combat, the largest graduating class in history. Mussolini also will unveil a bronze statue of Caesar in Caesar's forum.

Tomorrow the Royal Academy of Italy will hold an extraordinary session, attended by the king and presided over by its president, Inventor Marconi, to induct new members and award $60,000 in prizes.

GOLD STAR FATHER OFFERS TO LOAN U. S. $2,000 FROM DEAD SON

Washington, D. C., April 20.—[Special.]—An old man's offer to lend his government two thousand dollars saved out of the war risk insurance paid him as beneficiary of an only son killed in battle during the war was declined today by Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills.

The offer was made by Charles F. Thompson of Philadelphia in the following letter to Mr. Mills:

"Thinking that perhaps I could do my share to help my government the same as I did during the world war, when I gave every dollar I had to help pay the cost, I wish to make this offer to you.

"I am getting to be an old man—my soldier boy was killed in battle—the only boy I had. I receive insurance of $57.50. I have saved from that about two thousand dollars, which you can have the use of [without interest] and my government can pay it back to me again when things get better.

"Will you please answer and let me know if it is needed. Although it is not much I will send it to you at once."

In reply the secretary notified Mr. Thompson there was no law under which the treasury might accept his offer, and that he was therefore forced to decline.

ASK EMPLOYERS OF BRITAIN TO BE TAX COLLECTORS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 20.—A memorandum was sent out by the board of inland revenue today inviting all employers of large staffs to help their employés meet the onerous income tax assessments through a voluntary monthly installment scheme by which the payments would be deducted from the salary of each.

The action answers the question of whether some means could not be found to lift the burden of paying three-quarters of the total tax on Jan. 1. This will now be spread over six months if the employers decide to accept the offer. Deductions from salaries will be made monthly for six months, beginning in October and ending in March, for the three-quarters due the first of the year and the following six months for the remaining fourth, which is payable on July 1.

The employers will pay the deductions into the treasury on dates to be arranged later. The first payment, however, will come sometime in January and the second before the end of March. The scheme will effect considerable saving for the government through eliminating the machinery of sending individual notices to thousands of taxpayers.

DISARM ENVOYS PROMISE FRANCE "CONCESSIONS"

Tardieu Is Lured Back by Mysterious Deal.

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, April 20.—The world disarmament conference, which for more than two months has not been able to reach any conclusions, is expected really to come to life tomorrow with the arrival of Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain, which was scheduled, and of Premier Tardieu of France, which wasn't.

Everybody will be here for two days—Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister; Chancellor Bruening of Germany; Tardieu, who has been here before, and Secretary of State Stimson and MacDonald, the new members. Some kind of clinch, where clinches have been scrupulously avoided, is expected.

Tardieu Changes His Mind.

But Tardieu is not coming just for a dog fight. He was not coming at all until today after two conversations. One was when Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, called in Aubert of the French delegation. The other was in Paris, where American Ambassador Edge called on Tardieu.

For Tardieu wasn't going to come. Feeling that he is isolated and would encounter at Geneva nothing but an Anglo-American-German-Italian offensive on his security demands, he was prepared to sulk in his tent.

Stimson tried to persuade him at Paris that there is no Anglo-American plot behind the Gibson disarmament plan, which has now become a "suggestion." He tried to tell Tardieu that the United States will not stand in the way if France can organize a European understanding on security. Apparently that was not enough.

But today somebody gave Tardieu the idea that if he would consent to come he might get some satisfaction on security which he would rather like on the eve of the French elections.

The conference has now reached a crisis comparable with that reached in London in 1930 when the naval conference ran against French security demands. But here the French play a bigger rôle and there are no detours. What concession, if any, MacDonald is willing to make to the French thesis, now that Stimson says the United States is ready to bless it—although there is no evidence that anything like the resolution of neutrality of Senator Capper has been offered—remains to be seen.

Tardieu certainly has been promised something to get him here, even if it is only an opportunity to boom his program without running the risk of defeat, which would be fatal to him in the elections.

U. S. Sidetracks Own Plan.

Ambassador Gibson today quietly asked adjournment of discussion on the most important point in the American proposals made at the beginning of the conference. This is the seventh, advocating "computation of numbers of armed forces on the basis of effectiveness necessary for maintenance of internal order, plus some suitable contingent for defense."

This is the heart, of course, of the whole American plan, which is yet to be expanded. To have discussed it today would have been to invite disaster all around with the French unsatisfied on security which he would rather like on the eve of the French elections.

Stimson invited discussion of the principle of qualitative disarmament, taking great pains to make it clear to the French that it is not directed against their demand for an international organization for peace. This will be the scene for the next few days. Everybody can get into a clinch with, it appears, no danger of a knockout.

Premiers Travel Together.

PARIS, April 20.—(AP)—Premier Tardieu and Prime Minister MacDonald left on the same train tonight for Geneva. Tardieu made a sudden decision to go immediately to the scene of the disarmament conference. He made up his mind after a lengthy talk with MacDonald, which was followed by a shorter conversation with United States Ambassador Edge. MacDonald had flown over from London on his way to Geneva.

WILL TALK ON COUNTERFEITING.

Robert D. Clark of the United States secret service, will address the meeting tonight of the Lake Shore Men's club, Granville and Lakewood avenues. Mr. Clark has taken an active part in the apprehension of counterfeiters in this district during the last four years.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver — constipation—you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

NEW 20 MILLION ILLINOIS RELIEF BILL PRESENTED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., April 20.—[Special.]—A request for an additional $20,000,000 for unemployment relief was made in the upper house today by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission in a bill introduced by Senator Richard J. Barr of Joliet.

The request was made after Edward L. Ryerson Jr., chairman of the commission, submitted the first interim report of its work, in which it was declared funds will be exhausted by Aug. 1. The commission has only $2,600,673 in cash on hand. Although $18,750,000 in tax anticipation warrants were issued against the original $20,000,000 relief appropriation, the drive to sell the warrants was halted a month ago with $6,250,000 of the securities unsold.

The report stated the commission has allocated $9,899,327 to various counties in the state for relief, of which $9,541,277 went to Cook county and the balance of $358,050 to seventeen downstate counties. In the rest of the state five counties have made requests for money, twenty-one have made informal requests or inquiries, and 59 counties have asked no unemployment aid to date.

Summary of Situation.

The $18,750,000 to be raised from the sale of tax anticipation warrants was to have lasted from last Feb. 6 to March 1, 1933. In summarizing the need for an additional $20,000,000, the report stated:

1. The $18,750,000 will be exhausted Aug. 1.
2. Total relief needs during the fall and winter of 1932-33 will be considerably greater than at the present time.
3. Private relief funds available during the coming fall and winter will probably be less than those of last year.
4. Local public funds available for relief during the coming fall and winter will probably not greatly exceed the funds available last year. It was the insufficiency of these funds and of privately contributed funds which led to the first state appropriation.

Of the funds allocated to Cook county to May 1, $4,346,677 was given to the Joint Emergency Relief Fund of Cook county and distributed by it to various organized charities, $5,077,850 to the county bureau of public welfare, and $116,750 to the Work Relief Committee of Cook county.

"Need Greater in Cook."

Monthly allocations in Cook county, where the "need is greater than the needs of all other Illinois counties combined," were $2,846,850 in February, $3,399,350 in March, and $3,295,077 for April. For the period from May 1 to Sept. 30, 1932, the commission estimates it will need $15,000 alone for Cook county.

The sums already allocated to downstate counties are: Franklin, $10,000; Henry, $10,000; Kane, $25,000; Lake, $20,000; Madison, $24,800; La Salle, $27,100; Massac, $1,200; McLean, $38,000; Perry, $1,500; Randolph, $1,150; Rock Island, $40,800; St. Clair, $27,700; Saline, $13,000; Wabash, $1,000; Will, $83,000; Williamson, $8,800; and Winnebago, $25,000.

At the time the bill was submitted, it was the general opinion of members of both houses that the relief bill would be lost in the shuffle and that the last minute of the assembly work would pass early Friday morning. Hopes were raised, however, when certain members, including Speaker Shanahan of the house, pointed out there must be a session next week in order to confer legislative authority for the postponement of the penalty date on Cook county tax bills to May 1.

Situation Left in Doubt.

The latter date had been agreed upon in a conference of leaders of the two chambers. It was also agreed that action could not be taken until next week, but some leaders were discouraged about the prospects of the attendance next week.

Mr. Ryerson said he had not contemplated sponsoring the bill asking for the $20,000,000 when he came to Springfield today.

"I came down merely to submit the report," he said. "The report, of course, stressed the need for $20,000,000. We had worried as to how the money might be procured. As the report was about to be presented we thought there would be no time like the present to make the demand in view of discussion that the legislature might soon adjourn."

Mr. Ryerson prepared to leave Springfield late in the afternoon for Chicago so that he might confer with leaders on securing support for the bill, but remained to make his plea by long distance telephone.

The senate postponed action on the Courtney resolution for a 10 per cent cut in state salaries and another Courtney proposal for an effort to discover some way of sparing small home owners from the danger of confiscation of their properties for nonpayment of taxes.

COOK BOARD SURPRISED.

County officials expressed surprise yesterday on the submission of the bill in the state senate to give an additional $20,000,000 to the Illinois emergency relief commission for unemployment relief in the state.

"We never heard of it," said President Emmett Whealan of the county board, voicing general sentiment. "Before I sponsor any bill for more money I want an audit of all accounts of the commission. There has been criticism of the body for excessive expenditures. At the rate they are now going they'll be broke by July 1. They got $20,000,000, which they said would last to March 1, 1933."

Value of Holdings May Exceed $10,000,000.

The late Joseph Leiter, sportsman and financier, left the bulk of his estate in trust for his widow, Mrs. Juliette Leiter, during her lifetime. At her death the trust will terminate, the property will go to his children, Nancy, 15 years old, and Thomas, 20 years old.

This was learned yesterday when Attorney Alfred M. Rogers of the law firm of Mayer, Meyer, Austrian & Platt made public the terms of Mr. Leiter's will. The will itself will be filed in the Probate court today.

Mr. Leiter's personal fortune, according to Attorney Rogers, is considerably less than that of his father, the late Levi Z. Leiter, whose $30,000,000 trust estate was the subject of one of the most famous lawsuits in Cook county.

Fortune May Exceed $10,000,000.

Until an appraisal of the holdings is made neither the attorney nor Darrow W. Fulton, vice president of the Zeigler Coal and Coke company and a trustee of Mr. Leiter's estate, would hazard an estimate of the total value. They indicated, however, that Mr. Leiter's fortune may exceed $10,000,000.

One of the first provisions in the will, which was executed in Florida on Feb. 28, 1932, less than two months before Mr. Leiter's death from pneumonia on April 12, made the widow the beneficiary of a life estate in the major portion of his possessions. In a paragraph addressed to his son Mr. Leiter stated: "I request that Thomas permit my wife, Juliette, during her life to use the house at Dupont circle, Washington, for herself and as a common home for the children." The house itself is given to Thomas.

Net Income to Widow.

The trustees named, Mrs. Leiter, Mr. Fulton, and Attorney Rogers, are instructed to pay the net income from the trust to the widow. If the income falls below $30,000 a year, the will orders that the deficiency be made up from the principal of the trust. "for it is my intention that Mrs. Leiter shall receive at least $30,000 every year of her life," the will recited.

The children will divide one-quarter of the income of their grandfather's trust, which was given to Joseph Leiter with the provision that it go to his children at his death. This income, according to the attorneys, accrues from approximately $2,500,000.

The more specific bequests provide that Thomas be given his father's racing stable and all property holdings in Louisiana. He also is given the famous Leiter library and collection of Americana begun by his grandmother, Mrs. Mary Leiter. Included in these collections are portraits of Levi Leiter by Bonnet and a portrait of Mrs. Mary Leiter.

To his daughter, Nancy, Mr. Leiter willed his holdings of securities in the Washington Gas, Light and Coke company and the American Securities and Trust company of Washington. These, according to Attorney Rogers, amount to approximately $1,000,000. To her also will go the Chain Bridge home if the trustees still hold the property at the death of Mrs. Leiter.

The entire trust estate will be divided between the children at the death of their mother, according to the will. At the coming of age of both children they will be made coexecutors.

The last paragraph of the will provides that if both children die without issue the trust shall be divided equally between four nieces and nephews and the two daughters of Mr. Fulton, whom Mr. Leiter designates as "my friend and associate."

Two Living Here Now.

Mrs. Leiter and her son, who is employed at the real estate firm of Winston & Co., are living at 44 Banks street. Miss Leiter is in a private school at Aiken, S. C. They will not appear when the will is filed, but one of them must appear later when the formalities of its admission to probate are carried through.

The largest single item in the estate, the attorneys said, is the 45,000 shares of the Zeigler Coal and Coke company, which Mr. Leiter held. The par value of this stock is $100, but unofficially the company is valued at more than $5,000,000.

Mr. Leiter was born in 1868. Among his most famous ventures was the wheat corner attempted when he was a youth of 25. Ultimately he lost $17,000,000 in cash and paper profits. In later years Mr. Leiter was known as a race enthusiast.

BRAVERY JUST BUNK, SAYS WAR HERO, CITED FOR DECORATION

New York, April 20.—[Special.]—Bravery in most cases is "just bunk," in the opinion of Robert K. Lane of Glen Ridge, N. J., who is to be cited for the Order of the Purple Heart, a decoration created by George Washington, "for highly meritorious service," and only recently revived.

As Mr. Lane explains it, he will receive this honor from the government because he repaired a signal wire in the Argonne during the world war while "under direct observation of the Germans, but unaware of it."

Mr. Lane was wounded while repairing the wire, but continued work until a message had been transmitted over it, according to the war department citation.

"If I had known the German snipers were watching me, probably I wouldn't have been where I was," Mr. Lane remarked. "You know what bravery is—a lot of it is just bunk."

The Order of the Purple Heart was recently revived by the war department in order to honor soldiers for exceptional gallantry in action after having been wounded.

THREE RACKET SUSPECTS SEIZED IN POLICE RAID

A squad of police, led by Lieut. Thomas O'Hara of the Cragin station, raided the Midwest Real Estate Exchange offices at 4415 Belmont avenue last night and arrested three men for investigation in an allegedly fake veterans' picnic enterprise. They will be turned over to the state's attorney's office today.

The veterans' enterprise was under the name of the American Veterans' shelter. A picnic for the shelter was to be given on Aug. 7 at Elm Tree grove, 6551 Irving Park boulevard. Three weeks ago solicitors were hired to sell tickets for $1, $2, and $3 apiece. One, a girl living in Riverside, tried to sell tickets near the Hines hospital and there learned that the shelter was probably bogus. She notified Sergt. A. Vickery of the Riverside police, and he in turn reported to Cragin. The raid followed.

Those seized last night are Sol Block, 5005 Sheridan road; Harry Kirst, 3319 North Drake avenue, and George Fairchild, Maywood. Kirst was arrested last October when federal deputy marshals and police raided the offices of the Chicago Infant Free Milk depot, a racket organization which operated in the name of charity. Jacob Karchmer, head of the milk depot, was subsequently sentenced to two years in federal prison for using the mails to defraud.

LOST UGLY FAT

Her Husband Says She Looks Five Years Younger!

There is a certain weight at which every woman looks her loveliest—not skinny underweight nor pendulous overweight, but normal weight. We find artists, doctors, theatrical producers (and husbands!) all agreed upon this point. "My husband says I look five years younger," writes this lady of 29 who—thanks to her daily dose of Kruschen Salts—has unburdened her body of 18 pounds of ugly fat. Read her letter:—

"Having heard from a friend of mine that she had lost considerable weight since taking Kruschen Salts, I started using them in July last when I weighed 177 lbs. I have lost weight steadily since then, and am now 150 lbs.—my normal weight. Moreover, I feel brighter and more energetic in every way.

I have inquired of my dressmaker my measurements which in August last were bust 40, hips 45½, waist 33½ inches which is normal for my height, which is 5 ft. 8 in. My age is 29. My husband is a very severe critic. He says I look five years younger. There is no other reason for my loss of weight except Kruschen, as I do not take any particular diet."

(Mrs.) S. B. London, England.

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that will last four weeks costs but a trifle—take as directed every morning. When the jar is empty get on the scales and see how many pounds you have lost. Attention to diet will help—cut down on pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes.

But remember this: to take off fat harmlessly and SAFELY be sure for your health's sake that you ask for and get Kruschen Salts. Get them at any druggist in the world and if the results one bottle brings do not delight you—do not joyfully satisfy you—why money back.

INFLATION MOVE GAINS HEADWAY IN WASHINGTON

Backers Want 2 Billion in Currency.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 20.—[Special.]—The movement for a "controlled inflation" of the currency, as means of halting deflation and restoring higher commodity prices, is gaining a tremendous headway in congress. It is gaining converts daily and within a fortnight is likely to be the foremost question before the country.

ARTHUR CAPPER. [Harris & Ewing Photo.]

The free silver inflationists, striving to revive William J. Bryan's issue of 1896, are now in a state of almost total eclipse by twentieth century greenbackers, who would start Uncle Sam's printing presses turning out more than two billion dollars additional currency in order to cheapen the dollar and thereby boost prices. Only, these greenbackers of today, disowning their reputed political ancestry, assert that they are proposing not flat money but paper money supported by 40 per cent gold.

Bonus Backers Behind It.

The momentum gained by the movement is due largely to a joining of forces by the inflationists and the advocates of immediate cash redemption of the veterans' adjusted service certificates due in 1945, which would cost the government two billions, 400 millions. The bonus backers have gathered to their support the inflationists by proposing to finance the redemption by increasing the volume of currency to the extent required.

A subcommittee has favorably recommended to the house banking and currency committee the Goldsborough bill, sponsored by the Democratic leadership of the house, which provides for "controlled inflation" of the currency by the federal reserve board and the full committee will consider the measure tomorrow. The aim of this bill is the issuance of sufficient additional currency to deflate the value of the dollar to its 1926 level and thereby "reflate" prices of commodities.

Capper Presents Views.

Senator Arthur Capper [Rep., Kas.] said today that "if the financial leaders block this dollar stabilization plan congress may be forced to adopt" the inflation proposals of the bonus legislation advocates.

"This plan," said the senator, "is for congress to take direct action, print 2,000 to 2,500 million dollars of paper money and distribute that paper money to every nook and cranny of the country by paying it to the veterans of the world war. The vehicle for this distribution would be the cash payment of the soldiers' bonus through this issue of paper money.

"This plan would send more currency everywhere. No question of that. For instance, soldiers in Kansas would be given 35 million dollars of this paper money to spend. And they probably would spend it.

Sees Cash Bonus Threat.

"Now I realize that the federal reserve board, through additional powers given it by the Reconstruction Finance corporation and the Glass-Steagall legislation, now is working for a slight inflation. But its effects are hard for the people—and apparently the bankers—to see. And unless the federal reserve board creates a controlled inflation equivalent in effects to that contemplated by the cash bonus payment plan, congress may feel that it should be forced to pass cash bonus payment legislation."

Senator Capper added that the only feasible means of "equalizing debts, interest, and taxes on the one hand with commodity prices and salaries and wages on the other would seem to be a reasonable inflation in our monetary system."

Representative Wright Patman [Dem., Tex.], author of the cash bonus bill, says that "we need more money in circulation," and that payment of the bonus in currency "will cause moderate inflation, which is very much needed at this time and which is being advocated by the President, bankers, economists, financiers, and others and will in no way endanger the gold standard."

"We are now on the double gold standard," he went on, "having twice as much gold as the 40 per cent gold standard requires. This plan can become effective at once and the money distributed in payment of the debt to the veterans in every nook and corner of America. Purchasing power will be placed into the hands of consumers; commodity prices will rise; wheels of industry will commence to turn to supply demands from consumers; stocks, bonds, and property of all kinds will be more valuable and the general welfare will be promoted. The payment can be made in this way without a bond issue, without additional taxes, without paying interest, and without unbalancing the budget.

"No one can call it flat money. It is no more 'printing press' money than any other paper currency. One may ask, 'Why not issue all the money you want that way?' The answer is, 'We do not have sufficient gold to issue an unlimited amount. The 40 per cent gold reserve required limits the amount that may be issued.' One may ask, 'Why not pay off part of the deficit in that way?' Part of the deficit can be taken care of by paying federal employés in currency as long as we have a sufficient gold base. That is one of the reasons I voted against the pending tax bill."

Thomas Author of Bill.

Senator Elmer Thomas [Dem., Okla.] is the author of a cash bonus redemption bill providing for the issuance of the necessary amount of currency against bonds to be issued by the government and deposited with federal reserve banks. The effect would be to double the volume of money in circulation.

"The bill, if enacted, said Senator Thomas, "will serve notice to the people that money, instead of getting scarcer and thereby dearer, will become more plentiful, and to such extent as it becomes more plentiful it will become cheaper.

"Such notice that money is to become more plentiful and thereby cheaper will have the immediate effect of thawing out the money frozen in hidden places as well as the money in the safety deposit boxes and the credit and money in the bank vaults of the country.

Sees Gain in Business.

"Such notice will serve to cause merchants to place orders to replenish their empty shelves, and such orders will react on wholesalers, factories, the producers of ray materials, and on each and every class of wage earners.

"As money comes down in buying power commodity prices of all kinds will rise, and this is the identical end that all save the favored few are now demanding should be accomplished."

The leading farmers' organizations began agitating last year for legislation such as that proposed in the Goldsborough bill and for such action to check deflation as the federal reserve board initiated a couple of weeks ago. The federal reserve banks have begun the purchase of from 75 to 100 millions of government securities a week in order to expand credit, cheapen money, and start commodity prices upward again.

Gov. Eugene Meyer Jr. of the federal reserve board feels that this is as far as it is safe to go in the direction of inflation. He opposes the Goldsborough bill and the bonus redemption financing plan as dangerous inflation.

HYDE DEFENDS EXPENSES; ADDS SLUR AT CHICAGO

Washington, D. C., April 20.—[Special.]—Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde, in an address here tonight, struck back at critics of government extravagance with the assertion that the "demands of the states and the people" rather than the "work of bureaucracy" have brought about the increased cost of government.

"Beyond a doubt," said Mr. Hyde, "there exists in the vast and complicated machinery of the government some of the sinister scheming and reaching for larger powers which is covered by the general term bureaucracy. Nevertheless it is not bureaucracy which has built the machine and added to our tax burdens. The real culprit is the demand which has come from the people, from organizations of class, or from special interests to relieve local burdens or selfish interests out of the federal treasury."

Evidently in answer to the recent attack on government expenditures delivered in a Chicago speech by Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the TRIBUNE, Secretary Hyde stated:

"One genial editor, in a recent speech charged us with being racketeers. This criticism would have been passed over as mild and reasonable except for the fact that the editor resides in Chicago and spoke with that authority."

M. P. RIPS BRITAIN FOR OMITTING DEBT PROVISION

Says U. S. Has Already Told Its View.

LONDON, April 20.—(AP)—The omission from the British budget of any provision for war debt payment to the United States was assailed in the house of commons today by Maj. C. R. Attlee, speaking for the Labor opposition.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain, who presented the budget in parliament yesterday, apparently worked on the principle that he wouldn't have to make any American payment, the Labor member asserted.

Ignore Borah's Speech.

"There is already a reminder from the United States that there is not the slightest chance of our getting any relief from that quarter," he continued. "Therefore the chancellor hasn't really met the budget situation in this respect at all."

Members of the house were uncertain about the precise nature of the American "reminder" to which Maj. Attlee referred. Senator Borah's speech in the senate yesterday, in which he said cancellation would throw the entire debt burden on the American taxpayer, was virtually ignored by the British press. There was no discussion of it, either by editors or by any of the usual commentators.

Back Chancellor's View.

The British press and public have paid little attention to the section of the budget dealing with reparations and war debts. Where the question has been discussed at all—whether in newspaper editorials or in conversations in parliamentary lobbies—the usual attitude has been that Chamberlain obviously could not bring either reparations or war debts into the budget because the whole question of international indebtedness remains to be dealt with at the Lausanne conference.

It was pointed out that the chancellor specifically announced his decision to hold these accounts "in suspense," and remarked that this implied no change in the government's policy. When the Lausanne conference is over, he said, he will submit to parliament "whatever proposals may be necessary" to give effect to the measures there agreed upon.

Demands Pound Be Pegged.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 20.—A strong plea for an early declaration by the British government of its general intention regarding the stabilization of the pound sterling was made by Sir Robert Horne, former chancellor of the exchequer, during the budget debate in the house of commons tonight.

Horne's suggestion was to fix the value roughly corresponding to the 29 per cent fall in wholesale prices since 1926. One figure mentioned was $3.50. Horne declared there is only one consideration which seemed to make it difficult for the treasury and the Bank of England to keep the pound from going too high.

Tells Rumor About U. S.

"There are rumors that America might go off the gold standard," he said. "Frankly, I do not believe anything of the kind can or will happen. The power and resources of the United States are quite sufficient to deal with any situation that might arise. It would be a great disaster if America went off the gold standard."

Other members spoke in a similar vein, insisting that foreign exchange gambling will continue as long as the uncertainty about the pound continues.

Replying for the government, Maj. W. E. Elliott, financial secretary for the treasury, said he was unable to state the ultimate rate or time of stabilization of the pound.

Visits Children

Rosetta Duncan, the "Topsy" of the stage, who is now appearing here on a vaudeville bill, spent most of yesterday morning visiting the children at Chicago Commons, settlement house at 955 Grand avenue. Miss Duncan is the remaining member of the Duncan sisters team now on the stage, her sister, Vivian, having retired after her marriage to Nils Asther, the film actor.

ROLPH TO REVEAL MOONEY PARDON DECISION TODAY

San Francisco, Cal., April 20.—(AP)—Gov. James Rolph Jr. expects to make known his decision on the pardon application of Thomas J. Mooney tomorrow before leaving for Richmond, Va., to attend a governors' conference.

He said he would announce his findings "as soon as possible after noon." He said "there are still some matters under investigation."

Owensville, Ind., April 20.—[Special.]—Fifty-eight years ago Mr. and Mrs. Beals Lee came here from England. Today Mr. Lee died, aged 81. Seven hours later his wife, 78, also died, unaware of her husband's demise.

NATIONS AIDED BY MORATORIUM MUST SIGN UP

U. S. Sends Requests for Formal Agreements.

Washington, D. C., April 20.—[Special.]—Coincident with the debts discussions today it was learned the state department late last month and early this month, acting for the treasury, sent to the principal debtor countries forms on which to make their legal acknowledgment of their indebtedness to the United States in respect to the deferred payments, aggregating more than 250 millions during the present moratorium.

The interest was fixed at 4 per cent, a question which was left open last summer when the agreement for the moratorium was concluded. Repayment was stipulated to be made over a period of ten years, as called for in the agreement. The requests were transmitted through the foreign embassies and legations here and were mailed to Europe. Sufficient time, it was said, has not elapsed for responses to be received.

Two Not Notified.

All the debtors of the United States were advised on the subject except Austria and Greece, which have financial obligations with the league of nations stipulating they can make no agreements with other creditors without the consent of the league. The sums they owe the United States are small.

Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.], a powerful member of the finance committee, expressed the opinion today that the 1933 budget would be balanced regardless of whether the $269,900,000 in debt payments were received from the European nations.

Won't Extend Moratorium.

He also declared that any plan to extend the moratorium after June 30 "could not be passed through congress," and that any representative of the government who initiated such a move or gave European nations encouragement would be rebuked by the American people.

Senator Harrison held it essential that the government, in framing its budget proposals, include as probable income the debt payments due, pointing out that to disregard them would be seized upon by debtor nations as evidence that this country was prepared to make further concessions.

Total payments by foreign governments due to the United States in 1933 are $269,976,581. Of this amount approximately 200 million dollars, of which $195,094,700 represents interest payments, would be available to the treasury to match against current expenditures in balancing the budget. Payments of $69,138,800 toward reducing the principal must, under the law, be used only for debt reduction.

SAVE ON ANYBODY ELSE, NOT US, AIDS OF HOOVER PLEAD

Cabinet Members Rush to Halt Revenue Cuts.

be excepted from the 10 per cent provision. He also urged that certain public building projects be delayed.

"The senate resolution specifically excludes savings through suspension of the letting of contracts for public buildings," he said. "Towns and cities can, during these trying days, wait a year or two longer for a new building of a monumental character. What is sacred about a new postoffice in times like these?"

Mr. Mills then launched a demand for what he termed constructive economy.

"No one," he asserted, "is more vitally concerned in reducing the cost of government than the head of the treasury department, responsible for conducting the fiscal affairs of the nation in a time of great difficulty when our every effort must be directed towards balancing the budget and maintaining the public credit. Economy is essential.

"But it should be constructive economy achieved through the elimination of waste, the curtailment of unnecessary activities, the postponement of projects not now essential to the public welfare and the promotion of greater efficiency.

"An arbitrary cut applying uniformly and without discretion to every bureau and activity alike, irrespective of its importance, and irrespective of its efficiency or ability to bear the cut, is not businesslike and, as I shall show, may not even be economy."

In explanation of his statement that the senate plan would not effect economy, Mr. Mills said:

"A flat cut applied to every bureau of the treasury department, without o furlough provision and without granting any discretion to the executive as to where the savings can best be made, will not save money, but will cost more than the amount saved."

Secretary Mills said the commissioner of internal revenue advised him that if the 10 cent cut were taken by reducing the force of internal revenue agents the revenue from the new tax bill might be reduced $95,000,000.

Ohioans Demand Savings.

As the administration warred with congress over the manner in which economies should be affected a group of representative Ohio business men took a demand for drastic federal retrenchment direct to the White House. Senator Simeon D. Fess [Rep., O.] Republican national chairman and close friend of the President escorted the delegation, representing the Ohio state chamber of commerce to the White House and listened to their plea for reductions in federal salaries and reduction in taxation.

George S. Case of Cleveland acted as spokesman for the Ohio group during the conference with President Hoover. In presenting the views of the delegation, Mr. Case said in part.

"We come to you in behalf of our respective organizations to stress the vital necessity of immediate retrenchment in the expenditures of the federal government.

"The total of the tax burden, both federal and state, is now beyond the ability of the nation to pay. This staggering burden has not been reduced in proportion to the shrinkage of the nation's income.

"It is considered that the federal government cannot continue this burden without unduly prolonging the depression.

Limit Government to Necessities.

"We are appreciative of the efforts that are being made by the administration and by congress, which, if successful, will tend to reduce this burden, but it is considered that the steps thus far proposed are inadequate to effect the reduction that is necessary. It is our belief that drastic retrenchment in the scope of federal activities of the federal government presents the only solution of the present difficulty.

"It is our view that many of the activities of the federal government, though worthy in character, should be eliminated during the period of the present emergency, and that the operations of the government should be during this period limited to those of a necessary character.

"It is considered that as one step in the process of curtailing government expenditures salary reductions of federal employés must be made. In practically all businesses reductions in pay have been made as a necessary expedient, and it is thought at this time that the government should follow the lead that has been set by its citizens."

The house economy committee cut about $15,000,000 from the omnibus bill during the day.

BROKER FACING PRISON LEAPS 20 FLOORS TO DEATH

New York, April 20.—[Special.]—Facing five to ten years in prison, James M. Fairbanks, 40, a world war hero, who stole $183,460.73 from Tucker, Anthony & Co., bankers, 120 Broadway, jumped from the window of his room on the twentieth floor of the Hotel Dixie just off Times Square today. He landed on the roof of a three story extension and was killed.

Fairbanks killed himself at about the time the court of general sessions, where Judge Max S. Levine was to have sentenced him, was convening. He had pleaded guilty to grand larceny on March 14. A widowed mother and two children living at South Acton, Mass., from which place he came to New York to become office manager of Tucker, Anthony & Co. eight years ago, survive him.

It appears that when Fairbanks came to work for Tucker, Anthony & Co., he discovered that a ring of employés, about half a dozen in number, were systematically robbing the firm. He had his chance of getting in on the game or exposing it and elected to go along with the thieves.

The thefts were not discovered until May 1, 1931, when the books of the firm were audited. The other thieving members of the staff made partial restitution and were discharged. Fairbanks was arrested and indicted.

WOMAN DIES AFTER FALL.

LOST! 20 Lbs. Of FAT

Well Known Chicago Woman Jubilant! Reduced Waist Four Inches—Limbs More Shapely—Feels, Oh, So Light and Full of Pep!

Suppose you weighed 155 and your mirror constantly reminded you of a double chin, heavy arms and legs, large hips and bust.

And suppose this over-fat condition made you too heavy for your own feet—until you felt constantly all dragged out, stomach upset with gas and indigestion, and you were grouchy and irritable.

And then you tried one thing after another—and you're all ready to give up in despair.

Such was the dilemma of Miss Louise Serina, 6256 N. Rockwell St., Chicago. She read about Bonkora, the safe, natural way to take off excess poundage by cleansing wastes from the intestines and removing retained moisture from fatty tissues. But let her tell the story:

"I wanted to reduce badly, for I was far too heavy. I tried Bonkora, and the results certainly came fast. I lost 20 lbs. of fat and 4 inches of my waist line—from 155 to 135 lbs. in three weeks."

You may not lose 20 pounds in three weeks. But if you have excess fat you can lose it in the famous "3 easy stages" as shown in this picture. For the next week, before meals, take a little Bonkora, the new Battle Creek treatment, in half a glass of water. No need to starve. Eat as much as you want. G. O. P. LIBERALS SAY CONVENTION IS DRY PACKED

Warn Party Leaders of Election Wreck.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Protests that avowed drys have been picked for key positions in the Republican national convention, making it look like homecoming week for the Anti-Saloon league, were raised yesterday by liberal organizations.

L. J. DICKINSON. [A. P. Photo.]

A telegram was sent last night to Senator Simeon D. Fess, dry, national chairman, at Washington by the Republican Citizens' Committee Against National Prohibition, declaring that not a single liberal is on the slate of temporary convention officials which was picked last Saturday by the arrangements group of the Republican national committee, meeting at the Congress hotel.

Names of Drys Listed.

The liberal organization set forth that Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa, who was chosen for keynoter and temporary chairman with White House approval, is an "ardent dry." It declared that Congressman Bertrand H. Snell of New York, Republican leader of the house, who is supposed to have been agreed upon by party leaders at Washington for permanent chairman, is a dry.

Everett Sanders of Indiana, former secretary to President Coolidge, who was picked for sergeant at arms, is termed a dry in the message. So are Lehr Fess, son of the national chairman, who was chosen for assistant parliamentarian, and other convention officers. The whole setup, it declares, is prohibitionist.

As a parting shot the message asks whether the keynote speech is to be submitted to the Anti-Saloon league and the professional drys before delivery.

Warns of Party Wreck.

The message to Chairman Fess, sent by the local branch of the group of subscribers to former Republican campaigns who are pledged not to contribute this year unless the Republican party takes an uncompromising stand against prohibition, carried the signature of Raymond Pitcairn of Philadelphia, vice chairman. It said:

"All that remains to be done is the formality of having the convention called to order by a dry, presided over by a dry, keynoted by a dry and getting a dry member of the cabinet to place a dry in nomination for the presidency to run on a dry plank in a dry platform. How in the name of law and order do you expect to keep from wrecking the Republican party by such a program?

"The Republican Citizens' Committee Against National Prohibition wishes to enter vigorous protest against your filling key positions in the Republican national convention with ardent drys. Information carried in the press indicates you have already filled, or are planning to fill, every important office in the Republican national convention with avowed political drys.

No Liberal on List.

"So far not one single name representing a liberal has appeared on your slate. Plans already published indicate the permanent chairman will be an upstate New York dry, the keynoter an ardent dry from Iowa, and other important offices, such as sergeant at arms, parliamentarian, filled with drys.

"This action on your part is easily associated with the recent meeting of the dry board of strategy in Washington.

"Republican voters, the majority of whom are opposed to prohibition, have every right to resent this procedure.

HONEYMOON HALTS ARREST

BETTY BRONSON.
(Mrs. Ludwig Lauerhaus).

"As matters now stand the Republican national convention would seem to be nothing more than homecoming week for the Clarence True Wilsons, Scott McBrides and other Anti-Saloon leaguers and paid reformers. You claim that prohibition is not an issue. Then why do you fill all key positions with prohibitionists?"

Finish Canvass in Two Wards.

Canvass of the Republican vote in the 22d and 25th wards was completed yesterday by the election board. In the 25th the results announced by John S. Rusch, chief clerk, show that James J. Savage, entry of the Crowe camp, won for committeeman by 337 votes over William Parrillo, assistant United States district attorney. Savage has 3,435 votes, Parillo 3,098.

In the 22d ward Harry A. Steinmeyer won over Anthony L. Golusinski by 249 votes, the respective totals standing 1,572 and 1,323.

Warrant Held Up

Hollywood, Cal., April 20.—[Special.]—A bench warrant for the arrest of Betty Bronson, movie actress, was issued today. She was due before Court Referee N. I. Melville to explain nonpayment of a judgement of $796 entered against her last January because of a dental bill incurred by Miss Bronson's younger brother.

When it was explained to the court that Miss Bronson was honeymooning as Mrs. Ludwig Lauerhaus, the court ordered the warrant held up and served as soon as the honeymoon was ended.

15 HAYMARKET RIOT SURVIVORS WILL MEET MAY 1

Fifteen survivors of 176 policemen who on the night of May 4, 1886, marched from the Des Plaines street police station to quell anarchists in Haymarket square will meet May 1 in the Des Plaines street courtroom to conduct the business of the Association of Haymarket Riot Veterans.

They will recount their memories of the night of the riot when eight of their comrades were killed and 70 injured by a bomb tossed into their midst as they attempted to disperse the crowd. One of the members, John C. Gunderson, has died since the meeting last May.

Those expected to attend, according to Capt. Frank P. Tyrrell, 74 years old, president of the association, are Jeremiah A. Kennedy, 85 years old, treasurer; Andrew O'Day, 78 years old; Solomon C. Steele, 84 years old; John Sisk, 84 years old; Sergt. John Brown, 76 years old; Hugh McNeil, 77 years old; George W. Roycroft, 85 years old; John T. Gibbons, 74 years old; John Kinsella, 89 years old; Edward J. Hanley, 76 years old; John T. Hartford, 76 years old; Thomas Meany, 83 years old; Freeman Steele, 73 years old, and John J. Collins.

U. S. INSPECTORS ARREST BROKER AS A BUCKETEER

Postal inspectors raided the offices of Wilbur Spence at 10 North Clark street yesterday in pursuance of a crusade to drive bucket shop operators from the city. Spence, who was said to use the alias of Leo Brody and who lives at the Croydon hotel, came here from New York a few weeks ago and opened an investment office. On complaint of C. A. Hooper, 4531 West Gilman street, Madison, Wis., who said he lost $4,250 through Spence, the broker was charged with using the mails to defraud. He was arraigned before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker and held in $5,000 bond. Two men seized with him were released.

Plans were being made yesterday for the registration and licensing of investment brokers under the new law adopted by the legislature on Tuesday and which is awaiting Gov. Emmerson's signature. The new law will replace one that has been declared unconstitutional. The investigation of rumors that gangsters opposed the registration law and that they had been mulcting low class investment dealers by means of a racketeer association failed yesterday to be productive of evidence. Assistant State's Attorneys L. P. Holt and Herman J. Weinberg said they lacked sufficient evidence.

HOOVER WARNED AGAINST MOIST PARTY BY WOMEN

Feminine Drys Oppose a Wet G. O. P. Plank.

Washington, D. C., April 20.—[Special.]—Prominent women drys carried their fight against a national prohibition referendum right up to the White House today when they went to President Hoover and told him, nay, almost warned him, that he must not permit the Republicans to write into the party platform at Chicago a plank that was wet or even strategically moist.

MRS. HENRY W. PEABODY. [Acme Photo.]

"Be it resolved, That we cannot accept any recommendation by either party to present a dry candidate on a wet platform since we could not trust the sincerity of any candidate willing to lend himself to such a plan," was the way the resolution read.

Threatened with Defeat.

But a few moments later Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, chairman of the woman's national committee for law enforcement, which made the political prohibition pilgrimage to the President, put the threat of the ballot into the resolution when she said to reporters:

"If the Republican platform does contain a wet plank? Well, then, Mr. Hoover will have to take the consequences."

She is, however, confident that this will not occur.

"Mr. Hoover is our man," said this lady, who, it is remembered, recently fled the floods of bootleg liquor in her native Massachusetts for the anticipated aridity of Florida.

"And we trust he will not accept any wet or doubtful plank in the Republican platform. We trust him."

Then she added a hasty postscript: "Of course that does not mean that we do not trust some members of the party supporting him."

First Resubmission Protest.

In spite of the postcript, Mrs. Peabody's prohibition procession to the White House gains added significance because it is the first out and out protest to the resubmission plans which cabinet members and congressional associates of Mr. Hoover have recently indorsed.

Next to their concern over what may happen at the Chicago convention, the women expressed their dismay over what has already happened in England. In their resolution they didn't mention Ambassador Mellon or his glass of champagne. They merely said:

"We respectfully suggest that ambassadors to foreign countries be instructed that they are there to represent the interest and government of America and are under the protection of the American flag, which involves their respect for our constitutional law and their observance and defense of that law while they are in office."

Later, they admitted that the paragraph was directed at Mr. Mellon and the champagne in which he recently drank a toast to the English king.

Against All Changes.

The women further told the President in their resolutions that they were opposed to repeal and to modification; that they were against any increase in the medicinal liquor allowance to doctors and druggists; that they demanded greater prohibition enforcement, and that they were definitely against the resubmission plan, sponsored, they claimed, by a "fanatical minority in congress."

After holding up the November ballot as a threat to the President, the women went a step further in putting him on the "dry" spot by presenting him with a little booklet containing twelve excerpts from his own speeches, made since 1925. The brochure, entitled "President Hoover Has Spoken," contained not specific pronouncements on prohibition, but general indorsements of law enforcement.

This group, joining with other prohibition women, appeared before the senate judiciary subcommittee earlier in the day and told the chairman, Senator Blaine, that the United States is dry and will remain dry.

ROOSEVELT ASKS SANE ECONOMY IN GOVERNMENT

Opposes Curtailment of Humanitarian Work.

Rochester, N. Y., April 20.—[Special.]—A warning against excessive cuts in governmental social welfare activities in seeking general reduction of costs through the nation was sounded by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt at a luncheon of the International Society for Crippled Children in convention here today.

Halting on his return trip from the northwest, the New York executive, himself partially crippled, insisted that while economies in government, local, state and national, were imperative, essential humanitarian functions must not be curtailed.

The governor went on to avow that these functions must be maintained, not solely from the human aspect, but the broadly economic as well. He declared that expenditures in many branches of social aid by government brought back a far greater return through installation of the person aided as an active participant in the economic life instead of a drain on the community.

"It must be recognized," said the governor, "that the effect of the current condition has been to leave us all desirous of making economies in government. We have spent too largely in the past and all over the country there are calls for curtailment. Many activities of government can be curtailed. Some of them can be completely eliminated temporarily.

"But in the mad scramble to cut there is a danger that some of the humanitarian work carried on by the government may suffer to such an extent that future generations will be seriously affected. I do not need to point out to you that the work for the crippled child as an example is carried on only in part by the government. But there is cooperation between the government and the private agencies and there are parts of the work helped by the government itself.

"My plea is that in the next year—or perhaps it may be two or three years—those seeking to cut the cost of government do not lop off the essential aid for the crippled child."

ARREST FOURTH MAN IN PROBE OF KREUGER FRAUDS

STOCKHOLM, April 20.—(AP)—A fourth man was arrested today in connection with the investigation into the affairs of Ivar Kreuger, Swedish match king, who committed suicide in Paris last month.

Three others alleged to have been connected with manipulation of the Kreuger accounts were arrested last week.

The man arrested today was identified as a chartered accountant named Wendler, who with two others was appointed in 1930 to audit the Kreuger accounts.

UNCLE SAM'S HOG MARKET VENTURE A TALE OF WASTE

Cost to Taxpayers Runs Into Thousands.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

East St. Louis, Ill., April 20.—[Special.]—The vaulting ambitions of the government fed hog agencies, started in the stockyards here, stretched far beyond their scheme to get an iron-hand monopoly of the hog marketing. They planned a bureaucratic control with the aid of Washington of all live stock marketing and to drive private concerns out of that business. This despite the fact that sundry men with many millions have tried unsuccessfully to corner a food.

But their start shot farther skyward. They planned to establish new stockyard facilities and are reported here to be spending Uncle Sam's cash on that scheme in Iowa at present. This, in the face of the fact there are now stockyards at Chicago, Kansas City, Omaha, St. Paul, East St. Louis, St. Joseph, Denver, Fort Worth, Oklahoma, and Indianapolis in this part of the country.

Try Packing Business.

But that is not all. They obtained the legal power in their charter and the authority from the state of Illinois to engage in the complex and hazardous business of meat packing, at which J. Ogden Armour lost his fortune of an estimated $65,000,000.

As incredible as these aspirations may seem, they are part of the sworn testimony in the "hog boycott" case recently concluded. The start on this elaborate scheme was entrusted by the farm board to the National Order Buying company as buyer of hogs, and to the Producers' Live Stock Commission company as seller of hogs for the farmers.

Their almost unbelievable plans were beyond the dream stage of the Washington bureaucrats. The N. O. B.—National Order Buying company—obtained $300,000, of which $100,000 was to be used for operating expenses and the other $200,000 for establishing new stockyard facilities. It is reported here that some of that $200,000 has been spent in Iowa in building concentration yards for hogs.

Planned to Get Monopoly.

F. G. Ketner, manager of the N. O. B., obtained in the corporation of that company the right to do a packing business. In his application for permission to do business in Illinois he asked the right of "killing of live stock, preparing them for the market, of processing, packing, and curing meats and by-products." Asked on the witness stand whether he intended to branch out so far, Mr. Ketner replied: "No present plans for killing."

Another witness in the "hog boycott" case testified that she had asked Mr. Ketner about going into the packing business and he had argued with her in the success of a foreign government in the meat packing business. The first step in the plan was to get a monopoly of the hog business in East St. Louis. The producers sold the hogs for the farmers at one price, and the N. O. B. bought hogs for a lower price for eastern packers.

Lost $14,000 in 3 Months.

Another witness testified to certain incidents which the independents assert meant that Ketner's concern had sold one lot of hogs to eastern packers for 60 cents under the market. Still another witness said that four or five eastern packers continued to trade with the N. O. B. because they wanted hogs under the market price. By this process it was charged that the N. O. B. lost $14,000 in the first three months of its operations.

It was claimed by the independents these losses were incurred to drive them out of business. The money on which the N. O. B. operated came from the government treasury.

The farmers were enticed in by loans of government money which the favored agencies had obtained at interest rates of less than 4 per cent. Mr. Ketner admitted on the witness stand that the feeders' pool had lost about $75,000 in 1929. The testimony of another witness indicated that the loss was several hundred thousand dollars. The attorneys for the independents charged "that at present prices they have lost about $500,000 in their present sheep and lamb 'feeder pools.'"

Another Bill for Taxpayers.

One of the wheels in the machinery for promoting the plans of the live stock dreamers is a publication called the National Live Stock Producer. In addition to the other losses paid by the taxpayers of the nation they also will be called upon to pay $10,153.19 loss on this publication last year.

One of the humor phases of the "hog boycott" case is the fact that the oral arguments were heard by Charles F. Marvin, chief weather forecaster of the country. The contestants journeyed to Washington to present their oral statements to Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde on a date set by him.

Secretary Hyde found the independents guilty of boycotting the government fed hog agencies, suspended their licenses for 90 days, and then withheld the suspension during good behavior. But the independents had built such a hot fire under the N. O. B. that it withdrew from the live stock exchange.

POLICE SELL 80 AUTOS CALLED UNSAFE TO USE

Hayes Raps Auction of "Wrecks."

BY HAL FOUST.

Eighty automobiles were sold at auction by the police department yesterday for an average price of $22.11. They were abandoned and unclaimed vehicles removed from the streets in the last three months. Most of them had been in wrecks.

CHARLES M. HAYES

"Nine out of ten of these cars," said Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, "were in such condition that they should never be permitted to return to traffic. Traffic is already menaced with worn out, unsafe automobiles. These periodical police auction sales contribute to the hazards from cars with poor brakes, tires, lights or steering gears.

Abandoned by Owners.

"The original owners of these cars did not think enough of them to claim ownership. This was probably a fair estimate of their value.

"The city could aid in reducing the motor toll by insisting that the purchasers junk the automobiles rather than return them to the streets and highways. The total revenue to the city would probably be reduced slightly, but the public would benefit through a saving of lives."

Bargain Hunters at Sale.

A crowd of approximately 2,500 persons attended the public auction held on Navy pier. There were a few dealers in used parts in the crowd, but most of the bidders were bargain hunters looking for some junk that could be made to operate with a little tinkering.

The cars sold for as low as $5. The total revenue from the sale was $1,768.50. The auction was completed in two and a half hours. Almost all of the vehicles had to be towed from the pier, unable to operate on their own power.

$50,000 "BRIBE" CHARGE DENIED BY GRAIN HEAD

Huff Demands Accuser Face Committee.

The Rev. Clarence E. Huff, former minister and now president of the 20 million dollar Farmers' National Grain corporation, yesterday denied a charge by Edward E. Kennedy, secretary of the National Farmers' union, that Kennedy had been offered $50,000 of the grain corporation's money to vote for Mr. Huff's reelection as president of the farmers' union at the 1930 union convention in St. Paul.

"All I know is what I read in the newspapers," said Mr. Huff.

The former Kansas clergyman conceded that Kenendy may have controlled the three Illinois votes at the St. Paul convention, as Kennedy claims. He also said that there was a hot fight for the presidency between himself and John A. Simpson of Oklahoma, who defeated him. But he denied Kennedy's statement that in opposing Simpson he was violating a pledge that he would not run again for a union office so long as he headed the federally subsidized grain corporation.

Calls Charge False.

"The innuendo in Kennedy's statement is that I offered him the money, myself," said Mr. Huff. "The charge is false and ridiculous. I am hopeful that he will have the opportunity to repeat it before the senate investigating committee, which he is represented as being willing to do. In that way the charge can be disposed of.

Mr. Huff also denied Mr. Kennedy's claim that a $10,000 job and an unlimited expense account had been tendered him, providing he would cease his attacks on the grain corporation and its parent, the federal farm board. Kennedy's claim was that the offer had been made to him through a friend, Gregory Brunk, Des Moines attorney.

Seeking corroboration of his denial, Mr. Huff telegraphed Attorney Brunk, setting forth Kennedy's quoted statement and suggesting that Mr. Brunk refute it. No reply was made by the Des Moines lawyer last night though, in a telephone conversation, he said he had received Mr. Huff's query.

Refuses to Comment.

"I have no desire to enter into the controversy," said Mr. Brunk. "I do not care either to affirm or deny that Huff offered Kennedy the job."

Meanwhile at Kankakee, Mr. Kennedy, a former director of the grain corporation, contributed another chapter to his subject of "The Follies of the Farm Board." It is Kennedy's contention that the farm board, through its subsidiary, the grain corporation, is out to wreck the farmers coöperatives and erect on the ruins a political machine.

"At a meeting of the grain corporation directorate on Dec. 16, 1930, Mr. Huff brought up the question of abandoning the policy of operating through the stockholder members, each representing a farmer coöperative," said Mr. Kennedy. "I led the fight against it, and lost.

"Soon afterwards the workings of the new policy became manifest. The first coöperative to get the ax was the Farmers Elevator Association of Indiana. Saddled with federal loans, the association was about to go into bankruptcy, when a compromise was arranged whereby the grain corporation took it over."

FARM BUREAU IS SEEN NEAR BREAK WITH U. S. BOARD

Federal Agency Assailed in Secret Meeting.

BY PAUL POTTER.

The American Farm Bureau federation is at odds with the economic policies of the federal farm board and is suspicious of its political background, it was learned here yesterday.

EARL C. SMITH.

Eighteen officers of midwest state farm bureau organizations, important components of the federation, on Tuesday night ended a session behind closed doors in which criticism of the farm board was said to have been more bitter than the federation would care to reveal.

Several of the state leaders, according to unofficial information obtained yesterday, declared the farm board's present situation was making it increasingly difficult to maintain farm bureau membership in the middle west. The statements were made in the presence of Sam H. Thompson, former president of the federation and now a member of the farm board.

Consider Budget Cut.

At the same time, it was learned, a reduction in the federation's budget for its legislative and various other activities was being considered. Officers declined to comment on what retrenchment would be made, but it was learned that the farm bureau's claims in former years of one million farm members had dwindled to a few hundred thousand in recent months, with a big percentage of these in arrears on dues.

"The situation has become so serious in our state," declared one state organization leader, "that farmers no longer will join in large numbers while the farm bureau continues to be linked in name and by associations of its officers with the farm board agencies."

While the Farm Bureau federation has never gone on record in favor of the farm board, it always has voted in its annual meetings to "go along" with the federal marketing act in the hope that the act might be amended to include the principles of the old McNary-Haugen bills. The federation officers usually are consulted in appointments to the farm board, and most of the board members have come up from the ranks of farm bureau organizations, it was explained.

Represent Illinois Group.

The Illinois Agricultural association, largest state unit of the federation, was represented in the Tuesday sessions by Earl C. Smith, president, and George Metzger, secretary. Several of the Illinois association's subsidiary marketing coöperatives are affiliated with federally financed agencies of the farm board and have borrowed farm board funds for organization and financing of marketing agencies for grain, live stock, fruit, vegetables, and poultry products.

Yesterday the Illinois Agricultural association offices were found operating on the same basis of expenses, with some increases, as in the last two years. Depression among farmers had not caused any material reductions in its budget thus far, according to one employé interviewed. Mr. Smith would make no comment on the meeting of the state farm bureau officials on Tuesday.

JACOBS NAMES CHIEF AIDS IN ASSESSING JOB

The new divisions and officials in the assessor's office were named yesterday by Assessor J. L. Jacobs, who is completing the reorganization of his staff following approval of his program by the county board on Tuesday.

The office has been divided into the executive, administrative, real estate and personal property divisions. The heads of these respectively are the assessor and his chief deputy, Harry S. Cutmore, who directed the 1928 reassessment; Col. Gilbert F. Woods, who was director of the real estate service of the war department during the world war; Walter R. Kuehnle, a member of the technical staff during the 1928 reassessment, and H. Gordon Bollman, expert personal property appraiser.

The salary of Assessor Jacobs is $15,000 a year and with the 15 per cent economy cut will amount to $12,950. Cutmore's salary is $8,500. The others will receive $5,500 a year.

The auditor also issued a report showing the operating income of the forty banks as compared with the total expenses and the amount collected. Due to the fact some of the closed banks have income in excess of their present expenses, such as that from rent and interest, the auditor announces that the net profit for these twenty banks is $17,139. For the forty banks reporting so far this week, he said, the gross cost of the receiverships is 7.3 per cent and the net cost is .6 per cent.

HEARS SELF ACCUSED

BANK CASE JURY GETS 2 PICTURES OF MISS LINDGREN

Defense Calls Her Victim of Elmer Langguth.

CRIMINAL COURT.
Frank Novak and Arthur Matusick, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years each in Pontiac reformatory; Ennis Fair and Barnard Turner, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life each in the penitentiary by Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

A jury, which was selected in Judge Prystalski's court yesterday afternoon, alternately heard Miss Lavernge Lindgren, former cashier of the Peoples State bank of Maywood, described by the prosecution as a deliberate bank wrecker and by the defense as the innocent victim of Elmer P. Langguth, president of the bank who is now serving a term of 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary. The opening statements were made by Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Lounsbury for the state and by Attorneys Benedict Short and Joseph Z. Wilmer for the defense. Miss Lindgren is being tried on a charge of making false statements to bank examiners.

The jury was completed after nearly two days of questioning by the attorneys. The state pledged the jurors "not to allow the charm or good looks" of the defendant to sway them in their verdict. They are mostly married men. The defense attorneys asked the jurors not to visit the wrath of the community for the many bank failures on the head of the defendant.

Will Prove Statement False.

Prosecutor Lounsbury said the state would prove that the statement as made to the bank examiners just before the bank closed two years ago was false in many respects. Overdrafts were not listed, and the statement of assets was also falsified, the prosecutor said.

"We will prove that Miss Lindgren went into the bookkeeping department and told the bank employés that 'the bank examiners are coming and it is necessary to pull some sheets from the commercial ledger to make the books balance'," said the prosecutor.

Attorney Short told the jurors that his client was educated to be a teacher of household economy and that she had no banking experience or knowledge when Langguth gave her a job in the bank and after four years' of service promoted her to cashier. She knew nothing, he said, of Langguth's overdrafts or of the juggling of the books.

Will Take the Stand.

"She is going to take the witness stand and tell you all about it," said the defense attorney. "She left the bank a good deal poorer than she was when she entered its employ."

The state called several bank examiners as witnesses before court adjourned in the evening after an overtime session.

Judge Prystalski drew a laugh from the crowded courtroom when the last juror accepted, Max V. Wolff, 11239 Longwood drive, came hatless and coatless into the jury box. He told the judge he had left his hat and coat on a bench.

"You'd better get them," said the judge. "We are not responsible for anything here."

The judge indicated that he would sustain the defense contention that any social relationship between Langguth and Miss Lindgren was not material in the present trial. Prosecutor Charles J. Mueller said he would argue the question later.

Lake County (Ill.) Board Cuts Pay 2 to 10 Per Cent

By unanimous vote, the board of supervisors of Lake county, Ill., decided yesterday to make reductions of from two to ten per cent in the salaries of county employés. The action followed the election of Frank T. Stanton of Ingleside as chairman of the board. He announced a policy of economy. It was estimated that the cuts will result in annual savings of more than $12,000. The cuts are two per cent for those earning less than $125 monthly, four per cent for not more than $150, seven per cent for not more than $175, and ten per cent for all earnings more than $175. All except elected officials are affected.

HITLER AIMS FOR GERMAN POWER AGAIN ON SUNDAY

Five State Diet Elections to Be Held.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 20.—Adolf Hitler, chief and founder of Germany's National Socialist (Fascist) party, failed to win control of Germany in the presidential election, but he is out to get it next Sunday in the German state elections.

Five of the largest of Germany's seventeen states will elect new parliaments—Prussia, Bavaria, Wuerttemberg, Hamburg, and Anhalt. They total four-fifths of Germany in both area and population.

Hitler is concluding his present vote campaign without his "storm troops," dissolved recently by government decree, but his confidence in his ultimate ascension to power has not diminished in the least.

Concentrates on Prussia.

He is concentrating on Prussia, which with its 38,000,000 inhabitants represents more than 60 per cent of Germany and has 26 of the 65 representatives in the reichsrat.

Hitlerites claim they will get 171 of the 450 seats in the Prussian diet.

All German states have their own local parliaments, their own governments ruled by the parties in their parliaments. These governments in turn help run Germany's national government, through the national state council, or reichsrat, to which they send representatives for each 700,000 citizens, with a minimum of one delegate to each state.

Reichsrat Power at Stake.

Forty-four of the reichsrat's 65 members are represented in the states going to the polls on Sunday when the four year term of their parliaments expires. Simple arithmetic shows that if Hitler wins control of the state parliaments on April 24, he will be able to control the reichsrat.

There are many ways in which the reichsrat can make the federal government toe the mark. Its approval is needed by the federal government on all bills the federal government plans to submit to the reichstag.

In emergency cases, when the reichsrat proves refractory, the government may submit bills without the stamp of approval of the reichsrat, but that weakens the bills in the eyes of the reichstag. The reichsrat could veto the budget, for instance, and thus make it almost impossible for the government to get necessary funds.

Republicans in Control Now.

Socialists, Centrists, and Democrats, staunch supporters of the republic, have controlled Prussia and most of the German states almost since the end of the war. The voter now, in a time of discontent, distrusts them.

Hitler today celebrated his forty-third birthday. His followers feted him in almost fanatic adoration. From East Prussia where he toured the battlefields yesterday telling audiences that he, not President Paul von Hindenburg, is their savior, Hitler flew back to central Germany. Tonight he spoke at Dessau, Halle, Kassel, and Marburg.

INDICT PRESIDENT OF CLOSED INDIANA BANKS AS EMBEZZLER

Michael Kozacik Jr., president of the defunct Indiana State Bank of East Chicago and the First Indiana State Bank of Gary, also closed, was indicted yesterday by the Lake county grand jury at Crown Point, Ind., on a charge of embezzlement. Judge Martin Smith set his bonds at $30,000. Kozacik is accused of mishandling $95,000 in bonds, made as collections by the East Chicago bank for certain concerns in which Kozacik was interested.

At Waukegan State's Attorney A. V. Smith of Lake county announced yesterday that he would insist upon trials for two bank case defendants next Monday if the proposed Citizens Trust and Savings bank at Waukegan is not opened by then. The proposed bank is being planned to take over assets of the closed Waukegan State and Waukegan National banks.

The defendants are George Woodruff, former Chicago banker, and Norman O. Geyer, former president of the Waukegan State bank. Their cases are scheduled before Judge Edward Shurtleff at Woodstock. On completion of their cases, the prosecutor said, the charges against State Auditor Oscar Nelson would be tried. Today Judge Shurtleff will sit in the Waukegan court to set a date for trial for William H. Miller, orginally indicted with Geyer, Woodruff and Nelson.

WOMEN SHOCKED AT CHEFS' LACK OF ORTHODOXY

Culinary Artists Sweep Aside the Rule Books.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Many points of kitchen ethics were shattered yesterday by celebrated chefs of the city, who prepared a few favorite recipes before several hundred women attending the chefs' parade in the Hotel Sherman. The affair was sponsored by the Illinois Republican Women's clubs and the Women's National Republican club.

Thus, when Chef Jean L. Gazabat of the Hotel Sherman dipped his wooden spatula into his fish sauce, put it to his lips, and, smacking them, pronounced, "Yes, I got it," a shocked murmur swept the audience.

Chef Gazabat then fixed his audience with a stern gaze and said:

He Uses His Fingers.

And later, tenderly lifting filets of pompano, which had been poached slowly, on to a platter, he said: "Yes, I use my fingers. Every artist uses his fingers."

Among the bottles of hot sauce, Madeira wine, cream, and other things before him on the table was one labeled "Essence de Poisson." He poured it into his sauce with the same liberality that he used sherry and pepper, mushrooms and shallots.

Later a woman asked him if "poisson" meant "poison." Ah, no, said Chef Gazabat, it was the most delicious of flavors, necessary to the pompano filets, and made simply by boiling the head, tail and bones of the fish until a rich stock was obtained.

Chef's Feat Draws Applause.

One of the climaxes of the day was the performance of Chef Ernest Ghyssaert of the Drake hotel in making spun sugar. He explained that to produce the gossamer silky threads of sugar only two rules were necessary: To melt the 1¼ pounds of sugar so slowly that it all melted before it began to boil; and to then boil it so fast that it would not turn brown. He then cooled it slightly and with deft movements dipped a long wire brush in the syrup and flung it over a small board extending out from the edge of his table. It fell in cascades—a shining cobwebby mass. The audience applauded.

"So simple," he said, "that a child can make it—nothing to it, if you only know how."

It's Dessert That Counts.

"Your dessert leaves the final impression," said Chef Ghyssaert. "If it is good your guests will forget that the soup was too salty and the roast too rare."

As for the dough for strawberry tarts, he said, it did not, like pie dough, require a genius to make it properly. Instead of working the dough as little as possible, as in pie dough, it should be worked as much as possible, as long as bread dough, for instance.

"Roll it out then, flatten into molds, line it with wax paper, and on the paper pour common navy beans. Press down well. When done, remove the beans and put them away to use again," he said. "Line your tarts with sponge cake crumbs to absorb the moisture of the strawberries."

Women Sample the Dishes.

Most of the dishes cooked on the platform, such as the Dakota pancakes and the "delice of clams" made by Chef Ernest E. Amiet of the Palmer house, and the "Spaghetti Toscanini" and the "gnochi, Roman style" prepared by Chef Harry Bastian of the Hotel La Salle, were passed around in small portions to the women.

Among the women attending were Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, Mrs. George R. Dean, Mrs. Townsend McKeever, Mrs. Eames MacVeagh, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. Ambrose Cramer, Mrs. Charles Glore, Mrs. Roy Carney, and Mrs. Freeman Hinckley. Ushers were Miss Betty Offield, Miss Ann Elizabeth Walsh, Mrs. Calvin Fentress Jr., Mrs. Byron Harvey Jr., Mrs. Herbert McLaughlin, Mrs. John Ames, and Mrs. Walter Field McLallen.

IOWA STATE AUDITOR SUSPENDED; ALLEGE WRONG FEES ON BOOK

Des Moines, Ia., April 20.—[Special.]—Gov. Dan Turner signed an order for suspension of State Auditor Long this afternoon.

The order was signed after the governor had studied the report of an investigation commission composed of former Gov. B. F. Carroll, F. W. Sprung of Grinnell, and F. J. Harrington of Des Moines.

The commission found Long had made wrongful charges against the state on expense items, that he and his family had collected money for typing reports much of which had actually been done by state employés on state time, and that Long had authorized wrongful settlements in two county matters.

Under Iowa law the governor can now make a temporary appointment to fill the vacancy and the records of the report will go before the next session of the legislature to determine whether the removal should be upheld.

The suspension, however, is immediate upon service of notice to Long.

THEFT OF $50,000 IN SCHOOL TAX PAPER CHARGED

James C. Terry, 1234 Newport avenue, was charged with the theft of $50,000 in school board tax warrants yesterday in two warrants issued by Judge John J. Rooney in the Felony court. The complainants were Andrew Ladegaard, 2921 Diversey avenue, and George E. Hart, 511 South Crawford avenue, painting contractors, who said they had received the tax warrants for work done. They testified that Terry offered to exchange Liberty bonds for the warrants, but left the city after obtaining $15,000 in tax warrants from Hart and $35,000 from Ladegaard. Judge Rooney fixed the bond at $5,000 in each case.

Elephants to Start Today on Fair Construction Job

Construction work on buildings for the 1933 World's Fair will be marked today by the appearance of five elephants. Dr. Forest Ray Moulton, director of concessions, said yesterday that he believed the animals would prove valuable for digging, landscape gardening, and other heavy tasks. If the elephants are efficient, Dr. Moulton said, they probably will be used all summer. They have been loaned by the Sells-Floto circus.

South Bend Youth Who Slew Father Is Acquitted

South Bend, Ind., April 20.—(AP)—James Horvath, 18 year old boy who shot and killed his father Sunday when the elder Horvath attacked him with a knife, was free of charges today. "This was clearly a case of self-defense," Prosecutor Sam P. Schwartz announced.

HOPE TO EXTEND 'WAR' GARDENS TO EACH CITY BLOCK

Offers of vacant land, materials, and personal assistance in the campaign to provide thousands of vegetable gardens for the unemployed of Chicago and suburbs came piling into the office of the Cook County Joint Emergency Relief fund yesterday as plans were being completed for the county-wide "war garden" movement.

F. D. LOOMIS.
[Moffett Photo.]

Frank D. Loomis, secretary of the relief agency, stated that organization plans would be completed today and community committees named to act in preparing back yards and vacant lots to raise provisions for the needy this summer and next winter. A vacant lot, given the needed gardening attention, should produce vegetables worth from $200 to $500, he said.

Mayor Cermak to Aid.

Aided by the Red Cross, United Charities, American Legion, Chicago Church federation, Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs, and other civic and relief agencies, Mr. Loomis expects to extend his garden campaign into every city block.

Mayor Cermak yesterday pledged the coöperation of the city in developing the garden project. Park boards and the board of county commissioners are taking steps to supply land, tools, and shelters for equipment. Efforts are being made to provide seed potatoes, onion sets, and fresh vegetable seed for those unable to buy them.

Survey Forest Preserve.

The county forest preserve areas were being surveyed yesterday to provide larger gardens where potatoes and other crops that would furnish fall and winter subsistence for the jobless could be raised. Charles Sauers, superintendent of the preserves, stated he expects to report on the available land today.

IRISH DAIL PASSES FIRST READING OF BILL TO KILL OATH

Deputy Raps Measure as "Guttersnipe" Action.

BY HUGH CURRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, April 20.—The first step to remove the oath of allegiance to the British king from the Irish Free State constitution was taken today. President De Valera's bill providing for such action was passed unanimously on first reading in the Dail Eireann. The real battle over the measure will begin next Wednesday, when it comes up for second reading.

The occasion today did not pass without incident, for Deputy McDermott introduced some food for thought. McDermott is one of the new members, not attached to any big party. He belongs to the small farmers' group, all of whom have plenty of views but little power, as their number is only five. He is a scion of an old Irish sect whose head is known as The McDermott. For six years he was a partner in Huth's New York bank. He served in the great war.

Opposes the Bill.

Speaking with an Oxford accent he opposed the bill, not in hostility to the De Valera government, which he said he did not want to defeat, but because it was necessary to clear the atmosphere and he wished to give a new turn to the members' thoughts. The fundamental question, he said, is:

"Do we not regard ourselves as belonging to the British commonwealth of nations? Whether the answer is yes or no the bill is a mistake. The bill is a breach of international good manners, apart altogether from a breach of faith or whether the treaty [of 1921] bringing the war to an end is obligatory on the weaker party. This country [the free state] is making use of consuls and ambassadors of Great Britain all over the world and young men passing into British imperial services are using the advantages of the British commonwealth."

He submitted that the more decent national thing would be to get in touch with the other members of the commonwealth and, if possible, to find a reasonable arrangement. The bill is totally inadequate to make the Irish position clear before the world, he pointed out.

Questions Legality of Bill.

"If we want to go out of the commonwealth, let us say so and go out like men," he cried, raising his voice. "Great Britain will raise no technical difficulty. The government said that it had no mandate to go out of the commonwealth. That implies that the Irish people accepted the commonwealth."

He questioned whether the government had a mandate for the bill, but even so it did not disbar the government from negotiating, he said. He urged the government to withdraw the bill and proceed in a reasonable way. After a provisional agreement, he said, a referendum should later be taken on the main question of leaving the British commonwealth.

"We are an ancient people, with great traditions and glorious memories," he said. "Let us not act like guttersnipes. If we cannot get rid of the obsession that our rights are being trampled upon, let us leave the British commonwealth and be done with it. If this is persisted in, I propose later to move that the Dail take steps to remove Ireland from the sphere of the British commonwealth of nations."

Republican Army Assailed.

The Irish republican army also came in for bitter criticism today. Opposition members assailed de Valera's ministers in connection with the continuance of irregular drilling throughout the country and the constant marching of batches of men in military formation.

Deputy Patrick Hogan, former minister for agriculture, charged that the government of the country lies actually outside the dail and alleged that the peace now existing is the result of an agreement between De Valera and the republican army, which, he said, further proved that the seat of government is outside the dail.

Sean Lemass, minister of industry and commerce, defended the government. Replying to Hogan's interjection, he said:

"Certainly we admit that this dail is faulty."

He explained that is must be faulty when certain sections are excluded because they must submit to the oath.

Jarecki Sends 7 Negroes to Jail for Vote Frauds

County Judge Jarecki yesterday sentenced to jail seven Negroes who pleaded guilty to falsifying absentee votes in the April 12 primary. The jail sentences ranged from 30 days to one year. The year sentence was imposed upon Robert H. Cross, 4712 South Park way, precinct captain in the 31st precinct of the Third ward, who allegedly engineered the fraud. All the defendants were seized when they tried to cast their ballots in the offices of the election commissioners. Two of those sentenced were women.

JAPAN'S CHINESE ARMY IN RETREAT IN MANCHURIA

Loyalist Troops Advance on Several Fronts.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, April 20.—Military forces of the Japanese supported government of Manchoukuo in Manchuria have completely lost their fighting spirit and are falling back in disorder upon zones controlled by Japanese troops. This was admitted in a Japanese war office report released through official sources here tonight. The report said the Manchoukuo troops are offering no resistance to the Chinese loyalists.

The report confirmed a message from Mukden through Reuters' [British] news agency, which said that one Chinese army in Kirin province, under the command of Gen. Hsi Hsia, which has been serving with the Japanese forces under the Manchoukuo banner, is retreating southward from Fangcheng, while another Manchoukuo army which has been operating along the eastern branch of the Chinese Eastern railway is falling back on Imienpo, which is gassisoned by Japanese troops.

Blame Chang Hsueh-liang.

The Japanese attribute the demoralization of the Manchoukuo troops to subtle propaganda emanating from the Peiping headquarters of Gen. Chang Hsueh-liang, deposed Manchurian governor, which the Japanese charge is designed to discredit the Manchoukuo government's ability to maintain peace and order in Manchuria and is meant to impress the league of nations investigating commission, which has now reached Manchurian territory.

The Japanese report evinces deep concern over the Manchurian situation, particularly in the northern area, where the loyalists apparently are well organized under the guiding spirit of Gen. Ma Chan-shan and are preparing for a major offensive against the Japanese troops, which are entrenched along the Chinese Eastern railway and at Harbin.

It was also stated that conditions are becoming more critical in the Chientao district, where Chinese loyalists and Corean revolutionists under Gen. Wang Teh-ling are advancing southward from Shalantien.

Advance on Tungliao.

According to a report though the Kuo Min [Chinese] news agency, 4,000 loyalist volunteers are advancing upon Tungliao, northwest of Mukden, where they clashed with a mixed force of Japanese infantry, cavalry and artillery. The fighting is still going on. Passengers arriving at Harbin reported that the railway stations of the towns of Yablonya, Lukashevo and Kazantzevo were burning. The property loss at Suifenho, in the Pogranitchnaya section, is estimated at $64,000,000.

A report from Tokio through the Reuter service said the Japanese war minister, Sadao Araki, had decided that it is necessary for Japan to dispatch reinforcements to Manchuria immediately.

In this connection the war office has asked the finance bureau to arrange for a further advance of $69,000,000 to cover war expenditures both in Manchuria and at Shanghai from June to next March. This would raise the war expenditures since last September to a total of more than $134,000,000.

Clash in Shanghai Area.

At the same time the Manchoukuo government has demanded another loan of $6,700,000 from Japanese sources. This is in addition to a similar amount recently advanced through the Mitsui and Mitsubishi banking interests.

A Japanese scouting party, consisting of noncommissioned officers, was fired on today by a company of Chinese troops near Kating, 15 miles northeast of Shanghai. One Japanese officers was killed and two were seriously injured.

Japanese Flyer Killed.

SHANGHAI, April 20.—(AP)—Lieut. Fukui, Japanese army aviator, attached to the expeditionary forces here, was killed today during a scouting flight when the parachute strapped to his back suddenly opened, caught in the wind, and jerked him from the cockpit in the plane. His companion landed safely with the plane. The accident happened in an area not occupied by the Japanese. Chinese authorities permitted the Japanese to rescue Lieut. Fukui's body and the plane.

Communists Capture Changchow.

AMOY, April 20.—(AP)—Chinese communists today captured the city of Changchow, 26 miles west of here, routing the defenders who had held them off for more than a week. The defeated force, retreating toward the coast, passed close to this city, but the international settlement authorities refused them entry. Amoy was quiet, but apprehensive, and the foreign consuls met to prepare for eventualities.

U. S. ACTRESS IN PARIS JAIL; CALL HER CHECKS BAD

PARIS, April 20.—(AP)—The American Aid society today confirmed reports that Ruth Putnam Mason, American actress and producer, is being held in St. Lazare prison on a charge of issuing worthless checks.

She was arrested three weeks ago and has called on the aid society to lend her money with which to buy cigarets, the society said.

Friends have retained an attorney to defend her in court. Paris newspaper reports said members of her family and friends met in New York last Friday to consider means of helping her.

THE TRIBUNE'S PLATFORM FOR CHICAGOLAND

1. Make Chicago the First City in the World.
2. Re-establish the Credit of the Local Governments.
3. Abolish the Smoke Pall.
4. Continue the War on Crime.
5. Double the Speed of Passenger Trains.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

AN EXCELLENT PLATFORM.

The platform adopted by the Cook county Democratic convention is an excellent pronouncement. It is concise and emphatic upon the important issues as well as sound.

The plank on public economy declares that "federal, state, and local governments must reduce their expenditures to the lowest possible figure consistent with efficient public service." If the term efficient public service is open to liberal interpretation in favor of expenditures which present conditions do not justify, although justifiable or even desirable in prosperous times, this is avoided in the strict language on local tax relief: "The tax load on real estate and industry must be lifted so that not a single dollar of taxes will be collected except for indispensable governmental service and the maintenance of essential public institutions and the wards of the state."

The declaration on prohibition is equally admirable: "The 18th amendment to the constitution of the United States and all laws passed pursuant to it should be repealed. Pending repeal, we demand such modification of the Volstead act as will bring immediate relief from its oppressive effects."

The platform demands home rule for Chicago and Cook county, and pledges the party "to bring about the consolidation of local tax levying bodies and the elimination of all overlapping government." But, not satisfied with what might pass for merely a pious generality, the platform declares that "our nominees promise to support all legislation aimed at such consolidation, even if it should result in the abolition of their respective offices."

The platform favors the consolidation of all park systems with the county forest preserve, the creation of a board of estimates and apportionment, the shortening of the ballot, nonpartisan election of mayor, and four year terms for aldermen.

The plank on prohibition is supported by an excellent summary of the social and economic reasons for repeal, for modification pending repeal, and for opposition to appropriations for futile or oppressive methods of enforcement.

In short, the convention has set an example in platform making which the public will appreciate. Former Gov. Smith the other day expressed the impatience which the whole country feels toward the dodging of issues, the elaborate verbiage designed to avoid commitments and to curry favor and conciliate or confuse opposition, the thunders of denunciation of the other party, made meaningless by the lack of candid and courageous pledges. That sort of party declaration is going to lose, not gain, votes at this time. It is creditable to the political sense of the present leaders of our county Democracy that they realize this and have acted upon it. Other political groups evidently have not, as in the conspicuous case of the Missouri Republican convention, which has just put forth a prohibition plank that is a perfect example of futile political chicanery and hypocrisy. Beginning with the declaration that "we believe a political party should have the courage to define its position on any public question," it proceeds to prove its own lack of it by proposing "a national convention, to be called as speedily as possible in accordance with the federal constitution, to deal with the subject." No one who favors relief from the demoralization wreaked by prohibition can be deceived by this device. Only politicians who want to dodge the issue or prohibitionists who see in it the most plausible plan for postponing decision will favor it. It deserves no respect from honest citizens, wet or dry.

It is reported that Secretary Hyde had a hand in this production and intimated that it would be satisfactory to the Republican party leaders. He is said to have denied at least the latter implication, and Republicans will hope that the denial is authentic, for this is not a good year for shirking on prohibition.

Judge Horner, Mayor Cermak, and the Democratic leaders who framed the county platform have notably strengthened their cause with intelligent voters.

BUNIONS IN NEW YORK; BALLOTS IN CHICAGO.

Mayor Walker (of New York) thinks there ought to be a beer parade in every city in the country on May 14 to impress public officials with the strength of the demand for Volstead modification. He can have it in New York if he wants it, but, so far as Chicago is concerned, the parade isn't wanted and isn't needed

If Chicago's representatives in congress and the legislature were wavering on the liquor question there might be some sense in holding a parade as a show of strength. But neither Chicago's representatives nor the representatives of other large cities are in any doubt about the popular will. Those, like Congressman Chindblom, who made the mistake of being dry, have suffered the penalty. Mr. Chindblom's defeat is worth to the wet cause a dozen blousy, ill-managed, and possibly disorderly parades.

The civilian parade is the political device of the illiterate and the politically backward. It is significant that such parades are held frequently in Russia and were common in Chicago in the most expansive days of Big Billism. Far from encouraging the rural squires to support the wet cause, such demonstrations are far more likely to arouse all the latent distrust, dislike, and fear of the cities on the part of the country members.

The strength of the wet cause today lies in the fact that the Volstead law is repugnant to all classes of society. All classes may be represented in such parades as Mr. Walker proposes, but to the observer the marchers would all look like barrel house bums, because the only kind of a parade which doesn't straggle and sag in the middle is a military parade. Civilian parades are generally blousy, disorderly, and confused. New York may need a parade to convince itself it is wet, but Chicago will prefer to organize and express its sentiment in more effective ways. We do not need aching bunions to remind us that we don't like Volstead.

THE BLUE SKY LAW.

At the instance of the Better Business bureau a conference was held recently to obtain support for revisions of the Illinois blue sky law. The revisions have been made necessary, it is explained, by the action of the Supreme court, which held part of the present securities law invalid.

It is said, and no doubt correctly, that the court's action has permitted the opening of a number of bucket shops and that the welfare of the people of the state requires that such institutions be put out of business as soon as possible.

While this much may be conceded, at least for the sake of argument, it is well to remember that the best blue sky law that can be written is itself a poor protection for the investor. For one thing, no law is any better than the men who administer it, and, for another, no one yet has been able to draft a law which shrewd and determined men cannot evade, for a time at least. This is not to say that there should be no blue sky law, but only to stress the fact that the real protections of the investor are not and cannot be laws.

The real protections of the man who buys securities are the character of the company with which he deals and his own carefulness in selection. All that a blue sky law can do is to rule out the patently fraudulent and call attention to the fact that certain other investments are extremely risky. But when these securities have been eliminated there remain all the rest, ranging from pretty poor common stocks to gilt edged bonds, none of which are ruled out by the law and all of which, therefore, the unthinking investor who regards the blue sky law as a complete protection is tempted to regard as equally safe.

The best investment bankers, like the best doctors and the best lawyers, make mistakes, but they are relatively infrequent. The first line of defense for the investor is the house from which he buys. The second line is his own willingness to make a study of the securities offered to him and to accept the fact that by and large he must sacrifice a high yield for the safety of his principal.

A good many people with money to invest don't know how to go about it. That is partly a reflection of inherent incapacity and partly a reflection upon current education. If the important service of protecting the accumulations of the past is to be performed satisfactorily, a good deal more than blue sky laws will be required. Intelligence and sound education in the principles of investment are vastly more important.

NOT UP TO STANDARD.

It now transpires that the so-called enforcement officer, held with another in Dallas, Tex., for the killing of a storekeeper and the wounding of the storekeeper's wife, had been previously convicted of manslaughter. National Prohibition Director Woodcock says he knew nothing of this record, which it is to be hoped may be assumed, and that it was not disclosed to the civil service commission which approved this agent's qualifications. Director Woodcock feels, however, that these two agents "have not measured up to the standards set for prohibition agents" and has suspended them.

The suspended enforcers will have ground for complaint against this judgment. It is true they only killed one of the suspects, while the other, a woman at that, still survives, but she was wounded, and that ought to score them at least seventy-five out of a possible one hundred, a passing mark and a little to spare.

But these enforcers if they have not quite "measured up to the standards set for prohibition agents" may console themselves with the thought that they have been suspended, not discharged, and will have leisure to qualify by improving their marksmanship with practice in a shooting gallery.

Editorial of the Day

BANK LOANS.
[Indianapolis News.]

During the twelve months that ended with the close of March members banks of the federal reserve system lowered their volume of outstanding loans by $3,171,000,000. The contraction was more than twice as rapid as between 1930 and 1931, when the decrease amounted to $1,494,000,000. This progressive contraction in the volume of credit at work, as shown in reserve board reports, doubtless proceeded in part out of reduced accommodation requests, since a recession in commerce made the need for funds less pronounced in many instances. On the other hand, banks, as a consequence of the unsettled business situation, required the liquidation of many obligations that ordinarily would have been renewed.

The latter development is related to the need the banks felt for unusual liquidity in their resources, if they were to be prepared to deal with emergencies. Some light on the course they adopted to achieve that status is contained in a further comparison. Their security holdings, other than in federal bonds, have diminished by $551,000,000 in the year that closed on April 1. In the preceding twelve-month the investment in nongovernment obligations had mounted by $905,000,000. The readiness with which the public securities could be disposed of, in contrast with the delay and uncertainties often encountered in finding a ready market for other types, explains the policy.

By giving greater assurance of fundamental credit stability, the Reconstruction Finance corporation may be expected to relieve some of the stringency in banking credit that has been manifest. That the legislation was directed at a circumstance that required attention is indicated strikingly in the figures cited. Necessarily, the corrective procedure will take time to make the cumulative betterment fully apparent. Banking coöperation, of course, is essential to maximum results of a constructive character.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

A BAS LA BUTTERMILK! A BAS LA SARSAPARILLA!

Matthew Wold said very solemnly to a senate subcommittee considering the bill for 2.75 per cent beer that labor, denied legal beer and its industrial benefits to the national budget, might very possibly revolt some hungry morning next winter. Matthew, pardon us, but you've got things twisted. When we feel like starting a revolution to get beer back it's not in the winter time. No, Matthew, the time when we're going to rush to the middle of the boulevards and start building barricades and waving the red flag and start singing the "Marseillaise" in our beer revolution will not be on a cold, frosty morning in January. It will be on a very hot day in July or August, when we happen to think of a cold stein of amber beer with white diaphanous foam piled all thick like on the top and running in rainbow hued drops down the side. Oh, Matthew, we try to keep our self-control and not give way to what Mr. Darrow calls dementia Americana, but when on a long, hot, dusty day in mudsummer we stumble wearily down the redhot pavement we only hope we do not think of a cold stein of beer. We've struggled nobly all these long, dry years of prohibition, but we fear we're slipping. We may sit right up on our hind legs some day and start trouble unless we get beer. But not in December, January, or February. No, no! Not then! Not then! On a cold winter morning with the thermometer fooling down around the zero mark we might start a ham-and-eggs riot or a hot-coffee-and-sinkers demonstration, but not a beer revolution. But on some day in summer, when Chicago is like a bake oven and our mouth is as dry and parched as the sands of the desert, 'tis then, if we happen to conjure up the mirage of a cool stein of Hofbrau or Pilsener or Bock, that we are liable to start tearing down the Bastille and run amuck screaming "Vive la beer! Vive la beer!

CIRCUSES.

A boy must see a circus,
Or how is he to know
Where to group the animals
When he gets up a show?
How to keep the dogs and cats
Contentedly apart,
And what a circus band should play
When it is time to start?

If a boy has never seen
A flying somersault,
And his bars come tumbling down
You can't say it's his fault.
If he hasn't had a chance
To watch a sawdust ring,
How can he be an acrobat,
Or clown, or anything?

HELEN WELSHIMER.

SEN. BILL BORAH doesn't seem to think much of Al Smith's plan of a twenty year moratorium on the war debts Europe owes us. Following the senator's reasoning closely, we gather that he rather inclines to the notion that if we should weaken and grant Europe twenty years more moratorium we should also give each debtor nation a gold watch and chain, a season ticket to the ball game, and ask 'em what they want for Christmas.

A STORY from Washington yesterday spoke of a quotation, "Lips that touch liquor shall never touch mine." People should be more careful when they quote. The quotation as it used to appear in our Spencerian copybooks was, "Lips that lick likker shall never lick mine."

CHARLIE SCHWAB says rich men are fading from the United States and that now "they don't know where they stand." Oh, Charlie, after they fade from the United States a lot of them know where they stand. It's usually in front of the bar at the Ritz in Paris, with one gray spatted foot firmly resting on the brass rail, while with the right hand they raise a glass of sparkling Burgundy and say, "Well, here's mud in your eye." And if we were a rich man, Charlie, we'd fade from the United States, too, but we can't make up our minds whether we would take our stand in front of the bar at the Ritz or in the shade of a stately palm on an uninhabited island in the far off Southern sea. But one thing we do know. We'd fade. And pronto.

"I AM A WET!" quoth Gov. Roosevelt when asked if he favored state control or some other plan, "that's all I have to say." "I am a wet" is perfectly satisfactory at present, but some day some statesman is going to rise up and slightly improving the words of Henry Clay will remark, "I would rather be wet than be President." But speaking of Henry Clay, who was it said when Henry made his famous remark about rather being right than President that he never was either one?

SPEAKER GARNER, talking about congress yesterday in Washington: "We have received no intelligent aid from the administration." And we wouldn't be surprised if the administration retorted: "We have received no intelligent aid from congress." And to a man up a tree and climbing desperately to get out on a limb where the taxes won't grab him it looks as though they might both be right.

A WIFE'S SECRET.

I love your husband strength that stands
Between me and the slings of life,
Your father tenderness and care
That deems me child as well as wife.

I also love to feel I own
A secret you will scarce believe—
Sometimes you're just my little boy
And I am old as Mother Eve.

ADELAIDE LOVE.

AND JUST as the glorious Spring finally leaps right at us and clasps us in her sweet loving arms and bids us come with her to the woods and fields and the daisy flecked hills the cops jump at us and give us a ticket for not having a 1932 auto license. Somebody is always taking the joy out of life!

How to Keep Well By Dr. W. A. Evans

WHAT KIND OF HEART DISEASE?

THE time has come to abandon the term "heart disease" and to substitute a group of words having more definite meaning. The term is rather a new one. Dr. R. H. Halsey tells us that in the records of deaths found in the New York City health department not one case of heart disease was reported between 1804 and 1808, and there were very few entered prior to the former date. After 1808 the number so entered rose rather slowly for many years. Now the entries under heart disease far outrank any other group and the disproportion increases yearly.

As it is now used the term is an expression of ignorance, carelessness, and sometimes of a mething worse.

In the field of registration it is recognized that when physici a do not know what else to write on a death certificate they enter "heart disease" and let it go at that. A certificate thus entered causes no trouble with the insurance company, or with the health department. In some cases it saves trouble with the coroner and state's attorney. In consequence of these several considerations the vital statistics of heart disease are misleading.

This is of interest to registrars and life insurance companies. Dr. Halsey says the people are interested, though they do not know it, nor do they see where their interest lies. His point is that those who are sick with what they have been told is heart disease would get better care and stand more show of cure if they knew what kind of heart disease they had. Furthermore, if the general term "heart disease" were properly split up, and the right new names came into general use, the people, aided by their health departments and their physicians, could do a great deal by way of prevention. He advises the use of terms based on causes. For instance, he would have the words "rheumatic heart disease" come into general use since one-fifth of all the cases come into that group. Acute inflammatory rheumatism is both preventable and curable and it follows that, in time, that kind of heart disease should be eliminated. Somewhere about one-tenth of all heart disease is syphilitic. Dr. Bunce said that his experience among Negroes was that one-half of all the heart disease encountered had been syphilitic. This variety of heart disease can be prevented.

Physicians are discussing the advisability of abandoning the term "angina pectoris" and using several terms which would indicate the causes of the different groups of cases. Dr. Halsey said that rheumatic heart disease, syphilis, and coronary artery disease account for three-fourths of all the heart disease.

Dr. W. H. Robey says that mitral stenosis is really not a disease. It is merely a symptom, or effect, of rheumatic fever. Aortic regurgitation may be an effect of rheumatic fever or syphilis. In a given case it should be easy to tell which. He told of a recently recorded death certificate for a man eighty-four years old which gave mitral regurgitation as the cause. If this man had had mitral regurgitation he would not have lived to such an old age. What happened was that he had a soft heart muscle, which stretched under strain, causing dilation and a secondary mitral leakage.

EAT IT, DON'T WEAR IT.

1. Will cocoa butter, if applied to the skin, be absorbed and thereby build up the body?
2. Is it beneficial to the skin?
3. Are the beneficial effects of sunlight upon the human body changed in any way if the sunlight passes through ordinary window glass?

REPLY.

1. Very little will be absorbed. If you take this butter by mouth one dose a year more will be absorbed than would absorb in a year's rubbing the butter on the skin thrice daily.
2. It is if the skin is dry. Such rubbings help the skin of old people and all who have a tendency to fish skin or dry skin. It is needed much more in cold weather than in warm.
3. They are. Sunlight that passes through glass loses its ultra-violet.

NOT SERIOUS SYMPTOM.

C. S. writes: Can you tell me what ridging of the nails comes from? The condition appeared within the last year and it is very noticeable. Is it an indication of some organic trouble?

REPLY.

As a rule, ridges in the nails mean that the skin near the root is not in first class condition. Marbe the fingers are exposed to chemicals, to soap, to water, or to some other irritant, or to air that is too dry.

A transverse ridge may be caused by a severe illness or a shock.

A VERSATILE DISEASE.

Mrs. B. L. writes: Is there any cure for arthritis? Is it contagious?

REPLY.

There are more kinds of arthritis than there are kinds of fleas on a dog. One kind —acute rheumatic fever—may be contagious after a way. The others are not. Some kinds get well of themselves if given half a chance. Some kinds are curable. Most kinds tend to go on to the chronic form.

FOREIGN SERVICE A BAR.

Chicago, April 15.—[Friend of the People.]—I know a fellow who was born in the United States and who was taken by his parents to Europe when he was 10 years old. He was raised there and when he was 18 years old he was taken by the Austrian-Hungarian government into the army, where he served for two years. After that he served a term in the Czechoslovak army. He came back to the United States when he was 27 years old. Is he a citizen of the United States? J. K.

The person referred to was born a citizen of the United States. However, he lost his citizenship by his enlistment in a foreign army when he had to take an oath of allegiance to a foreign country. If he desires to become a citizen it will be necessary for him to file application. H. L. ROETHE,
Acting Dist. Dir. U. S. Dept of Labor.

DRAW AN EXTENSION AGREEMENT.

Chicago, April 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Is it necessary to renew a deed of mortgage which ran for five years on a house I sold? The interest is paid regularly to me. In order to make it more plain, I sold a house to a friend for $6,500. They have paid $3,700. It is now five years since the mortgage was executed. it expiring in September, 1931. Is it necessary to have them sign up a new mortgage? I hold the deed fee? G. R. B.

The ordinary course is to draw an extension agreement and a new set of interest coupons. It is not necessary to record the extension. You can secure printed forms from a stationer.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

JURY SERVICE.

Chicago, April 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. I have been a registered voter in the community for twenty-one years and participated in the elections every year. What is the reason for not being called for jury service in that length of time? 2. Are there any secret understandings between the jury commissioners and clerks, precinct committee men, etc., to omit certain names? A. J.

1. Drawing is by lot, so that it is mathematically possible that the failure of a name to be drawn may be merely accidental. You might try taking it up with the jury commissioners.
2. We would not undertake to say that there are none.

CHINA-JAPAN WAR, 1895

YOKOHAMA, Jan. 25.—Official notice has been received here that the Chinese peace envoys are coming on the steamship Empress of China, which left Hong Kong on Jan. 23. They will proceed to Hiroshima by train from Kobe. On the morning of Jan. 22 a force of 10,000 Chinese made an attack on the Japanese positions at Yuen Chang Chen, which the Japanese captured on Jan. 20. The Japanese repulsed the attack with heavy loss, 1,100 Chinese dead being left on the field. The Japanese casualties were twenty-eight men wounded.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—A dispatch from Tientsin says the Chinese met the advance guard of the Japanese army near Cheng bay on Jan. 24 and repulsed them. It is believed the Japanese will bring a larger force before making an attack on Wei-Hai-Wei. A dispatch says that Field Marshal Count Oyama has proceeded to the Shantung promontory from Talienwan to conduct the operations of the Japanese forces.

YOKOHAMA, Jan. 26.—Official dispatches from Yung Chang Ken say a second batch of Japanese transports completed the landing of troops on Jan. 22. The Chinese made but little resistance. The dispatch adds that during the afternoon of Jan. 21 heavy firing was heard in the direction of Wei-Hai-Wei.

28 YEARS AGO TODAY

LONDON.—A dispatch from Gen. Kouropatkin to the czar, taken together with fragmentary reports from various sources, indicates with reasonable certainty a Japanese movement to cut off Port Arthur and the Liaotung peninsula from the land side. Kouropatkin reports Japanese transports off the coast about midway between Port Arthur and the mouth of the Yalu river. A big fleet is said to be anchored about thirty miles off shore, and the troops can be landed at any minute. Transports also have been sighted near Newchwang. With troops landing at Takushan working westward across the peninsula and southwest towards Port Arthur and the forces landing around Newchwang working eastward, the railway from Port Arthur to Mukden and the telegraph lines to headquarters are not likely to stand long.

ST. PETERSBURG.—Vice Admiral Skrydloff will leave on April 23 to assume command of the Port Arthur fleet. Grand Duke Cyril will return as soon as possible and make a report to the emperor. So far as can be learned, no action has been taken in regard to Viceroy Alexieff's tendered resignation.

CHICAGO.—Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen announced that she would build a home for the Hull House Woman's club, and more than 300 women waved handkerchiefs and cheered to express their joy over the announcement. Through Mrs. Bowen's gift the Hull House club will be the first woman's club in Chicago to have a home that it may properly call its own. The building will face Polk street and will adjoin the Hull house gymnasium, with which it will be connected by an arched entrance.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 21, 1916.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—If Germany is disposed to yield in any degree to President Wilson's ultimatum it is possible that a rupture of diplomatic relations between Washington and Berlin will be averted and an agreement reached on the future conduct of submarine warfare on commerce. This was the outstanding feature of the developments today in the controversy which has brought the United States and Germany to the brink of war. Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, is endeavoring to bring about an agreement satisfactory to the President. Mr. Wilson indicates a willingness to accept an agreement on the conduct of submarine warfare, provided noncombatants aboard merchantmen henceforth are not placed in jeopardy.

LONDON.—Russia today disembarked a huge army—the exact number cannot be stated—at Marseilles. Simultaneously the Germans ordered the withdrawal of large forces from the Teuton front in Macedonia, from Serbia and the Russian line. With the developments of these two important movements, it is freely predicted here that the Germans and allies propose to stake the result of the war on a tremendous battle in the Verdun sector. The arrival of the Russians in France proved one of the coups of the war. Only high officials were let into the secret and it is believed the Russian soldiers were unaware of their destination prior to their departure from the czar's empire.

CONSTANTINOPLE.—The war office announces that the position of the British army which is being besieged at Kut-el-Amara is becoming critical, and that evacuation has been ordered because of the scarcity of food.

A JOB AT LAST.

Chicago, April 16.—Two days after the election we look up from our desks to see what is wanted by a tall slender boy who comes in and can hardly believe that it is really Frank who stands before us, smiling with self-consciousness, but with a happiness and satisfaction in his eyes that we have not seen there for over a year. Homeless, jobless, penniless, he has walked the streets for over two years, picking up jobs occasionally, getting thinner and thinner, his clothes completely worn out, and his feet, the last time he came in, literally on the ground. He had grown more and more careless of his appearance, which was not his fault, as he could not get the few things he had wished and rarely had a place to take a bath. Today he stands before us in a tight fedora, spring top coat, colorful shirt and tie, new trousers, socks to match and new shoes. In astonishment, I said, "What in the world has happened?" and he replied, "I voted on election day."

Strolling along on South State street the night before election, he was approached and asked if he wanted to work the next day. Who wouldn't want to work in his place? He was told to be at State and Harrison the next morning at 4 o'clock, and there, in the early dawn, he and several hundred others were taken out to the respective wards and precincts of the city to help elect our officials. It wasn't as profitable as usual, for we are in a state of depression, and instead of $10 a day he was to get a dollar for each time he voted and three square meals at a restaurant on the northwest side. "All they wanted to eat," he said, "and, gee, we did eat!"

It was very simple. He was given cards to remind him whose name he was to vote under at the different precincts. At the first polling place the man behind him said that he knew the man whose name he was using, but one of his gangster employers, armed, as all of them were, stepped up to our friend's challenger, who took back what he said. "The policeman who was present was asleep at that time."

In the next place he was challenged because they said that the man for whom he was voting was dead, and, after this, kicked out of another polling place, he was afraid to continue, although he had been told that he would be paid $10 a day if he were arrested while he was being held, and they would take care of him and see that nothing happened to him in court.

He was "paid to go to mark the names of Small, Swanson, Michaelson and Porcaro." Aside from that he could use his own good judgment as other voters do. And so our young friend, who has just barely reached the age when he can assume the responsibilities of citizenship in America, had his first lesson in voting, thoroughly protected by armed men and emerging, from that day, well clothed and fed, for the first time in over a year. JESSIE F. BINFORD,
Executive Director, Juvenile Protective Association.

AFTER THE PRIMARY.

Berwyn, Ill., April 14.—What a farce the primary was. No one seemed to know who they voted for, or why. The political machines picked the winners in advance and the voters lined up to make it official. Enough money was spent to feed a good many hungry families.

Political parties should be put on a membership basis, and no one allowed to vote in a primary who can't show a paidup membership card. Only then will the parties be responsible to the wishes of the rank and file. D. O. AHERN.

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

Chicago, April 17.—An item on your front page today says that daylight saving time will be resumed next Sunday. To a large proportion, perhaps a majority of the people, this command to change the hands of every timepiece is felt to be an unwelcome interference with private habit and disturbance of public convenience. In substance it is a mere device for personal self-deception.

Has it ever appeared to your astute legalists that this regulation imposed on the whole public is of the same perverted nature as the prohibition laws; that it is an unwarranted restriction upon personal freedom and choice of conduct without any semblance of facts or conditions to support it as a welfare measure?

THE TRIBUNE has long waged a vigorous battle against prohibition because of its violations of sound principle and its irritating results upon the public. For the like meddling with private choice and established public customs a similar issue and cause of battle exists in the daylight saving nuisance.

ANDREW R. SHERRIFF.

THE HERMIT STATE.

Cicero, Ill., April 12.—Today's editorial, "Hermit State," reflects the integrity and humor of THE TRIBUNE. Your satire on Kentucky's method of preserving peace by whipping undesirables is refreshing. In order to merit a place of recognition and wipe out this hermit stigma the Kentuckians should place an order in Chicago for a supply of machine guns and start bumping off the trouble makers seven at a time. Wake up, "Hermit State," this is the age of mass production! J. R. P.

CAMPAIGN COSTS.

Chicago, April 13.—How much money was expended by the Swanson-Cornelius-Busse organization to nominate Judge Swanson?

How much money was expended in Cook county by the Cook County Democratic organization to nominate their successful candidates?

I think the public at large are entitled to know the total amount of money spent in campaigns for local offices.

HAROLD LANG.

A BRIGHT IDEA.

Chicago, April 12.—The political activity at numerous primary polling places today suggests a plan to bring prosperity back without depending on the forces that have signally failed so far. Would it not be a good idea to have a primary every few weeks? It would put much money in circulation and would that not break the back of the depression and make everybody happy? In addition it would run most of the politicians to death, which would be an additional benefit. DISGUSTED CITIZEN.

CURTIS' EFFORTS TO REACH HEAD WITHIN 48 HOURS

Navy Ambulance Plane Is Ready to Take Off.

Lindy Gets Guns

Hopewell, N. J., April 20.—[Special.]—Shortly before dusk today two submachine guns were taken to Newark airport, where Col. Schwarskopf and Col Lindbergh had arranged to pick up the weapons preparatory to a new flight apparently for the purpose of meeting the kidnapers. The arming of the plane, it was believed, was to frustrate any attempt at hi-jacking Col. Lindbergh or his representative, who, it was understood, would carry a large sum of money to complete the ransom negotiations.

Norfolk, Va., April 20.—[Special.]—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is expected to know within the next 48 hours whether the efforts of John Hughes Curtis and his associates have been making for a month to have his kidnaped son returned will prove successful.

Mr. Curtis, who left here Monday to visit Lindbergh and make contact with an agent of the supposed kidnapers, was still out of the city today. Nothing has been heard from him since he left.

Lieut. George L. Richard, crack naval aviator who has flown Curtis on five mysterious trips, also is away. He was reported at Anacostia, D. C., yesterday and he is still believed to be there awaiting word from Curtis.

Navy Ambulance Ready.

In the meantime the navy ambulance plane, at the Hampton Roads naval operating base, has been made ready for a takeoff. It is believed the baby, if it is recovered through the efforts of Curtis and his colleagues, will be taken to the naval base and that Col. Lindbergh will fly there to receive it.

The navy has entered into the Norfolk negotiations whole heartedly and is taking every safeguard to protect the child from hi-jackers or curiosity seekers if it is recovered and delivered at the naval base. Orders have been issued forbidding visitors to come near the landing field at the base pending the termination of the negotiations for the return of the child.

Curtis has not been reported at any point since leaving the Lindbergh home at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, and so far as could be ascertained, he has not communicated with his colleagues, Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, or the Rev. Dean H. Dobson-Peacock.

Lindbergh Wires Tapped.

New York, April 20.—[Special.]—Telephone wires between Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's country house and the exchange in Hopewell, N. J., four miles away, have been tapped, the New Jersey state police found when they went over the wire system today.

When and how many times outsiders have listened in on conversations over those lines they had no way of knowing. Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf immediately assigned a patrol to walk a beat along the path of the wires, night and day.

"Jafsie" Gets a Shave.

Dr. John F. Condon, the "Jafsie" negotiator who went rowing on Pelham bay yesterday and fell out of his skiff when he came back, was able to get out of the house and get a shave this afternoon.

New Jersey state police a few days ago professed to be greatly interested in reports that one Harry Fleischer, a supposed member of the old Detroit purple gang, was in Newfoundland.

Chief of police E. M. Slader of St. Johns today said he didn't believe there was anything to reports that Fleischer had been in his city and that the New Jersey police probably originated the story themselves, to "drag a herring" across the path of their investigation.

SALARY CHECKS FOR TEACHERS TO BE MAILED TODAY

School employés will get pay checks for another half month before the schools close tomorrow for the annual spring vacation. The checks, for the first half of February, will be mailed out from the school board business office tonight and distributed at schools tomorrow morning.

The pay roll totals $2,224,000. Of this the school board had $1,588,000 which it received from the state distributive school fund and an additional $531,000 in cash in the educational and other funds. The remaining $114,144 was obtained from the city, the school board giving the city treasurer 1931 tax warrants and an interim certificate for $100,000.

FIRE DRIVES 30 TO STREET.

Fire yesterday in an apartment building at 800 East 63d street drove 30 tenants to the street and did $10,000 damage. Crossed electric wires caused the blaze, firemen said.

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands of sufferers from piles have learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves nor cutting remove the cause.

Bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To end Piles an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation, heal and restore the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1000 patients with the marvelous record of success in 960 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID tablets with a rigid money-back guarantee.

Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID has an almost unbelievable record of success right in this city. So why waste time on external treatments or worry about an operation when Walgreen's invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money-back if it does not end their Piles, no matter how stubborn the case?

PRINCESS BETTY IS 'REALLY GROWN UP' NOW; SHE'S SIX

British Royalty Invited to Tea Today.

LONDON, April 20.—(AP)—Princess Betty, who some day may be England's second Queen Elizabeth, will celebrate her sixth birthday tomorrow, and the important thing to keep in mind is that she will be "really grown up."

The golden haired child of the duke and duchess of York will celebrate her attainment of "majority" with a tea party, at which she will act as hostess to her elders in the royal family.

This will give her an opportunity to show others how grown up she is, and is particularly significant because she has been trying to get that point across for some months now.

"Of couse," she remarked recently to a visitor in her parent's home in 145 Piccadilly, "I'm really grown up already," implying that formal recognition of her adult state awaited only the much heralded birthday.

The princess has dispatched invitations to King George, Queen Mary, her parents, her baby sister, Margaret Rose, "Uncle David" [the prince of Wales], the princess royal, and her two royal cousins, Lord Lascelles and Master Gerald Lascelles.

Bond street designers have caught the spirit of the occasion and probably will offer immediately copies of the princess' birthday costume. Gossip already has her wearing a dainty little victorian model in powder blue to the tea party. It has short puffed sleeves and a long full skirt. [Please, for Princess Betty's sake, put the accent on "long full skirt."]

There is but one grievance is the royal heiress' happy life. It is that at nearly "six going on seven," her parents won't let her run the elevator which takes her to the day nursery in the rear of the Piccadilly mansion.

They permit her to operate her own radio set, play the phonograph, and otherwise give her the run of the house, but so far have been adamant on the point of elevator running.

Father and mother have insisted that daughter just must wait awhile. But then, tomorrow is more than another day, daughter will really be "six going on seven" and maybe will have actually qualified as a full fledged elevator operator—maybe.

STONING, BLAST MARK STRIKE IN OHIO MINE FIELD

Governor Says Troops to Stay on Guard.

BULLETIN.

Cadiz, O., April 20.—(AP)—Five shots were fired from ambush at a newspaper man and an Ohio National Guard officer tonight as they approached the Somers mine near Adena, scene of recent disorders arising from the eastern Ohio bituminous mine strike. The incident was reported by William C. Howells, correspondent of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, and Capt. Kenneth Kerr of Wilmington. They were motoring from Cadiz to the mine.

Columbus, O., April 20.—[Special.]—Ohio National Guardsmen will not be removed from the eastern Ohio mining district until respect for the law has been restored, Gov. White notified county commissioners there tonight.

At the same time the governor said that his efforts to effect a settlement of the difficulties between the Ohio miners and the coal operators will not be renewed until disorders cease.

Meanwhile added precautions were being taken by the military forces quartered in and around Cadiz as new disturbances were reported.

In the last 24 hours new trouble included:

The stoning of working miners at Caldwell, Noble county; picketing of the Moonshine mine in Guernsey county; a mysterious explosion which shook the mining village at Jewett, Harrison county; forcing of a strike of 75 workers at the Warner Collieries company mine near Steubenville, Jefferson county.

The explosion occurred about 1 a. m. near Jewett. Sheriff H. D. Arbuckle reported no clews could be found.

More than four hundred men and pickets threw rocks at the 200 miners who were going to work near Cambridge collieries near Caldwell today. Nails were scattered along the highway leading to the mine.

Six shots were fired near the Tasa mine, near Jewett, but National Guardsmen at the shaft reported no one was hit.

Col. William L. Marlin, in command of the troops, ordered one plane of the 112th observation squadron into the air at dawn to patrol the district and to watch for the unidentified craft.

GERMAN JOBLESS ALLOTTED 2,000,000 ACRES OF LAND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 20.—Two million acres of land in east Prussia will be used by the German government to settle families of unemployed and train them to grow their own food, a government announcement said today. The land belongs to former estates whose owners were unable to save them.

"Only through large scale settlement and pioneer work in the east will we be able to reduce unemployment," the government statement said. "The plans call for big financial transactions, but the government is willing to advance the money. The pioneers will at first have to be satisfied with the most primitive conditions. They will receive the help of voluntary labor but they themselves must do the bulk of the work."

Laws for the enforcement of the plan will be applied by the cabinet after Chancellor Heinrich Bruening returns from Geneva, probably the end of next week.

AUSTRALIA PLANS STATE LOANS TO AID UNEMPLOYED

Government to Double the Amount Raised.

MELBOURNE, April 20.—(AP)—Prime Minister Joseph Lyons today announced a cooperative plan among the commonwealth and four Australian states for relief of unemployment by flotation of state loans and commonwealth contributions totaling in all £3,000,000 (currently about $11,310,000).

The four states are Queensland, Western Australia, Southern Australia, and Tasmania, and their loans will be matched with an equivalent sum from the commonwealth as outlined by a recently organized experts' committee.

The state of Victoria will look after its own relief needs, while the other Australian state, New South Wales, will be taken care of by the commonwealth so far as is possible in view of the struggle of Premier Lang of that state with the commonwealth over taxation and other questions.

The commonwealth is setting aside £600,000 (currently about $2,262,000) to be expended in New South Wales if the proper safeguard for the federal funds can be made.

New Zealand to Censor News.

WELLINGTON, N. Z., April 20.—(AP)—Censorship on news cables sent abroad is to be imposed to prevent circulation of alarmist reports concerning possible recurrence of the recent labor disorders at Auckland.

The government announced today that it would take this step under the postal laws. Its program in dealing with the Auckland situation has been approved by parliament.

There were parades of the unemployed at Auckland and several other places today, but there was no disorder.

THE WHISPERER

By ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

"The Whisperer Crimes" have held London terrorized for months. A bandit, working with few accomplices, has kidnaped and held for ransom numerous wealthy persons. The ransom victim is sent a small wireless receiving set, by means of which the bandit speaks, using his own short wave, and gives directions for delivering the ransom demanded. Police dare not interfere, because death results for the captive if the directions are not carried out.

Joyce Merrow is a victim of "The Whisperer." She is engaged to Roland Blatch, secretary to Sir Henry Glazeborough, M. P., a leading philanthropist. In Roland's keeping are valuable jewels, donated to Sir Henry to be sold for charity. Roland is forced to steal them for the bandit to insure the safe return of his beloved. When Joyce is again safely home, Roland decides to accept an offer from the bandit to join his band, and try to recover the jewels. He is sent to an address where a woman named Connie gives him a facial treatment which alters his appearance. Roland is trailed by detectives. Chief Inspector Larpent sees through his makeup, but decides to let him play his game. Roland reports every day to Connie, where the Whisperer talks to him through a telephone loud speaker, but remains hidden from view. He is assigned the task of collecting ransom from Lord Whidden, whose wife is held captive.

INSTALLMENT X.

THE ACCOUNT OF A CRIMINAL'S EXPLOITS.

"Hand over—at once!" commanded Roland, brandishing the revolver. The other thrust the green wallet into his hand. As he did so there came shouts and hammering on the folding doors—then a crash of broken glass—followed by a thin blue vapor that seemed to fill the yard.

Roland was saved from the gas by nothing other than the athlete's trick of holding his breath during a spurt—and all Roland's actions after seizing that wallet were part of a single spurt.

He dropped the captured revolver, tore off the domino and rushed to the little door—through it, slamming it locked behind him—and on to the motorcycle leaning against the pavement.

The engine fired and Roland, like an experienced crook, had done his job and made his getaway.

Hendricks grabbed the bag containing the gas bombs and leaped out.

"Turn! Go back into the next street," he rapped out. "We'll never climb that in time." Then, cupping his hand and trying to make his voice carry through the door, "You all right, Lord Whiddon?"

There was no answer.

He opened the bag and threw a gas bomb over the top of the doors, heard it fall on the other side and break. He threw another as the squad car completed the turn and tore backwards up the blind alley.

There was an awkward moment for Roland as he turned the corner on the motorcycle.

"Mr. Hendricks, sir."

To his amazement a plain clothes man who had not been in the squad car stood by his side. "I know who's the on the other side of that——"

"Eh?" Hendricks gaped at the plain clothes man trying to digest his information, but the necessity for action was paramount in his mind.

Together they ran up the blind alley and then into the parallel street. They reached the yard car just as the others, with a jack and a tire lever, had forced the little door through which Roland had escaped.

"Stand back there!" roared Hendricks as the thin blue vapor curled around the door. "Here, Graves—shove this on and come with me."

Slipping on the gas masks the two men rushed into the yard to find Lord Whiddon lying unconscious in the coupé—gassed by the police bombs.

The doors of the coupé were locked—a precaution of The Whisperer's—so they dragged him through the window and laid him on the pavement outside the yard, while one man was sent to bring a doctor.

Hendricks turned to the man who had joined him in the blind alley.

"Now what's all this you were saying?" he asked.

"I know the man who was in that yard, sir. Name of Carstairs—staying at the Gulverbury hotel. I was put on to him this morning. Followed him in a taxi to the corner, where I was waiting for him to come out. I hadn't an idea there was a stunt on."

Hendricks grunted. "Looks like a good thing for you, my lad—but it would have been better if we could have grabbed him at it. You'd better cut right along and telephone Mr. Larpent."

Before the doctor arrived Lord Whiddon opened his eyes, stared up at Hendricks in momentary confusion, then seemed to realize the position.

"I fired at him—boss shot!" he said jerkily. "The fellow grabbed the wallet. . . . Silly ass! Stuffed out with waste paper."

"I say, you fellows. What about my wife? Will they—I mean, d'you think——"

Lord Whiddon stammered himself into silence—and the silence held. Hendricks knew the nature of the question Lord Whiddon was trying to ask—and knew the answer. As soon as he found he had been fooled over the ransom The Whisperer would undoubtedly murder Lady Whiddon.

There was an awkward moment for Roland as he turned the corner on the motorcycle and nearly crashed into a coster's donkey barrow. Then came a straight stretch on the main road.

He was probably four miles from the brickyard when he ran into a line of shops in Cricklewood. He parked the cycle on the curb, mingled with the shoppers and presently mounted a bus for his rendezvous with Connie.

At the Holborn tube station he saw her, apparently absorbed in the contents of the bookstall. He did likewise and she came closer, took the green wallet from him and put it in a little attaché case.

"I knew you'd do your bit," she said quietly. "It's splendid—the chief will let us go on working together. Be at Maviste's in an hour and I'll tell you the next move." He made no reply and a moment later, when he looked around, she had disappeared.

An hour later he strode into Maviste's.

"Madam is out and has not come back yet," the girl told him.

He passed down the corridor and waited for Connie.

He had not been there for a full minute when the voice of The Whisperer sounded through the loud speaker.

"Number Six. . . . Number Six!"

"Number Six speaking. I was told to come here to meet Connie."

"Connie is detained. You have done your work well, Number Six."

"Thanks, chief."

"I want you to complete it. At ten o'clock tonight you will find a black landau parked fifty yards west of the cinema theater in Dale street, off Theobald's road. In the saloon of the landau will be Lady Whiddon. But you will not be able to see her, for the glass is opaque. She will not be able to get out, for the doors will open only from the outside."

Roland had to repeat the time and place, and The Whisperer went on:

"The police are improving their technique—and it is no longer safe to drop people in daylight in the parks. You will drive on to the Great West road and if you are not pursued, set her down in the open country—at the first convenient crossroads."

"Right! But how am I to know whether I'm being followed?"

"I will tell you. On a bracket near the gear change you will find headphones. Put them on when you get to the main road. Underneath the headphones you will find an instrument that looks like a large electric torch. You will notice a mouthpiece. It is a wireless transmitter. The outside of the car has been so treated as to act as a 'screen.' By pressing down the lever of the 'torch' and standing by the side of the car you will be able to speak to me if necessary. . . . Do not wait for Connie."

There was nothing for him but to return to the Gulverbury hotel.

After dinner he would have preferred to wait in his bedroom until it was time to set forth. But he was particularly anxious to attract no kind of attention. So he bought an evening paper and sat in the lounge.

"THE WHISPERER AGAIN. SECOND OUTRAGE IN 24 HOURS. LORD WHIDDON THE VICTIM. SCOTLAND YARD STILL POWERLESS."

Nearly half the page was occupied with photographs of Lady Whiddon. He looked from one photograph to the other. That of Lady Whiddon seemed familiar to him, though he did not remember ever having met her.

"Lady Whiddon, who, before her marriage two years ago, was the well known musical comedy actress, May Marion."

He remembered now. He had seen her several times when she was on the stage. A strikingly good looking woman in a rather flowery style.

With something of the morbid interest of the genuine criminal in his own exploits, Roland read the account.

The subject matter had been worked up at great length and there was a good deal of veiled criticism of Scotland Yard, but the facts were few:

". . . through the headphones Lord Whiddon received the order to turn left through two open wooden gates which gave on to a brickyard. The gates were immediately closed behind the car, thereby cutting off the flying squad car by a narrow margin of five seconds. Inside the yard was a masked man who demanded the ransom. Lord Whiddon, knowing that any kind of resistance might have dire consequences for his wife, had no alternative to handing over the wallet, in which he had been instructed to place the ransom for fifty thousand pounds in notes. The masked man promptly disappeared through a door in the opposite wall and made good his escape on a motorcycle."

Gladioli Pay Dividends on Special Care

Beautiful Flowers Not Hard to Grow.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Whether you pronounce the name of those beautiful flowers of late summer and fall as do the English, "glad-i-o'-lus," or in the original Latin, "gla-di'-olus," or whether you are familiar enough with the plant to call it a "glad" is a matter of your own choosing.

But as to methods of care, the important matter of the hour among gardeners, the galds themselves will want something to say. Not that they are difficult to grow, for their prevalence in a wide range of gardens and surroundings proves they are not. But a little special attention to the likes of these abundantly blooming flowers will be well rewarded.

Beginning this week, Chicagoland gardeners are planting their gladiolus bulbs. They will continue to do so at intervals up to as late as July 1 with assurance of successful late bloom in the garden. The range of colors and varieties in glads are no more to their favor among gardeners than the range of time required to produce flowers. This makes it possible to set out several types of glads at one time and have a succession of bloom.

Glads favor a sandy loam soil, which should be firm enough to support the stems and not be washed away by rains. If not sufficiently rich the soil may take an application of any complete plant food provided it is worked into the soil when preparing the ground. Never use fresh stable manure in the garden.

If only a moderate quantity of glads are being planted the small bulbs should be set out first, the greater sustenance of the larger ones enabling them to be kept longer. When planted in beds or clusters open spaces may be left in the early plantings and later additions made for bloom succession.

A dust mulch should be kept about the glads during summer and in the dry periods extra watering is necessary. A safe rule is to water only when necessary, but give plenty when you do. Some gardeners describe this as "soaking it to them plenty," and many even irrigate at intervals in July or August.

Planting of glads among peonies, larkspurs, or other early blooming perennials aids in conserving space in the small garden, as well as supplying bloom in the area where flowers are gone by midsummer.

Parents Need Teamwork on Child Training

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

Question: "My husband and I disagree so often on how to bring up our daughters that it is most confusing to them and we don't get anywhere. I thought we might both read the same literature and perhaps come to some understanding. Have you any suggestions on general reading that you think would help us?"

Answer: Your idea is an excellent one to help parents to get together, and I can help you, though not with actual names of books here, for lack of space. We have a list called "Reading for Fathers." Also, one called "Short Child Management Reading Reference," consisting mostly of pamphlet suggestions. Another, called "Longer Child Management Reading Reference," recommends a few excellent books written for parents.

Besides these we have our own booklets on child behavior which are mentioned here from time to time, such as the ones on "Obedience, Shyness, Patience," etc. These are sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Question: "My runabout daughter is just beginning to have playmates, but she does not seem to get along well with them. They have squabbles and she doesn't share her toys very well. I don't want her to be selfish. What can I do to cure her?"

Answer: Principally, give her time. She has been without other children so much that she doesn't know how to play with them. It takes time for children to make what we call the social or group adjustment.

See that the children have plenty of playthings that are right for their age and then let them alone as much as possible—interfering tactfully only when necessary, or to prevent some one getting hurt.

A Black and White Outfit

This dress of Ruth Selwyn has a capelet collar and the skirt has a series of circular ruffles lined with white silk. A jeweled buckle is the ornament for the patent leather belt while the hat shows a braiding of black and white. The contrast is carried further with the black purse and slippers and white gloves.

Collect Six Short Stories by Aldington

Most of Them Are in His Satiric Vein.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Soft Answers," by Richard Aldington. [Doubleday-Doran.] Published today.

LAST year England was all hot and bothered about Richard Aldington's "The Colonel's Daughter"—red hot, as a matter of fact, with anger over it and so bothered that the book was unofficially banned. That is, the largest book dealers refused to sell it, or have it in their circulating libraries, which amounts to banning a book, since the circulating libraries of England are the backbone of the popularity of a book.

Americans found it a satiric and at times cruelly bitter picture of life in an English village, but neither immoral nor subversive to the present state of political-social affairs. To American readers banning "The Colonel's Daughter" would have been on a par with banning "Main Street," which likewise was a satiric and cruel picture of village life.

Like all bannings, however, instead of strangling the author's reputation it made him and his works the talk of the town [and the country] and lifted him out of the class of a delightful writer with a small public into the class of a writer with a big public.

Six Long Short Stories.

"Soft Answers," a volume of Mr. Aldington's short stories, arrives in the United States some seven months after "The Colonel's Daughter," but, so fickle is the modern reader in his excitement, well after the furore has died down. As a matter of fact, the publication of "The Colonel's Daughter" in New York pricked the bubble of excitement for a great many who had expected something startling from the book's reception in England. It made its way as a bit of brilliant satire, pleased the cognoscenti and was a trifle over the heads of the mass of those who run as they read [and do everything else!]

There are six long short stories in "Soft Answers," most of them written in Mr. Aldington's serio-comic satiric vein. One of them is just plain farce funny, the story of Oswald, who was woman-ruled.

Of them all, "Last Straws" is the most characteristically Aldington; that is, the Aldington of the fine novel, "Death of a Hero." It has in it the same kind of talk about the war that made "Death of a Hero" unforgettable. It is not a war story—but it happens at a reunion of three friends who had been through the big fight together, when the conversation naturally turns to those days of superexcitement, as, if you notice, it always does when old soldiers get together. There is bitterness and bile in that conversation

The "plot" of the story is concerned with the despair of one of the men at the receipt of a letter from his wife telling him that she is leaving him for another man, and a trick of fate which made his friends just a few moments too late to prevent a holocaust. It is a story that one doesn't forget—not because of what happens in it but because of what is said by the characters in it.

"Nobody's Baby" has a mysteriously parented child in it, but it is principally amusing for the character of Charlemagne Cox, an American pseudo-Apollo pianist, and for the jibes which the author makes at the ultra-ultras of the intelligentsia.

Hits "Gentleman" of England.

"A Gentleman of England" leaves no shred of the false front of the English "gentleman" of long lineage and short sense. And the author has an elegant time ripping that false front to pieces.

"Stepping Heavenward" is a little complicated in its humor for me—it is about an American who became a saint apparently by means of never making up his mind about anything.

"Now Lies She Here" is a tragic tale of a stubborn woman who had only to hear a suggestion to have to do the exact opposite. In it Mr. Aldington does a little fancy carving up of the "arty" crowd who drink too much and talk too much and live too well.

Mr. Aldington, unlike many novelists, does not reserve his art only for his novels. There is no sense of slipshod haste or lack of interest on the part of the author toward his work in his short stories. They are written with the same skill which makes his novels important. But they haven't any special "it." They are much better than most short stories that one reads in collected volumes of tales [and only the very best achieve the permanency of book covers]. But they simply don't excite you especially, either as ideas or as writing in most cases, and there ARE short stories in the world that are as vital and as thrilling to a reader as any novel ever written.

Winnetka Women to Present Four Puppet Shows for Charity

Entire Benefit Production Is Work of Nine North Shore Sponsors of Event.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THERE is no end, apparently, to the talents which ingenious women can turn to profit for charity. In Winnetka tomorrow and Saturday there is to be a benefit which is different even in this day of smart and interesting philanthropic stunts. It is to be a puppet show, or rather four puppet shows, at the Winnetka Community house.

The remarkable thing about the benefit is not so much the puppets, but the fact that the nine women who are sponsoring the show have made the marionettes themselves and will work the controlling strings and be the "voices" behind the scenes.

The show, an underseas comedy called "Barnacle Bill and the Mermaid," was written by Mrs. Henry T. Tenney, and the accompanying music was composed by Mrs. Norman W. Harris, assisted by Clark J. Lawrence and David Dushkin, who is to play some of his hand made instruments. The original chorus numbers will include "The Tank Corps Turtles," "The White Cap Chorus," "The Spanish Mackerel Chorus," and other novelties with an appropriately nautical flavor.

The performances will be given at the Winnetka Community house tomorrow at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and at 8 o'clock in the evening. On Saturday there will be a performance at 11 in the morning and a matinee at 3 o'clock.

The women responsible for the show have been giving performances of the sort for charity for 10 years in Winnetka and other north shore suburbs. Besides Mrs. Tenney and Mrs. Harris, they are Mrs. Clark J. Lawrence, Mrs. Nathaniel H. Blatchford, Mrs. Dudley Cates, Mrs. J. Francis Dammann, Mrs. Samuel A. Greeley, Mrs. Frederic O. Mason, and Mrs. Perry Smith.

Mrs. Donnelley to Be 87 Today.

Mrs. Richard R. Donnelley will celebrate her eighty-seventh birthday today by having a few old friends call in the afternoon at her residence at 4609 Woodlawn avenue, and by having her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren for dinner tonight.

At the family party tonight will be Mrs. Donnelley's daughter and son, Miss Naomi Donnelley and Thomas E. Donnelley, and the latter's wife and their children, Clarissa, Elliott and Gaylord; Clarissa's husband, Charles C. Haffner Jr. and their two children; Elliott's wife and their child, and Thorne and Eleanor, children of the late Reuben H. Donnelley, and Thorne's wife and Eleanor's [Mrs. Pardee Erdman's] little daughter.

Mrs. Erdman and little Laura Thorne Erdman came on from Pasadena especially for the celebration today, and are visiting at the south side residence of Mrs. and Miss Donnelley. Mme. Donnelley, who came to Chicago from Ontario almost seventy years ago, is a charming gentlewoman of the old school, loved by all who know her and greatly respected for her goodness. As her daughter said yesterday, "She belongs to the old school and doesn't like publicity so please do not say much about her birthday."

Wedding Party of Barbara Neff.

Miss Louise Neff is to be her sister's maid of honor when Miss Barbara Neff is married to Solomon B. Smith on Saturday, May 14, at St. Chrysostom's church, and Mrs. M. Scott Bromwell, a sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. W. Press Hodgkins, Miss Elizabeth Rumsey, Miss Jane Schuttler, Mrs. Louis C. Sudler, and Miss Louise Brewer will be the bridesmaids.

Edward Byron Smith will serve as his brother's best man, and ushering will be Mr. Bromwell, Mr. Hodgkins, Gardner Brown, Huntington Eldridge, George S. Stevenson, Malcolm Stevenson, John P. Wilson Jr., and Frank H. Woods Jr., of Chicago, and Irving H. Peck Jr. and Herbert H. Stratford of New York.

The service is to be read at the fashionable hour of 4:30 o'clock by the Rev. Dudley Stark, St. Chrysostom's new rector, and later there will be a small reception—the invitation list is limited to the relatives, Miss Neff tells me—at the residence of the bride and her sister and brother, Richard S. Neff, at 50 Bellevue place.

Mr. Smith, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Solomon A. Smith of 1242 Lake Shore drive and Lake Forest, and his bride will live in Chicago or Lake Forest, but they have not decided where yet.

The Saturday before his own wedding Mr. Smith will usher at the wedding of Miss Helen Stanley and Victor Elting Jr., which is to take place at the same hour in the same church. Mr. Brown and Malcolm Stevenson also will usher at this wedding as well as at the Neff-Smith one. The other ushers will be Miss Stanley's brother, W. Edwin Stanley Jr.; John Irving Shaw, and Bruce Thorne. John Elting will come from Princeton, where he is an undergraduate, to be his brother's best man, and Miss Barbara Stanley, who is a student at St. Timothy's school at Catonsville, Md., will be her sister's honor maid.

The bridesmaids will be Princess Josephine Galitzine, Miss Constance Hasler, Mrs. Gordon P. Kelley, Mrs. Walter F. McLallen, and Mrs. W. Irving Osborne Jr. There will be a reception at the Casino after the ceremony.

Reservations for Bus Tour.

Among those who have made reservations for Mrs. Frank Hibbard's bus tour to the Oriental institute and the stockyards today are Mrs. Roy Carney, Mrs. Edward D. Shumway, Mrs. Richard D. Stevenson, Mrs. Oren B. Taft, Mrs. Ronald P. Boardman, and Mrs. James Ward Thorne.

The tours have been so successful that Mrs. Hibbard plans to continue them, and is planning trips to other parts of the city. All of the proceeds, along with the profits of her little shop, "Conveniences," go to charity.

Reservations for luncheon at the Illinois Woman's Athletic club today following Ellery Walter's talk on "High Hats and Low Bows" have been made by Mrs. Edwin McGinnis, Mrs. George A. Mason, Mrs. Arthur Cutten, Miss Dorothy Schmidt, Mrs. Edwin A. Seipp, Mrs. Henry K. Chapin, Mrs. Harold Eldridge, Mrs. Dana Slade, Mrs. Alfred Tyler, Mrs. William C. Pullman, and Mrs. Lansing B. Warner. Mrs. Raymond C. Dudley, the president, will be hostess to the speaker and members of the board of directors.

About 75 members of the woman's auxiliary of the Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest attended a luncheon yesterday to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of Miss Phoebe Gould's affiliation with the church work. Mrs. Carter Harrison Fitzhugh presided, and among others present were Mrs. Herbert W. Prince, wife of the rector of the parish and president of the auxiliary; Mrs. William E. Casselberry, Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, Mrs. Uri B. Grannis, Mrs. James O. Heyworth, Mrs. William V. Kelley, and Mrs. Robert A. Gardner.

Another Fashion Show Announced.

Another fashion show! This one is to be on May 10 in the parish house of St. Chrysostom's church under the direction of the "Tuesday Nighters," an organization of young people of the parish, for the benefit of Camp Oronoko. I. Newton Perry will serve as master of ceremonies and among the women interested are Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. Fletcher M. Durbin, Mrs. Dudley S. Stark, Mrs. Perry, Mrs. Rensselaer W. Cox, and Mrs. Le Roy Kramer.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Moore Jr. [Rhea Munroe] of Greenwich, Conn., are to be congratulated on the birth of a daughter on Monday in New York.

The baby is the second granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Munroe of Chicago and Greenwich and the third great-granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan of 1150 Lake Shore drive. She will be brought to Chicago in June with her cousins, Joan Lloyd, the two year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lloyd [Josephine Munroe], and Gladys Logan Terbell, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Terbell [Phoebe Logan], when four generations of Logans will gather here to celebrate the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan.

Mr. and Mrs. Moore, whose engagement was announced on the night of the former Rhea Munroe's debut, were married last June at the Munroe summer estate in Greenwich.

Mrs. W. S. Ennis Returns to City.

Mrs. William S. Ennis of 2600 Lake View avenue and her daughter, Miss Margaret Ennis, returned yesterday from a two weeks' cruise of the West Indies.

Mr. and Mrs. John T. McCutcheon will arrive in Chicago from their winter residence, Treasure Island, in the Bahama islands, the end of this month and will go directly to Lake Forest for the summer.

Mrs. McCutcheon's mother, Mrs. Howard Shaw, with whom the McCutcheon boys have been staying during the absence of their parents, is planning to go east in June for the graduation of her youngest daughter, Theodora, from Sarah Lawrence college at Bronxville. The graduation exercises will take place on June 19. Miss Shaw has just returned to college after spending her spring holidays with the McCutcheons.

Howard Elting Jr. will arrive in New York on Friday from Dresden, Germany, where he has been in the diplomatic service since last fall. He is to be stationed in Washington for three months, but his parents won't know whether he will be given leave for a visit at home until after he has reported to the state department.

Designers Put Some Touches on Nightgowns

Fitted Curves, Necklines Featured.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

THESE clever people who think about things for us to wear certainly improve every shining hour. The never ending supply of new ideas fills the gad about shopper with envious admiration, even awe—when do they find time to see all these new inventions!

For instance—new nightgowns, practically everything has been done for them in the way of lace and material and necklines and fitted curves and whatever else was needed to make them lovelier than ever before, but, now, along comes a new one—a combination affair with a long shoulder covering scarf collar that transforms the nightgown entirely. This scarf is detachable. You wear it as a breakfast jacket to cover your shoulders as you lazily and picturesquely breakfast in bed!

Another slick invention for smooth curves is the newest idea in slips, made especially for those of us who do not like unnecessary underlayers. This slip, rightly named "sleeko," is made of satin, cut the smart bias manner to make it hug every curve without bulging, and it is so fashioned that it is all you will need to wear even under the sheerest frock because it is much longer than a combination and has, otherwise, all the requirements of all the other unmentionables.

If you are tiring of mesh hose, ask to see the new lace stockings, the latest excitement for ankle appeal! These lacey new patterns have been carefully copied from rare old laces, intricate, cobwebby motifs that are breathtakingly beautiful. Delightful designs simulate the patterns of Alençon, and many other laces with lavender memories and traditions. They are very practical and wearable in spite of their sheerness, because they are so looped and twisted and lock stitched as to resist and prevent snagging. New spring colors are accurately toned and shaded to correctly complement all fashionable fabrics.

And for bracelet buyers that simply can't resist the clank of new arm bangles look for the new Patou inventions—a series of seven silver or gold metal bracelets with squared edges. These are not thin, but not excessively thick or heavy, either. They are so designed that they stay together in good close formation. Seven are usually worn but you can be tremendously extreme and very smart and different and double that effect with fifteen, worn with a severely plain black frock, thereby starting a riot among envious other collectors.

If you must have color you can buy the same size and shape and keep the volume down to four with colored enamel bracelets designed by the same genius. You can go in for a lot of spectacular combinations, with such glowing colors as lemon yellow, jade green, scarlet vermilion, black, brown, and bright blue, and white.

This must be the busy season for people who unpack handbags. Each day new bags are displayed to tempt shoppers. Gayly colored summer confections are the newest arrivals, although the not so new wooden bead bags are being tried out in new small envelope purses for sports and street costumes. Patent leather in every imaginable color is available now with the decorative perforations to match perforated footwear, but the best buys are the new gingham calf handbags of sleek calfskin exactly duplicating the colorful tiny pinchecks of dress gingham.

Fewer Freshmen Choose Economics at Harvard

Cambridge, Mass., April 20.—[Special.]—According to preliminary statistics released at University hall at Harvard, 121 freshmen are making English their field of concentration, while only ninety-one have chosen economics. These figures are in sharp contrast to those on record for the classes of 1932, 1933, and 1934, all of which have contributed at least 140 men to the field of economics. Third, fourth, and fifth on the list are, respectively, bio-chemical sciences, history, and romance languages.

Frock Designed on Two-Blouse Lines Is Paris Thought for Cinderella

DOROTHY DULIN PARIS

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The two blouse style is great for Cinderellas, and Paris dotes on it. The haughtiest grandées of the rue de la Paix light up in a fond papa fashion when one of their two blouse models heaves into sight, as much as to say, "Voila, quelque chose" which, translated into the original Hebrew, means hot stuff in the way of chic.

And, as I stated before, this kind of dress is great for the girl with a Cinderella pocketbook. The afternoon models in this type are particularly good, because they see you through a lot of evenings, too.

The way of the two blouse dress is, usually, thus: There is a low necked, short sleeved dress of sober silk, and under this is a dressy blouse of printed chiffon, lace, or such material. The dress can be worn with or without.

The Ardanse frock, pictured today, is an example. It's made of violet-blue crêpe romaine, with a plaited skirt, sewed in notches onto the fitted hip-yoke, a simple blouse and short cape sleeves set into the neck raglan fashion. There's a bias band edging the back décolleté, and it becomes two scarfs in front, scarfs that drape gracefully around the neck and fall over the left shoulder. Under this is a blouse of white Irish crochet lace which shows below the sleeves and at the front like a dicky.

I'm always opening cans and stewing up little bits of this and that and working my oven overtime, trying out new things and making new combinations of old favorites. So I thought that this morning I'd tell you about some experiments I've made lately.

The first of these had to do with dried vegetables. The ones I tried came in a small, transparent paper bag, put up by a California packer. There were about ten varieties, including celery, tomatoes, carrots, and others. A tablespoon or two was sufficient when cooked to serve two people, so you can see what possibilities they would have for campers and such-like people with whom the bulk of their provisions is a problem.

I cooked the vegetables in water, as instructed on the envelope, for about an hour and a half. By that time they were tender and really looked like vegetables, instead of the dry chips they had been. Then I made a medium cream sauce and combined the vegetables with it. Next I greased custard cups and poured them two-thirds full of the vegetable mixture. On top I placed slices of cheese, strong American cheese that is quite inexpensive but one of the best choices for cooking, and sprinkled paprika over the top. I baked the vegetables in a moderate oven till the cheese melted. This dish is interesting in flavor and since it is quite a hearty combination of foods it is a good luncheon dish.

Besides using them in this way, these mixed vegetables are recommended for soup.

You have eaten stuffed olives wrapped in bacon strips and grilled till the bacon is crisp, haven't you? Artichoke hearts may be treated in the same way, to serve as appetizers, and they are delicious. Use the canned hearts. These come in several sizes of cans, the smallest size containing from four to six hearts, and as every person eats at least two you can plan your marketing accordingly.

Drain the hearts thoroughly, removing a few leaves if they seem too large. Cut the bacon in two lengthwise and wrap the hearts in the strips, skewering them with toothpicks. Broil till the bacon is crisp and serve hot, with iced tomato juice.

Here is a good sandwich for people who are cloyed with sweets. It is made on rye bread, preferably the kind that has caraway seeds on top, and the sandwiches are open-faced. Toast the bread on one side, butter the other and cover with sliced cheese. Spread with prepared mustard. Lay strips of anchovy over the cheese, top with a slice of tomato, add salt and pepper and grill.

VEGETABLE OMELET.

Chop one-half a green pepper and a small onion and cook in a frying pan with two tablespoons of butter over a slow fire till tender but not browned. Add to them half a dozen cold boiled potatoes and a cup of cooked turnip, both chopped fine. Add a little more butter and cook vegetables for two minutes. Add four tablespoons of cream. Season and spread the mixture out to an even thickness. Brown and remove to platter. Garnish with anchovy curls and slices of hard cooked egg.

FRIED DEVILED OYSTERS.

Drain oysters and marinate in dressing.
½ cup salad oil.
¼ cup vinegar.
1 tablespoon hot cooking sauce.
½ teaspoon salt.
1 teaspoon grated horseradish.

Drain oysters and let stand in above dressing for several hours. Drain again, roll in crumbs, dip in beaten egg, then in crumbs, and fry in deep fat.

Discover Gelatin Is Old Secret of Making Felt Hats

This discovery was announced today in the annual report of Dr. E. R. Weidlein, director of Mellon Institute of Industrial Research.

The gelatin effect is the last of a series of mysteries that began about 1650 when hatters learned how to convert into felt the fur of beaver, nutria, muskrat, hare, and rabbit. The process has changed little since.

Carroting was the name of this process, a French discovery. It is a chemical treatment of fur.

Until the discovery hatters believed the fur was held together in smooth felt by its "barbs."

Carroting wets the fur. The institute finds that fur wet under this process acquires the ability to absorb water.

"Fur so wet," the report states, "become pliant or analogous to that of a gelatin."

Grand Duchess Visits Exiles at Hollywood

Delays Studio Visits to See Countrymen.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., April 20.—Proud to term herself "an American tradeswoman," Grand Duchess Marie of Russia put off invitations to soirées, studio visits, banquets, and business conferences with the high and mighty of filmdom to spend her first full day in Los Angeles with exiled aristocrats of the old Romanoff régime.

Among the émigrés—many of them now connected with the movies—who worshiped as Father Zimaroff intoned the chants—were Maj. Gen. Theodore Lodijensky, one time commander in the czar's guard, who has acted in many films and participated in several café ventures with Charlie Chaplin; Prince Godizine and several former generals.

Lilyan Tashman was home from the shopping wars of Paris and New York with eleven trunksful of trophies today. It was Miss Tashman's first step on Hollywood soil in eight months and one of her greetings was information that her contract with Paramount has not been renewed. This, however, did not perturb the girl who drew $6,000 a week at one time during her recent stage run in eastern theaters.

Lilyan said she enjoyed Paris most because the Paris styles of the moment are ideal for film purposes because of long, pictorial lines.

The automobile crash that sent Chico Marx to the hospital last week has also sent Director Norman MacLeod to Europe. The director had been hankering for a long time to make a trip abroad. When the surgeons sent word it would be ten or twelve weeks before Chico could even attempt to work, Paramount disbanded the unit temporarily, and gave MacLeod leave of absence to make the voyage.

Mildred Harris, one time wife of Charlie Chaplin and a belle of the screen colony, is now playing the leading woman of a New York burlesque troupe, according to advices here.

Clarence Brown is taking a hasty fling at seeing Europe also. He will fly to New York Thursday and spend three months abroad.

Fredric March, new Paramount ace actor, broke down and admitted he used to pose for clothing ads. So did Neil Hamilton. But Reed Howes, the original "collar" ad boy, is almost out of the movies now, after rating a top position during the silent days.

Florence Britton, a University of California co-ed, is another college girl getting a boost up the film ladder at Paramount. She has been signed to a lead in "Merrily We Go to Hell," with Fredric March and Sylvia Sidney. She's only been in the movies one year.

Plans to Quit Old Landmark at River Forest

Mrs. Waller to Give Up Old Residence.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

One of the lovely old estates spread out on the banks of the meandering Des Plaines river is soon to be forsaken by its original masters. It is the Edward C. Waller home at the river on Lake street in River Forest—for 50 odd years a landmark in the western suburb.

Mrs. Waller, who has passed considerable time the last winter at her own town apartment, 942 Lake Shore drive, explained with regret the other day that health necessitated her giving up the big gabled house. She remembers the wild crab apples that used to abound along the river; she knew Lake street before the days of trolley cars; and she has memories of some delightful parties in the great high ceilinged dining room of the old mansion. But even then her devotion for this "country" home is no more sincere than that of Magnus, a caretaker who has been with the Waller family for more than 30 years and hates to think about the contemplated removal.

"I love this old place," he said yesterday as he acted as guide about the 13 acres that stretch along the east bank of the river. "You know there used to be some more property across the stream but that was taken a while back for the forest preserve."

The 23 room house with its stables, summer house, greenhouses, water tower, and recreation house represents the substantial type of home built by pioneer Chicagoans when they sought the healthy freedom of the "country." But unlike his predecessor, David C. Thatcher, who moved out west to retire because "he had amassed a competency," the late Mr. Waller chose the suburbs as the proper environment for bringing up a family and as a fertile field in which to engage in the real estate business.

In fact the great Victorian house recalls the story of the settlement of this region—away back to the days when Marquette and Joliet traveled up the Des Plaines and inspired by the beauty of the stream called it the "Riviere Divine." Before them Indians, tribe upon tribe, had traveled the river and the prairies stretching out from its banks.

"There was probably no other place of like importance on the American continent," say Knight and Zeuch in their history of the Chicago portage route of the 17th century, "for there is every reason to believe it was a meeting place and a much traveled route of the Indians centuries before the discovery of America. Later furs that were purchased for a string of beads or a tomahawk and passed to the magnificent courts of Europe were carried over its course."

But even two centuries later found this section still unsettled with the exception of a saw mill here and there, one built on the banks of the "River aux Plaines" by Mark Noble and George Bickerdike. Today a hollow on the Waller estate marks the site of this mill which supplied white oak lumber for the new settlers in the frontier town of Chicago. When Joseph Kettlestrings and his family, Oak Park's first settlers, came west in 1833, they stopped at the mill and erected their log cabin along side of it. Mrs. Kettlestrings "boarded the hands" while her husband helped saw the lumber.

Twenty-three years later David C. Thatcher arrived on the scene looking for a site where he might have a "handsome home with an abundance of ground," a few friends, and his religion. Samuel Rattle copied Mr. Thatcher's example within the next two years and then 50 or 100 more Chicagoans during the following five years—enough to cause the Chicago and North Western railroad to open a railroad station in 1863, with the name of Thatcher.

This title, which, of course, recognized the pioneering spirit of David Thatcher continued until 1880 when the name River Forest was adopted as more suggestive of the beauty of the landscape. The same year a petition stating that 300 people had "come west to live" brought about incorporation. It was at this time that the Wallers, appreciating the natural advantage of the town, chose the generous plot for their river side home.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight")

Yesterday's play-a-problem was a very pretty example of the strip play, a name given to a clever practical bridge maneuver. The hand was:

NORTH.
♠—10,9,7,6,5
♥—7,6,5
♦—A,4,2

WEST.	EAST.
♠—Q	♠—4,3
♥—K,J,8	♥—10,3,2
♦—K,Q,J,8,3	♦—10,9,7,5
♣—Q,J,10,2	♣—9,5,4,3

SOUTH [Dealer].
♠—A,K,J,8,2
♥—A,Q,9,4

South dealt and made a game invitational bid of two spades. West overcalled with three diamonds. North went to three spades. East passed. South, sensing the possibility of a slam, and feeling that his hand justified a slam invitation after North's boost, now went to five spades. West passed. North, knowing that South's main strength could not be simply long spades because of his own long spade holding, and holding the diamond A, which the opponents had bid, now went to six spades for the small slam, which closed the bidding.

West opened the ♦ K, dummy played the A, East the 7 and declarer the 6. South saw at once that in all probability, since there were only three spades out, that he had no losing spade tricks. He also saw that he had no losing diamond tricks and no losing club tricks. It was obvious, however, that he must lose one heart trick, and if he tried to finesse and the finesse went wrong he would lose a second heart trick and his slam. He therefore looked around for some way of avoiding the finesse and risking the set. Let us see how South accomplished this. To the second trick he led the ♦ 2, which he trumped in his own hand with the ♠ J. He then led the ♠ A, dropping West's Q. To the fourth trick he led the ♠ 2, overtaking with the 6 in dummy and clearing the trump suit. Dummy then led back the ♦ 4, which declarer trumped with the ♠ 8. Declarer then led the ♣ A, followed by the ♣ K, and to the eighth trick led the ♣ 7 which dummy trumped with the ♠ 7. You will note that South has stripped the dummy and his own hand of both clubs and diamonds, so that either of these suits if led by an opponent can be trumped in either hand. To the ninth trick dummy led the ♥ 7, East played the 2 and South the 9. If East had played the ♥ 10 South would have played the Q. South wishes to lose his one losing heart trick to West and keep a tenace in hearts. At this point it makes no difference what West, who has taken the trick with the ♥ J, may lead.

If West leads anything but a heart declarer will discard a heart from dummy and trump in his own hand. He will then take in his ♥ A and trump his two remaining hearts in the dummy hand. If, on the other hand, West should lead a heart, South makes both his ♥ A-Q trumping the last heart in the dummy. Either way North and South make their six odd and their little slam.

Here is tomorrow's play-a-problem:

NORTH.
♠—None
♥—J,6,5,4
♦—9,8,7,6,2

West [Dealer].	EAST.
♠—K,9,8	♠—A,Q,J,10,5
♥—A,K,Q,3,2	♥—10,9,8,7
♦—5,4	♦—A,3

SOUTH.
♥—None
♦—K,Q,J,10
♣—Q,J,10,2

Bid and play this hand and compare the result with that printed tomorrow.

Girl Shows Her Gratitude for Boy's Company

And He, Dismayed, Does Not Come Again.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The girl says she kissed the young man when he was leaving because she thought it was so kind of him to come and spend the evening with her. And she told him how good it was of him.

That was six weeks ago, and he hasn't called since. Also, he didn't stop to talk to her when she ran into him on the street one day since.

Now, if there is one way not to make a favorable impression on a young man it is to be so grateful for his company as all that. It's enough to say you enjoyed the evening and say it with feeling. But kissing a young man out of sheer gratitude for the hours he spent with you just isn't done. Not if you want your stock to go up with him.

When young men go calling, doing it in the name of charity is the last thing they have in mind. They go to spend an evening with a girl who promises to be interesting, attractive and the kind of girl who would be appealing to other boys as well. Anything less than that in the girl they were to spend an evening with would be lost time. Imagine, then, the confusion of a young man after what might be surmised as a rather self-conscious evening to be embraced for his kindness.

No, human nature asks more of companionships. It asks that the other person put as fair a premium on herself or on himself as you do on yourself. That's the way mutual respect is cultivated. The attitude to take is that the other person is as glad to spend time in your company as you are in his. Once you put yourself in the light of a suppliant grateful for favors you destroy the pattern upon which romantic friendships are built.

Especially in these boy and girl affairs you must preserve the dignity of desirability. Some girls go to boring extremes in their attempt to overstate their popularity. They regale the male caller with names of other boys and dates in order to impress. And though this isn't good billiards, either, it is more advisable to oversell oneself than undersell. The latter a girl unquestionably does [or a boy does] who over-expresses feelings of gratefulness.

How to Put On Weight

Rest and Relaxation Bring Pounds Back to Thin Sisters

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The outstanding need of the underweight girl is to learn to relax. She may not be thin solely because she is on tenderhooks all the time. But that tension has a lot to do with the state of undernourishment she suffers. It prevents proper digestion and assimilation of her food.

Your comfortably plump madame is never a high strung, tense mortal, but your high strung girl invariably is thin. She uses up what little fat storage she has with the very tension under which she lives. There's nothing gained by the attitude of mind except more worry about how to add a flattering pound or two.

So why not try to take things easier—and relax? Easier ordered than done, you say? Well, is it harder than looking a nice, juicy, forbidden dish in the eye when one is on a reducing diet? Is it any harder than making up your mind to give your hips their daily roll? Not a bit harder. In fact, the plump sister's many obligations make the thin girl's relaxing job a pretty soft looking piece of business.

Any way, that's what the thins must do if they want to take on any resemblance to the 1932 preferred model. They must come reasonably padded. You can operate this relaxing plan every time you sit down by taking a complete flop from head to foot. And you can help your case along by taking such outdoor exercise as will leave you a bit fatigued. Then, of course, you must do other things.

Grace Brinkley, well known stage beauty and prima donna, appearing in one of the current Broadway shows, reports that she has been gaining at the rate of two pounds each week under her doctor's care. Three times a day, between meals, she takes, on her doctor's orders, what she calls her fattening cocktail made of one-third sweet cream to two-thirds ginger ale. And we claim that, as an addition to ginger ale, cream is a better ingredient than some we've heard tell about.

In addition to the fattening cocktail, Miss Brinkley takes after each meal cod liver oil. And this, plus nine hours' sleep every day, is getting the blond and beautiful Miss Brinkley back to the desired curved lines in reasonably quick time.

Opera Backers Exceed Quota, but Work On

Earnest Group Determined to Build Fund.

The women of the opera guarantee fund committee have raised $1,100 more than the $50,000 they set as their quota when Samuel Insull asked them to help raise the fund for next year, but they are not stopping work although the weekly meetings are discontinued. They will meet again, however, on Wednesday, May 11, at Mrs. Waller Borden's to report on what they do from now 'til then.

The committee met yesterday in Mrs. Edward F. Swift's spacious drawing room at 1550 State parkway and reported $1,500 raised during the last week, bringing the total amount secured by the men's [some one stated yesterday and that there were 700 men working on that committee] and the women's [numbering about 25] committees to $341,480.

It really is inspiring to hear this little band of earnest workers tell of their hard work to obtain money to "save opera for Chicago" and although some of the reports are pessimistic, there is a general note of optimism that is wonderful.

In talking about the sale of boxes yesterday Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick replied to someone's suggestion that no one would sign up for a box for 3 years now, with "I will. I may come to the opera with holes in my clothes, but I will sign for 3 years."

And when Mrs. Arthur Meeker, who presided, ended a charming little speech with the words, "let us hope the opera isn't going out of existence," Mrs. McCormick said, "It isn't going out of existence," and she said it as if she meant it and knew what she was talking about.

Mrs. Charles K. Corsant, chairman of the committee, received the telegraphed report of the meeting aboard the train on which she is speeding to California to be with her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Ryan, when she has an emergency operation. Mrs. Corsant had to leave Tuesday night for the west.

STRING QUARTET

BY EDWARD MOORE.

In its second concert in the foyer of Orchestra hall last night the Philharmonic String quartet confirmed the opinion formed during the first, that less than one season has sufficed to make it one of the excellent, not to say prominent, musical organizations of Chicago. Its members are members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra; its members have taken the time from their by no means light orchestra duties to develop themselves in the different ensemble of the small group, and they have made long strides in the right direction.

Three quartets were played last night. The program began with Haydn's opus 71, No. 3, in C, and closed with Ravel's in F, one of the finest that has been written in modern times. In between the organization gave the first Chicago performance of Prokofieff's opus 50. It is a curious work, since it combines in about equal qualities sincere fancy, stolidity, light hearted gayety, and tongue-in-cheek smartness of effect. In these matters it does not differ greatly from much of Prokofieff's other music, except that when written for four strings they seem somewhat more underlined. The work was played with great spirit and made a stirring effect.

D. A. R. TEMPERS PAMPHLET WAR ON COMMUNISM

Realistic Campaigner Is Out of Office.

Washington, D. C., April 20.—[Special.]—The D. A. R. seems to have blacklisted its own blacklist.

At least that is the general interpretation today put upon its freezing out of office of Mrs. William Sherman Walker of the state of Washington, for the last six years its national defense chairman.

For Mrs. Walker, who came here to do war work, and remained to head up the D. A. R.'s newly formed national defense committee which was an outgrowth of the war and was not originally included in the organization's setup, is reputed to be the instigator of whatever "blacklist" there may have been. It is she, too, who has collected a "chamber of horrors" over at the national headquarters, containing pamphlets and exhibits purporting to show the subtle development of communism in this country.

Was Highly Praised.

Zealous and militant, Mrs. Walker was widely praised during the administration of Mrs. Grace H. Brousseau, of whom she was a close friend. She remained as committee chairman when Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart succeeded Mrs. Brousseau to the presidency three years ago, but a growing group in the organization questioned the wisdom of some of her methods and charged her defense campaign with "sensationalism."

When the widely heralded harmony convention assembled Monday it was noted that Mrs. Walker did not occupy a place on the platform. All during the sessions she sat with her Washington state group. Today came the news that she was not to be retained as committee chairman.

It is revealed that some members of the Daughters of the American Revolution, eager to undo any possible overemphasis of "blacklists, communism charges, and the like," which Mrs. Walker may have stressed, wanted the office abolished entirely. They preferred to concentrate this year on "education and historic research."

A compromise, however, seems to have been reached, whereby the committee is kept, but kept, evidently, in the background.

There was some talk today in the corridors, of Mrs. Walker's planned fight to select a slate of vice presidents of her own, against the harmony slate prepared by the group that is backing Mrs. Russell William Magna for the presidency. Mrs. Magna is unopposed and her election is assured at the polls tomorrow.

Mrs. Walker, declining to comment on the incident that is the one discordant note in this harmony convention, remarked merely that she intended to return to her state. She refused to say anything about a report that she plans to run for the senate against Senator Clarence C. Dill [Dem., Wash.].

Mother and Son Jailed by U. S. as Bootleggers

Mrs. Pauline Sokolowski and her son, Edwin Aluza, both of Fox Lake, were sentenced to 90 days in jail and fined $300 each when they were arraigned yesterday before Federal Judge Charles G. Briggle on charges of possessing and selling intoxicating liquor. It was the woman's fourth offense.

Asks Police Aid in Hunt for Her Missing Brother

Mrs. Margaret Jolly, 815 South Main street, Lombard, asked Chicago police yesterday to search for her brother, Herbert Wright, 37 years old, who disappeared from her home on Saturday. It is believed that Wright, an invalid for the last year, might have tried to hitch-hike to North Dakota, where he has friends. He was described as 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighing 130 pounds. He has brown hair and eyes, and when he left he wore a blue coat, black sweater, gray sweat shirt, light gray trousers, and tan sandals.

Killed by Fumes as He Works Over Automobile

Fred W. Koehler, 65 years old, was killed by carbon monoxide fumes last night as he was working on the motor of his automobile. He had closed the doors of the garage behind his home at 1217 North Waller avenue. Members of his family who found him asphyxiated summoned a fire department rescue squad, but the firemen were unable to revive him. Koehler was secretary of the Dick & Traeger Sash and Door company, 2244 Kinzie street.

PRISONER TURNED OVER TO U. S.

William J. Sardo, 35 years old, of New York, yesterday was turned over to federal authorities by the police. He was indicted in New York in 1922 for violation of the Harrison narcotic act and will be returned there for trial.

BENTON HARBOR BEAUTY PICKED IN FIELD OF 25

Dorothy Allerton Defeats Dazzling Group.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Benton Harbor, Mich., April 20.—[Special.]—Five harassed judges, confronted with the prettiest crop of girls in this community for years, voted and voted, and voted again in the Liberty theater here tonight. Eventually on the ninth ballot, Dorothy Allerton, a winsome brunette beauty with sparkling blue eyes and the sweetest smile in southwestern Michigan stood forth as Miss Benton Harbor, representative of one of the twin cities and a candidate for queen of the blossom festival during the first week in May.

With twenty-four blonds and brunettes and a single red-head for competition, Dorothy's survival was not achieved without a struggle. Her most persistent rival, whose selection trembled in the balance until the final moment, was Viola Speese, a graceful blond, with a faultless complexion, just a year younger than the 19 year old winner.

With a poise that belied her faintly quivering voice, Dorothy walked to the footlights for the huge bouquet bestowed on her by Mayor M. G. Stouck, declaring she was so thrilled she didn't know what to say. So she let it go at that.

No Hollywood For Her.

As the curtain fell, and she was besieged by photographers and interviewers, however, it developed that she did have something to say, and she said it emphatically. To the tune of cheers from the group around her, she said quite positively that she didn't want to go to Hollywood, "not the least little bit."

"But what do you really want to do?" queried a persistent inquisitor.

"I want to be a newspaper woman," firmly retorted the garlanded and blushing beauty. Whereupon two reporters swooned convincingly.

Demurs at "Outdoor Girl."

Mrs. Allerton was born in the town and spent most of her life here with the exception of a year in Chicago, where she was graduated from the Chicago college of commerce, and since then has been at home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Allerton. She is an only child.

Her complexion, of a wild rose tint that rivals the blossoms themselves, testifies to a healthy activity. She admits a fondness for tennis and some golf, but demurs at being described as an outdoor girl. She names dancing as her favorite recreation, and only laughed and begged the question when asked about an engagement. She is five feet five, weighs 115 pounds, and has softly waving dark brown hair, long, and worn in a smooth chignon on her neck.

Other Cities Choose.

Among other cities holding their final competitions tonight for entrants in the finals, to be run off a week from tonight, brunettes carried off the honors. Dowagiac elected Leone Lewis, 19; Three Rivers chose Geneva Thor, 19; Kalamazoo picked Grace Andra Marks, and Grand Rapids named Marjorie Crampton, 18.

South Haven chose Miss Leone Lee, 20 year old brunette, who is 5 feet 4 inches in height and has brown eyes and hair. Miss Stevensville is Marie Chmelav, 18, medium blond. Miss Niles is Cleo Mell, 19, 5 feet 3, with medium brown hair and eyes.

Miss Alice Kalcik, bruette, 20 years old, was chosen Miss New Buffalo.

The fortunate girl selected next Wednesday from the prettiest southwestern Michigan has to offer, will reign as sovereign of the tenth annual blossom festival, set for the first week in May.

112 Saloons in New York Booze Directory Raided

New York, April 20.—[Special.]—A total of 112 raids on as many alleged drinking resorts, most of them small basement places, have been made by dry agents since last Monday when a drive begun to close every place listed in the recently compiled directory of speakeasies. Thirty of the raids were made today.

WOMAN 'TIPSTER' FOR DRY RAIDERS BEATEN TO DEATH

Cleveland, O., April 20.—[Special.]—Police here were trying late today to determine whether her alleged activities as a federal dry "tipster" or her presence at what they think was a drunken brawl was responsible for the murder last night of Mrs. Kathryn Jones, 28 year old red-headed divorcée.

Sol Levy, 40, was formally charged with the murder and eight other persons were held as material witnesses. Preliminary hearing was set for tomorrow when Levy asked time to engage an attorney. He said he and his two companions were "too drunk to remember what happened."

Mrs. Jones was beaten and hurled down a flight of stairs at 1628 East 78th street. She was formerly employed by Harry McGrath, head of a private detective agency. She was reported on more than one occasion to have given federal dry agents "tips" which led to raids on speakeasies.

CUBS LOSE HOMECOMING GAME TO REDS, 7-2

YANKS WHIP A'S, 8-3; RUTH HITS ONE, AS USUAL

He Won't Disappoint 55,452 Customers.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Copyright, 1932, By The Chicago Tribune.]

New York, April 20.—Business may not have turned the corner this afternoon, but at least it slewed around a pretty sharp bend when the Yankees held their inaugural exercises by beating the Athletics, 8 to 3. The ball game, the blatting of the band, the marching to the flagpole and back, the mayor, and the police commissioner, combined into one gala attraction, drew 55,452 customers on a strictly cash basis.

The fine old custom of inviting thousands of deserving Democrats to attend the opening ceremonies of the home season free of charge had been suspended and the attendance established a new high and a new low. The paid admissions passed all previous marks, although it is impossible to say by just how much because baseball, the most statistical game of all, is strangely shy of statistics which smack of commercialism.

As Usual, Babe Hits One.

The magnates have a theory that to emphasize the financial statistics would be to fill their players with thoughts of monetary gain and distract their attention from their work. There were only 2,870 free tickets, listed as press admissions, the fewest honorary admissions ever issued for a New York opening. The term "press" in this connection covers a number of professions, possibly even the newspaper trade.

Babe Ruth, of course, hit a home run which arched across the lot, wasting much of its force on mere height, to drop barely beyond the chicken wire among the foremost customers in the bleachers. The Babe's cruising radius has been sharply curtailed since last year, and when it was remarked that he covered right field on a dime that was exaggerating his zone of operations by at least two cents. He has not lost his figure, which even in his younger days suggested a goose with the legs of a snipe, but the getup and gallop seems to have gone from his dogs.

However, the great man had been ill for a couple of days and it is quite possible that, at his best this season, he will cover the entire area of a dime. His home run occurred in the third inning, scoring Lyn Lary, who had hit a home run himself in the first. Mose Grove was the pitcher in both instances.

It Is a Habit with Babe.

Better home runs than Ruth's were hit as the game wore along, but his was the most theatrical one because, consider: he hit one the day the Yankee stadium was dedicated several years ago; he hit another, by special request, for Warren G. Harding the day they trundled the presidential motor train into the grounds through a gap in the outfield wall where there is a removable slab like a demountable front tooth; he has been hitting home runs on auspicious occasions for years, and today, with the band, the uniforms and the bunting out again, he produced again as of old.

In the outfield he can still grab hold of a ball hit into his hands and stoop for those which come dribbling out to him, and in the fifth inning today he up-ended himself gently over the rail of a box reaching for a foul that was yards away. There was not very convincing abandon in this heroic try and it did look as though he stopped and measured the feat before risking it purely as a display. But to the customers his outfielding always was mere background for his hitting, the bread that had to be eaten to earn a little cake. He can still hit home runs. Today's was his fourth of the season.

Gomez O. K.; Grove N. G.

Vernon Gomez, a left hander, pitched for the Yankees and completed his task, though the Athletics troubled him at his work in the seventh. Grove, on the other hand, never had much authority and Connie Mack stretched his neck a yard long at times during the contest trying to project himself to the outfield to handle the lively business going on out there. Roettger hit for Grove and walked during the demonstration against Gomez in the seventh, and George Earnshaw relieved

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., April 20.—The Chicago White Sox this afternoon continued their brutal hitting spree by pounding out three hits off Sam Gray. As a result they took their second shutout of the season at the hands of Mr. Gray and their fourth defeat in successive days of American league competition. The score of today's St. Louis season opener was Browns 5, Sox 0.

In addition to assaulting Gray with three hits the boys slammed three other balls to the outfield. The onslaught brought the Sox slugging record for four days to a staggering total of 20 singles and one eyelash double.

Two of the three hits were made by Carey Selph, who singled with two out in the second inning and stretched a single to a double when he caught Schulte asleep with one out in the fifth. The other hit was made by Jolley in the second inning, and was nullified rapidly by a double play.

Gray Was Anxious.

Gray didn't walk a man until a rainstorm cooled him off and caused him to pass Selph to start the eighth and Watwood to start the ninth. The Sox had four runners left on base, and the first three turned out to be the same fellow, Selph.

In the meantime the Browns were having a circus for themselves. In the five innings Hadley struggled they made ten hits, including a homer, a triple and a single by Schulte, a homer by Melillo, two doubles by Burns, and three singles by Goslin.

Ted Lyons pitched a while until rain halted the game for ten minutes and Paul Gregory went in and held the enemy hitless for one and one-third innings.

The Boys Were Surprised.

The starting of Gray was something of a shock to the Chicagoans, who made only five hits off him in Chicago last Thursday. Sam started in Detroit day before yesterday and had his ears pinned back by the Tigers in 3 2-3 innings. The boys had a right to think he'd be given a rest.

It wasn't very nice the way the Brownies opened up on Hadley at the very outset of their offensive. F. Schulte launched things with a triple to left and scored on Burns' first double to right. Goslin singled to right, scoring Burns and proceeded to second when Jolley made a whimsical throw to the plate after Burns had scored. Kress fouled to Selph and Ferrell fouled near the line to Blue. Spectators and fellow Brownies were startled to see Goslin run to third while the foul was in the air. Before it could be impressed on the Goose

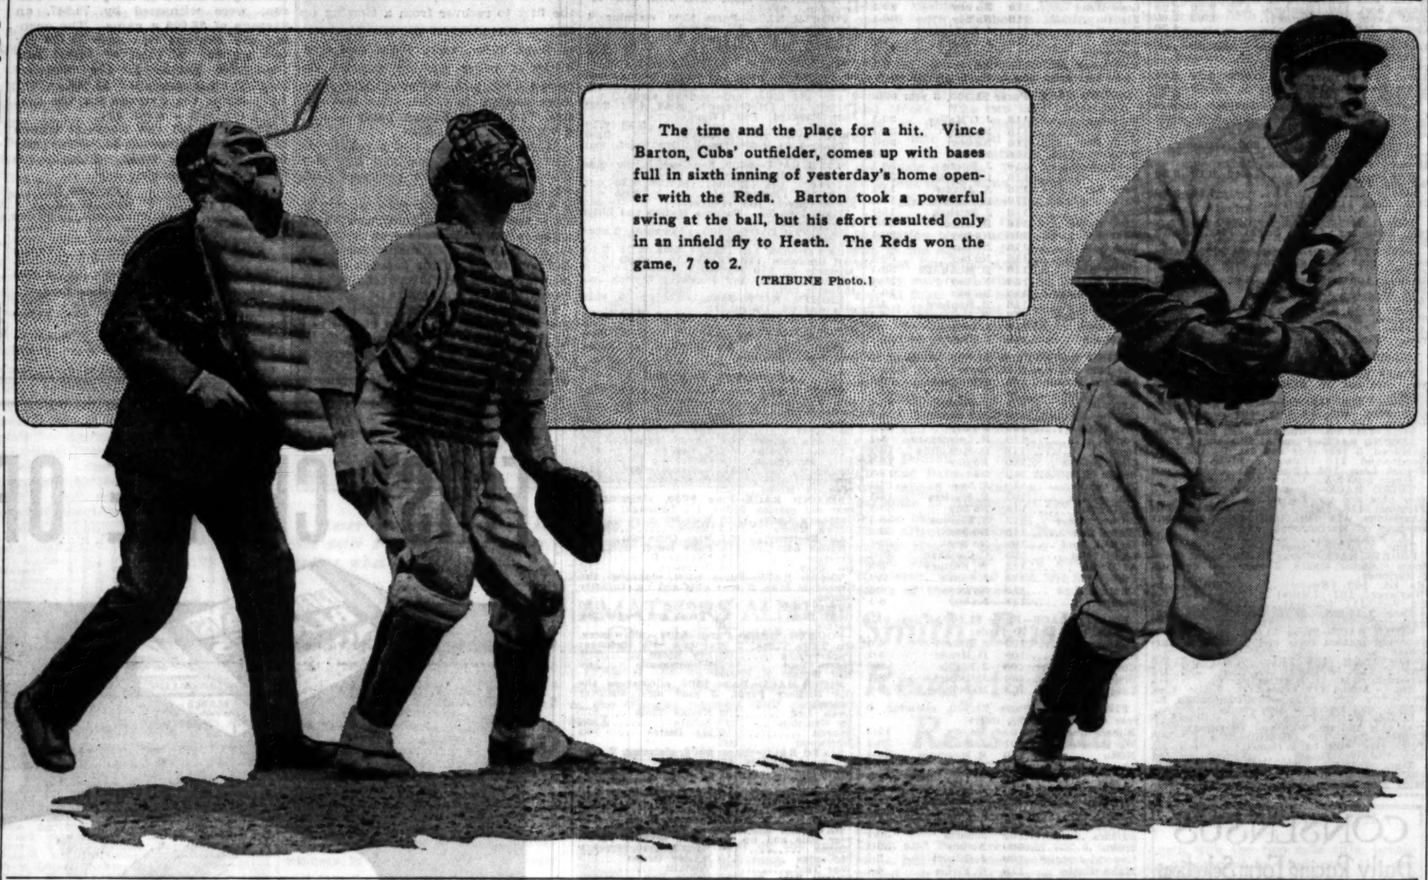
MR. BARTON PASSES UP A CHANCE TO BE A HERO



The time and the place for a hit. Vince Barton, Cubs' outfielder, comes up with bases full in sixth inning of yesterday's home opener with the Reds. Barton took a powerful swing at the ball, but his effort resulted only in an infield fly to Heath. The Reds won the game, 7 to 2.

GLENNA VARE SHOOTS 72 IN VIRGINIA GOLF

Hot Springs, Va., April 20.—(AP)—Playing one of the greatest rounds of her career, Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare defeated Miss Grace Amory of the Seminole club, Palm Beach, 7 and 6, in the finals of the Old Dominion golf championship over the Homestead course here today.

Mrs. Vare played out the round and carded a brilliant 72, which is one over men's par for the layout and two strokes lower than the new women's record of 74 she established in the qualifying round on Monday. The former record of 78 was held jointly by Helen Hicks, 1931 winner of the Old Dominion championship, and Diana Fishwick, former British amateur champion.

Plays in Par or Better.

Both Mrs. Vare and Miss Amory took fives on the first, missing the green with their second shots. From this point through the 11th Mrs. Vare played in par figures or better, getting birdies on the 460 yard fourth and on the tricky seventh. The score of 35 for the first nine was one under men's par.

Ending the match on the 11th green, Mrs. Vare found herself one under par and decided to play out the round. Her second shot carried over a bank at the left of the green, but the former national champion recovered beautifully to save a five. She took another five on the 442 yard 13th. She had perfect figures on the rest of the course.

Best Previous Round 71.

Mrs. Vare's best previous round was a 71, scored early in her golfing career. She considered her 72 over the Homestead course today, however, as a greater achievement.

The card:

Par—Out	434	553	444—36

New York, April 20.—[Special.]—Leon Britton, who has been making fight pictures since the Dempsey-Willard bout in 1919, has bought rights to the Sharkey-Schmeling championship match at the new Garden bowl June 16. The price was said to approach the $50,000 paid for the Tunney-Heeney rights.

How I Got My Start in Baseball

BY RIGGS STEPHENSON.
[As told to Irving Vaughan.]

When you have two older brothers wearing college letters because of their baseball skill, it is easy to get the urge for the game. I had one playing at Alabama and another at Southern Methodist. So I shaped my plans accordingly by getting into baseball as soon as I entered high school. Of course, there was no thought of major leagueing at that time but I did want to get one of those coveted letters to add to the family collection.

RIGGS STEPHENSON.

While I was studying at Alabama and at the same time trying to increase the school's athletic luster, there was no rule prohibiting a player from going out in the summer months and collecting some honest money on the diamond.

Our coach at Alabama was a Cleveland man. Naturally, I wasn't surprised in my senior year when I was proffered a contract by the Cleveland club. I accepted but with the understanding I would be permitted to complete the school year and join the team after graduation. When spring of 1921 arrived Cleveland was training at New Orleans and I was asked if I would care to come over and show myself. It was no trouble for me to forget all about school but after a few weeks of training I went back, fully determined to let nothing interfere with my graduation. Fate wouldn't have it that way.

The Cleveland team started on its barnstorming trip and at the very start suffered the loss, through injury, of Bill Wambsganns, the regular second baseman. The other only extra infielder had been injured before that. The Cleveland club had no choice other than to appeal to me for assistance. So I closed the books again and was on my way.

You'll recall that when Ray Chapman died as the result of being hit on the head by a ball pitched by Carl Mays, the Cleveland officials hurriedly recalled Joe Sewell from the New Orleans team to fill the vacancy at short. I had played with Sewell at Alabama but he was the second sacker and I the shortstop. In some way he was switched over after leaving college. So when I joined Cleveland I had to play second base and I remained there until released to Indianapolis, where I was converted into an outfielder.

ELMER DUBB IS LEARNING GOLF, AND SO CAN YOU

Fore, everybody: Elmer Dubb is here. You haven't heard of Elmer before, but you'll be reading plenty about him during the next two weeks, for today he takes his first golf lesson from Harry Cooper, professional at the Glen Oak Country club, and in tomorrow's TRIBUNE he will tell you what, if anything, he learned.

Elmer Dubb is the pseudonym of a member of THE TRIBUNE sports department who has played baseball, basketball, and football, but who has never been on a miniature golf course, much less a regulation one, and has never handled a golf club in his life.

Elmer will be the hero of one of a unique series of golf instructions. For several years THE TRIBUNE each spring has published a course of lessons designed to acquaint the beginner in golf with the fundamentals of the game and to correct the faults of more experienced players. A series of articles by a leading professional were published at one time, and at another four high school boys who had never played the game before were placed under the tutelage of four Chicago district professionals and their progress reported daily.

A Real Dub Speaks.

All of these proved valuable to many golfers, helping them to correct faults in stance and swing, but the pupil himself had yet to be heard from. When it was discovered that there actually was a member of THE TRIBUNE sports department who had never so much as attempted to play golf, it was decided to place him in charge of an expert professional and let him set down his own impressions of what he learns from the course at the end of each lesson.

It is the first time that a rank beginner's viewpoint ever has been presented, and should prove more valuable even than a series written by the professional himself.

Incidentally, Elmer could hardly have chosen a better teacher of the game than Harry Cooper to begin his golfing career. Lighthorse Harry, who is beginning his third year as professional at Glen Oak, is one of the most talented and best known players in the game, as any one who has followed the big time tournaments for the last six years knows. He has

CUBS' OPENING.

FRIEND ARCH: Well, Arch, the Cubs' opening was the first argument against depression I've seen since Hector was a pup—remember Hector is less than 2 years old. When there are intermittent showers until 2:30 o'clock, after which the sun comes out as suns should do on opening days, and yet 30,000 people go to the ball park, it shows some people have money and are not hoarding it.

Anyway, it wasn't the kind of an opening I had expected, although perhaps you did, because these Cincinnati Reds ganged on Pat Malone in the third inning and scored five runs off Pat just as they did down in Redtown against Charley Root in the ninth for four tallies. Of course, after that it was battling against odds, as one would say, and the odds were Pitcher Lucas and about eight or ten outfielders. Maybe there were only three, but every time a Cub drove one to the outfield there was a fielder there; so I figured there must have been eight or ten. Not that it matters much, however, as the game turned out.

Well, Arch, you always want stories of inside baseball or the breaks of the game. So I'll give you my version of why the Cubs lost. The break came in that third inning. The Reds had scored in the first and had one run in the third when this critical situation arose. There were three men on base and Morrissey of the Reds at bat. Malone was bearing down, also high and outside, so the count on Morrissey went to three and two. It all depended, of course, on the next pitch.

So Grimm, Herman, Jurges, and Hack all left their infield positions and went to the center of the diamond where Malone was. They all said something to him. Most of those in the stands, of course, did not know what they said. But I'm like that guy in the current popular movie—I can read lips. So, without violation of confidence, I can tell you they said, "Throw him a third strike, Pat."

And what did Pat do in this situation, Arch? Did he listen to this sound counsel? He did not. Instead of throwing a third strike to Morrissey, who bats sixth on the Reds' roster, he threw that young man a two base hit down the left field foul line between Hack and the bag. It went into the so-called bull pen where other Cub hurlers were warming up in anticipation of possible service.

Well, before Johnny Moore could get in among the bulls—not policemen, you understand—and rescue the pellet—which means baseball—Gilbert, Herman, and Heath had crossed the pan, which means home plate. That meant the ball game, although the Cubs did rally a little after it was too late.

Now here is my point: It was not sound strategy. If Pat felt he could not throw a third strike, as he was advised, why did he throw a two base hit? If he had thrown a ball that would have forced in only one run, we might have overcome a three run lead, but six runs is terribly discouraging.

So I went into the Cub offices after the game to tell Bill Veeck about it.

You see, I feel free to talk to Bill because we once roomed together when we both were baseball reporters. Well, I explained it all to him, Arch, and he just looked sort of weary and said, "O, I suppose so," which wasn't very encouraging; but then, I suppose he was disappointed about losing the game.

In Veeck's office I saw Charley Williams, treasurer of the Cubs in Frank Chance's time. I asked him what he was doing now, because the last time I met him he was connected with a hospital over on the west side, and he said he has quit the hospital because hospitaling wasn't so good any more and was selling automobiles way out on Ogden avenue, and I said, "What do you mean, selling automobiles?" and he said, "Well, we sold one a year ago last March. Charley always was a truthful fellow.

So, Arch, that was all there was to the opening, only I'm sorry Pat Malone didn't pitch a strike instead of a two bagger in that comical third.

I'll go out again soon and hope for better luck. Regards,

HARVEY T. WOODRUFF.

P. S.: It cost only 25 cents instead of 50 to park my bus. Feel sorry for you!

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

There will not be any medals passed out to the Cubs for what they accomplished in their homecoming yesterday. The welcomers were there, 30,000 of them, despite threatening weather, but the Cubs did almost everything contrary to form and the reupholstered Reds traveled along to an easy 7 to 2 victory.

Part of the burden for the defeat must be borne by Pat Malone, whose shoulders are broad. Pat folded up with amazing ease in the third when the Rhinelanders decided the argument with a bunch of five hits. But there were extenuating circumstances. Bad bits of fielding put Malone in the hole and the only way in which he could extricate himself was to leave the park. He didn't leave until after some hits on top of the wabbly fielding and his own wildness had completed the parade of enemy run getters.

Only Five Hits Off Lucas.

It was painful enough for the customers to see runs given away on errors by Stanley Hack and Gabby Hartnett, but that wasn't all that caused the headache. The Cubs' lack of attack rounded out the suffering. They didn't even ruffle the feelings of Charles Fred Lucas, better known as Red. For three innings he denied them entrance to first base. Then they began to pick at him a bit, but not seriously enough to cause any more than five hits at the finish.

Two of these were by Hack, who did some other things which served to make his debut impressive, the lone fielding slip notwithstanding.

There was only one time when Lucas actually had to think twice before throwing. That was in the sixth when the Reds were already out in front by 7 to 1. A couple of hits and a walk loaded the bases with one out, and the crowd believed it was going to have a chance to whoop 'er up. Nothing happened because two men in the middle of the batting attack, from which the power should come, couldn't produce. In this flurry Hack got as far as third base, and he was the only Cub to travel that distance all afternoon. After his two other arrivals there he scored.

Trouble Starts Early.

Douthit opened the day's ceremony with a snappy grounder which slipped off the tip of Hack's mitt for a single. This might have been harmless if Hartnett hadn't committed the first of his series of miscues. He let the runner sneak to second on a passed ball. Gilbert popped to Jurges, but Babe Herman singled over short and Douthit strolled home.

A harmless looking looping single to right center by Lucas brought on the disaster in the third. He was forced by Douthit, who stole second and continued to third when Hartnett threw the ball into center field. Hack booted Gilbert's somewhat treacherous grounder, Douthit scoring. This sort of defense was so annoying to Malone that he filled the bases on passes to Babe Herman and Heath with an out in between. Morrissey ruined everything for the Cubs by cleaning up the sacks with a double down the left field line. He scored on Durocher's scratch infield single. Manion also singled and that was the cue for Jakie May to come in and close the inning.

Hack Scores First Run.

Hack finally exploded a single to left to open the fourth and thus was the first to reach base against Lucas. Herman boosted a fly to his illustrious namesake in right field, but Cuyler let go with a hit into center and Hack ran to third in his very best stride. Barton spanked one on a line to right, but Herman snared it. Hack sprinted home after the catch and Moore ended it with a fly to Douthit.

During May's three and a fraction innings of labor the Reds were held to one hit, but it produced a run. With one out in the fifth Heath

Favorite Returns $3.20 in Everglades.

Havre De Grace, Md., April 20.—[Special.]—Admiral Cary T. Grayson scored a double and the jockey, B. Hanford, likewise won his second race when Happy Scot won the Everglades, the feature here today, galloping along in front of Sylvester Labrot's filly, Tred Avon. A nose behind was W. W. Vaughn's Canron, an outsider, which led to the far turn. Happy Scot ran the six furlongs in 1:12 1-5. Happy Scot was favorite, paying $3.20.

Second only to the crowd of Saturday, the attendance today was more than 12,000; the weather was warm and the track fast.

Start Is Delayed.

Glen Riddle farm's Capacity delayed the start. When the field was sent away, Canron was off several lengths in front, but Happy Scot gradually drew closer and took the track, having more than a length to spare at the finish. Tred Avon was extended to get the place.

A. Pelleteri's Fiddler won the third race. Black Tyrone was second and Vacillate third. By oversight, the number of Black Tyrone was ordered up by the judges. The crowd roared. Hastily correcting the error, Fiddler's number was substituted and that of Black Tyrone placed second. Volta green, favorite, led most of the six furlongs, followed by Vacillate, second choice. Fiddler, Meade up, came fast on the outside and paid $13.70. The time was 1:13. Fiddler won by a half length.

HA HA WINS EASILY

New York, April 20.—[Special.]—Ha, ha, from the W. R. Coe stable, earned $2,375 by his brilliant victory in the six furlongs of the Newton claiming stakes, which featured the program at Jamaica today. The Coe color bearer led home Waylayer by three lengths, with Al Jolson's On Tap third.

Ha Ha, Judge Schilling, and On Tap broke in stride and raced together through the backstretch. At the turn Jockey Knapp, on Ha Ha, gained a slight lead with Judge Schilling a trifle in front of On Tap. On the bend Waylayer moved up to second place, but could not menace the leader in the run to the wire. Ha Ha was favorite and returned 4 to 3. His time for the six furlongs was 1:11 4-5.

Mills Wins On 20-1 Shot.

Crimson Rose, a 20 to 1 shot, with Jockey Mills in the saddle, galloped off with the honors in the last event, beating other platers in the mile and seventy yards route. Prize Day, well backed second choice, outlasted Wu for the place prize. The winner was timed in 1:44 3-5.

White Thorn, Mrs. John Hay Whitney's promising juvenile, graduated from the maiden ranks by whipping Surety, the favorite, and nine other juveniles in the five furlongs of the fifth event. Surety opened up a long lead, but went a trifle wide entering the stretch, and Jockey Ensor, aboard White Thorn, slipped through the opening and passed the tiring pacemaker to score by a length. The winner paid 7 to 1 and stepped the distance in 1:00 4-5.

HALL AND HOPPE WIN TWICE EACH IN CUE TOURNEY

Willie Hoppe and Allen Hall each won two out of three games in the three-handed 3-cushion billiard tournament yesterday at Mussey's Wabash avenue billiard room. Welker Cochran lost in his two starts.

In the first afternoon game Hall defeated Hoppe, 40 to 39, in 39 innings, and in the second afternoon game beat Cochran, 40 to 28, in 34 innings. Hoppe turned back Cochran, 40 to 31, in 35 innings and followed with a triumph over Hall, 40 to 30, in 33 innings.

Chicago Firemen's Ten Hits Beat Maroons, 8-7

Holds Champions Hitless Until Last of Eighth.

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 20.—[Special.]—Steve Swetonic, a home town boy, made good today before a crowd of 16,000 as he blanked the world's champion St. Louis Cardinals and led the Pittsburgh Pirates to victory, 7 to 0, at Forbes' field in the season's opener. Swetonic held the champions hitless until two were out in the eighth.

The defeat was the fifth in a row for the Cardinals. Hallahan, who started for the champions, gave way to Lindsey in the fifth and Dean went in for Lindsey in the eighth.

Band, Mayor, and Base Hits Spur Browns

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., April 20.—Although the St. Louis opening day crowd was much smaller than the Chicago opener, Mr. P. de Catsby Ball, Brownie owner, had the courage to toss in for a brass band of many pieces. There was no music at Comiskey park opening day, except the crooning of Manager Fonseca after the Sox victory.

Mayor Victor Miller of St. Louis, went to the mound and pitched over several to get the season under way.

It cannot be said that the loss of six of the Browns eight road games before showing up at home did much to stimulate the enthusiasm attending the American league opener here.

The Sox donned their new road uniforms for the first time. These costumes are charted as blue-gray, but from the elevation of the press stand they appear to be a delicate baby blue. They are much prettier than the old dark blue ones.

It as the first game of the year in which the Sox worked under the twinkling eyes of three umpires. Red Ormsby, Bill Guthrie, and Dick Nallin, all splendid gents, officiated.

Tommy Thomas started to warm up for Chicago, but soon found that a bone bruise, which has been annoying him, still was in evidence. So Hadley did the warming up. For a time it seemed he hadn't warmed up enough, but Goslin's base running boner eased his distress perceptibly. However, the suffering resumed a little later.

Hal Anderson, benched today because of frail hitting, has a mark of .250, which he acquired in chunks. He's made eight hits. Two of these were on opening day and three formed three-sevenths of Sox total against Cleveland in Chicago last Sunday.

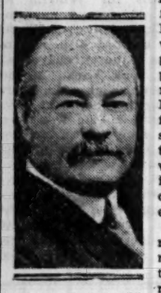
MOON MULLINS—CROWNING THE CHAMP

"Talking It Over"

BY ARCH WARD.



DR. N. M. BUTLER.

The University of Illinois has announced a reduction in the price of football tickets from $3 to $2. Business last fall was bad. Prospects for improvement are none too bright. Illinois is the first Big Ten school to admit the facts and it will be interesting to see if others follow its example.

There are rumors that Illinois cut its price to stimulate business at the gate. But I am reluctant to believe these whisperings, because time after time I have read that colleges were not in the football business and that no great importance was attached to receipts.

It was only a year or two ago that the president of Columbia university, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, campaigned for the abolition of admission fees to intercollegiate games. Reports from the auditors' offices of some of our prominent colleges after the 1931 season indicated that the plan already was in effect, although unofficially and without design. No customers, no booty, as they say in the boxing game.

Somebody probably will rise to remark that no Illinois game for the last few years has been worth more than $2. But we could name other teams that haven't been knocking the world dizzy which charge $3 or more.

Illinois' decision to reduce prices is as sensible as it is necessary, particularly when schools pretend they are not in the amusement business. It is difficult to reconcile professors' attacks on the evils of football spectacles with a scale of prices calculated to yield half a million dollars.

Northwestern and Notre Dame last fall boosted the price of their extravaganza from $3 to $4. These teams probably are the greatest rivals in midwestern football. Thousands were unable to obtain tickets to their battle in 1930 because there weren't enough seats at $3 apiece to supply the demand. Last fall they played before great open spaces at Soldiers' field. The receipts fell far short of expectations. The sharp decline was not altogether traceable to the inclement weather.

For years colleges have charged a flat price to their games. No other enterprise of its kind operates on that policy. A ticket to the race track clubhouse costs more than one in the stands. A seat in the top balcony at a boxing match in Chicago Stadium costs less than a chair at the ringside. Theaters neither ask nor get the same price for a seat in the rear of the mezzanine as for one in the front row.

Why then should a football fan be expected to pay the same amount of money for a bleacher seat behind the goal posts as for a more comfortable space on the fifty yard line?

Use Bats? Not Sox! Lose 4th Straight, 5-0 that the foul did not retire the side, Blue had thrown the ball to Hayes to complete a double play.

Schulte Was Hot.

Jolley opened the second with a single to center, but went down with Blue in a double play. Selph singled to left, but Cissell tapped to Gray.

Schulte apparently wasn't satisfied with his triple in the first inning, so when he came up with one down in the third, he drove a homer high into the left field bleachers. Burns followed with his second double and went to third while Hayes was throwing out Goslin, but Ferrell was out, Blue to Hadley.

Melillo opened the fourth with a homer into the left field bleachers and Jenkins followed with a single to center but was caught off first, Tate to Blue, when Levy failed to touch the ball on a planned hit and run maneuver. Gray was called out on strikes.

Teddy Rained Out.

Three singles, a sacrifice, and a stolen base were good for but one run in the fifth inning, the last pitched by Hadley. Schulte opened with his third successive hit, but this time he reduced the caliber to a single. Freddie moved to second on Burns' sacrifice and scored on the second of Goslin's series of hits, a single to right. Kress singled to right, putting Goslin on third, then stole second. Ferrell popped to Hayes and Melillo flied to Campbell.

Lyons pitched for one and two-thirds innings, allowing three hits, when rain caused a delay. When play was resumed Gregory went in to pitch to Ferrell with the count two balls and no strikes. Gregory gave him the other two balls, then Melillo grounded out to Cissell.

The Yankees' fourth run occurred in the fifth when Mickey [Mule-ears] Cochrane, as Burleigh Grimes named him in the course of their world series repartee, let a pitch bounce off the top of his mitt. Lary scored from third as Cochrane pursued the ball and Ruth, who had walked, got in his roadwork for the entire year with a stiff-legged dash and a slide. The Babe doesn't flounder like a Hack Wilson or gallumpp like a Shanty Hogan. He minces, as though he were tip-toeing through the tulips or a field of jagged bottles.

Things Get Complicated.

The Yanks brought their score to seven with three more runs in the seventh, a complicated inning in which Ruth scored Gomez from second with a single and sent Lary to third. Lary came in on a wild pitch by Earnshaw and Ruth took third. I guess that must have been the time he made his slide, not the fifth inning. I have a note about it. It says "R 2 3d Wi slide." Anyway, he scored when Chapman forced Gehrig at second. Then in the ninth, Dickey, the Yankees' catcher, hit a home run. But I don't suppose you are paying a bit of attention by now, so will close.

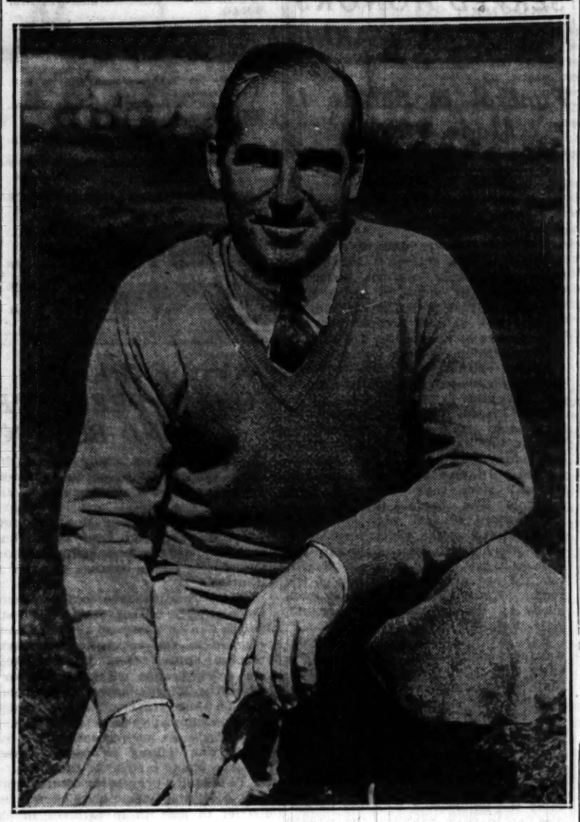
MR. DUBB'S TEACHER



Harry Cooper, professional at the Glen Oak Country club, who will give daily golf lessons to Elmer Dubb, who in turn will tell Tribune readers what he has learned.

Elmer Dubb Is Learning Golf; You Can, Too

been one of the few consistent money winners in the game and is a perennial favorite in the national open.

Born at Leatherhead, England, 27 years ago, Harry evinced an early knack for the game, which was natural enough, for he comes of a line of golfers his father, Sydney Cooper, now stationed at the Arizona-Biltmore club, Phoenix, Ariz., having been a professional all his life. Harry's mother and sister are expert golfers.

Harry Started Young.

He recalls playing his first game at the advanced age of 3 at Aberdovey, North Wales, and produces a newspaper clipping of the period showing one "Master H. Cooper" at the finish of a handsome swing to prove it. The family came to Canada in 1912, returned to England for a year, and then arrived in the United States in 1914. The Coopers were en route when war was declared and were pursued into Halifax harbor by three German cruisers.

The family settled in Peru, Ind., where the elder Cooper was the local golf professional, and then he took a post at Traverse City, Mich. The Coopers next moved to Dallas, Tex., where Harry spent most of his life in this country, and where he first attained fame. It was here he set a record that still stands—that of a 60 on a par 72 course. Among his other achievments at Dallas were a 10 and 9 defeat of Walter Hagen, one of the worst trimmings the old maestro ever has received, and a 7 and 5 licking of old George Duncan.

He has been professional successively at Lakewood, Kansas City; El Serreno and Biltmore, Los Angeles, and Meadowbrook, Buffalo. He came to Glen Oak in 1930 and still takes delight in riddling par on the big course between Lombard and Glen Ellyn. His most important achievement to date was in 1927, when at the age of 22 he tied Tommy Armour for the national open championship, only to lose in the playoff.

A Peep at His Record.

Among other deeds in Harry's record book are the following: winner, first Los Angeles open, 1926, and runner up in 1928; winner Del Monte open and runner up to Hagen in western open, 1926; winner, Texas P. G. A. title in 1923 and 1924 and runner up in 1925; winner, Western New York P. G. A. title, 1923; winner, Shawnee tournament 1929; winner, Oklahoma, Pasadena, Salt Lake City, Texas, Oregon, and Palo Verdes open tournaments; winner, St. Paul open, 1930, and runnerup in 1931; second to Sarazen in 1931 Lannin Memorial.

DEXTER CUMMINGS.

Dexter Cummings is another of the local boys who have made certain in recent years that Chicago shall be kept on the golfing map. He is one of the leaders on the Chicago District Golf association's handicap list for this season, competing from Onwentsia with a handicap of two strokes.

DEXTER CUMMINGS

Cummings has not competed to any great extent outside the Chicago district within recent years, confining his activities largely to club and interclub events. He was a member of the Onwentsia team captained by Bob Gardner, which had a monopoly on the district's team championship until Edgewood Valley came into the picture. He broke Gardner's string of consecutive club championships at Onwentsia by winning the final match in 1923.

Dexter was a familiar winner in Chicago tournaments before he entered Yale, where he first won fame. He captured the qualifying medal in the west junior tournament of 1920 and did the same in the western amateur meet of 1925, losing his first round match to Russell Martin of Flossmoor, who eventually traveled to the title match. While at Yale, he won the national intercollegiate title in 1923 and 1924, the first golfer in the history of the tournament to win two crowns. Since then Fred Lamprecht and George Dunlap have duplicated the feat.

He has been a consistent figure in national amateur meets, and in one of these, the 1926 tournament, met his clubmate, Rudy Knepper, in the first round, losing 1 up. Dexter's sister, Edith, won the national women's title in 1923 and became western champion the following year.

M'CAULIFF AND ALLISON REACH NET SEMI-FINAL

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., April 20.—[Special.]—Wilmer Allison, Austin, Tex., and Eugene McCauliff, Yonkers, N. Y., today advanced to the semi-finals of the annual Mason and Dixon tennis tournament. Allison, a member of the United States Davis cup team, defeated Gilbert Hall, 6—2, 6—1, 6—3, while McCauliff triumphed over John Van Ryn, Philadelphia, 6—2, 6—4, 9—7.

The sixth, which saw the Cubs work up to a scoring point only to recede before cashing in on their effort, opened with Richbourg batting for May. He singled, Hack bounced into a forceout, and Billy Herman slipped a hit through a hole at short. Cuyler walked to fill the bases, leaving the matter of driving in runs to Barton and Moore. The two lads had a bad case of popup. Barton hoisted to Heath, who dropped the ball, but the batter was automatically out under the infield fly rule. Then Moore hoisted a foul to the same player.

Mr. Hack Does His Stuff.

Hack's ability to run put the Cubs in position to get across their second run in the eighth. He shoved a slow hit past Durocher, and the Reds were greatly surprised when the lad didn't stop at first. In a hurried attempt to curtail the ex-Coast leaguer's activities, Douthit shot the ball to second. Hack was already there, and when the throw got away the runner jumped up and sprinted to third. He scored on a long fly by Cuyler.

The Cubs carried their inclination toward comical fielding right into the ninth and almost succeeded in ruining Lyle Tinning's big league debut. After Douthit had fanned Gilbert singled and Babe Herman walked. Crabtree tapped to Tinning, who threw perfectly to Grimm, but the captain let the ball bounce from his hands in Nick Altrock fashion. Tinning then spiked Heath's hopes on a pop to Hack, and served three strikes to Morrissey, who had been the big nuisance of the afternoon.

Smith, Bush Ready to Face Reds Today

Manager Hornsby of the Cubs doesn't anticipate any trouble locating a starting pitcher for this afternoon's effort against the Reds. Both Smith and Bush are ready for a summons, but the former probably will be picked. Si Johnson is to be Dan Howley's nominee.

It was a tough afternoon for the fans who in the past have moved down to the front of the grandstand to prove that they were on talking terms with the athletes. The fans were there to do their stuff, but not the players. A new rule, carrying a $5 fine for such an offense, has the athletes on their guard.

As usual, the playing field was as velvety as a private lawn. New sod was laid throughout, barring a few spots in the outfield corners. The grandstand also was wearing a new coat of vivid green and cream colored paint which made it look as gay as a California bungalow.

Chick Hafey, the slugger recently traded to the Reds by the Cardinals, came to town with his new mates but didn't play. After a motor trip from California he felt the need of a few days to put himself in trim. He will stage his debut at Cincy next Sunday.

Two huge bouquets were presented at the plate just before the argument opened. One went to Manager Hornsby, the other to Riggs Stephenson.

The usual number of kids who had the desire but not the price, skinned the wall or wriggled through the iron gratings. Those not lucky enough to elude capture were promptly bounced out again.

Rain fell intermittently for about an hour before game time. Many of the box seat customers who sat in the open came prepared. Blue seemed to be the dominating color in the 1932 umbrella crop.

Jack Bramhall, who was conducting for the 39th time at a Cub opening, ran off his band schedule without trouble. A few stray notes dropped out of some of the brass instruments, but nobody complained.

Requests for tickets for the first ladies' day game at Wrigley field, April 29, will be accepted today. There will be 20,000 tickets allotted by mail. Requests must be for one ticket and include self-addressed stamped envelope. Applications should be addressed "Ladies' Ticket Office, Wrigley field."

Brocksmith Races Over Hills to Title

BY WILFRID SMITH.

After four years of running over the hills which surround Bloomington, Ind., and striding the cinder paths of the western conference, Henry Brocksmith of Indiana university is ready to take over the Big Ten running championships. Brocksmith already has broken both the one mile and two mile western conference indoor records, and when the American Olympic team is picked undoubtedly Brocksmith will have a berth.

The basis of this Hoosier's ability (he is a native of Freelandville, Ind.) is cross-country. In his early competition he was the individual champion of the Big Ten cross country runners. His only other previous honor was gained in the 1930, when he won the two mile race. His time that afternoon at Dyche stadium was not remarkable. He covered the two miles in 9 minutes 34.2 seconds, more than ten seconds slower than the Big Ten mark, and it was a Hoosier race all the way. John Fellows of Wisconsin, who finished second, was the only outsider to crash the Indiana team, for Clapham, Leas, and Kemp of the Hoosier entry jogged across the line in third, fourth, and fifth positions, respectively.

Leas took over cross-country title last year, with Brocksmith second, and then, in the outdoor meet at Northwestern, George Wright of Wisconsin won the two mile title, breaking the record in 9 minutes 21.9 seconds.

HENRY BROCKSMITH.

Then came the 1932 Big Ten indoor meet at Chicago, in which Indiana won its first championship. Two first places, both new records by Brocksmith, were largely responsible. Brocksmith started with a mile in 4 minutes 12.5 seconds, within 2½ seconds of the world record. He smashed the Big Ten's best previous time by 9.1 seconds.

An hour later Brocksmith returned to the track and turned in a two mile run of 9 minutes 18.4 seconds, eight seconds better than the best previous indoor mark and 3½ seconds faster than Wright had run the event outdoors last spring.

Brocksmith has not been defeated this year. He seems certain of victory in the Big Ten one mile run in the outdoor meet. If he enters, he also may win the two mile event, for Wright, his most dangerous competitor a year ago, finished third indoors. J. C. Watson, a teammate of Brocksmith, was second. In the 1931 outdoor meet Watson was third.

Brocksmith is a senior in the medical school. He weighs 160 pounds and is 5 feet 10 inches tall. Powerfully built, this 22 year old runner has developed a magnificent stride. His development is best indicated by his consistently better performances in the mile for four years. Starting with a 4:28 mile, he has each year cut his time to 4:21, 4:17 and 4:12.5, respectively.

FRONTON SHOW TOMORROW ENDS INDOOR SEASON

Heavyweight wrestling makes one of its last stands of the 1932 indoor season tomorrow night at the Rainbo Fronton, Clark street and Lawrence avenue, where Promoter Joe Coffey will offer five matches.

Kola Kwariani and Hans Kampfer will meet in the main match, one fall to a finish. One change was announced: Hans Steinke was unable to come here and Jack Roller, western veteran, has been signed to meet Frank Bronowicz.

Kwariani and Kampfer will take light drills today. The German youngster weighs 216, three pounds more than Kola.

TONIGHT'S NIGHT SHADE WILL COOL OFF KILBOURNE

Or at Least So He Says; It's at White City.

This is the night Jack Kilbourne will have opportunity to prove his boast that he'll chase Dave Shade out of the White City ring.

Both probably are wrong. Shade won't be chased around, and it's doubtful if he can knock out Kilbourne. But Mique Malloy and the White City officials are not bothering about results. Mique reports a $600 advance sale, which doesn't mean much unless it is added that in his last show which grossed approximately $2,500, the advance sale on the morning of the bout was $90.

Ladies, You Must Pay.

Malloy has discontinued his policy of women admitted without charge tonight. The White City rink seats 5,000 and for the first time this winter Mique believes he has an opportunity to put paying customers in most of those seats.

Shade defeated Kilbourne when Jack was a youngster starting on the Pacific coast. The controversy between the two is splendid for the box office, but Shade took the match for $1,000 guarantee and in accord with his general policy that he can whip any middleweight. Kilbourne wasn't so certain he wanted to meet Shade, but finally was persuaded, knowing that if he wins he'll be in line for many more dollars per bout.

Seeks Gorilla Jones.

Malloy would like to match Gorilla Jones, the N. B. A. middleweight champion, with the winner in the outdoor arena at White City in June. Malloy, naturally, will be tonight's best bet.

AMERICAN 'NOBLE' IN NEW FIGHT FOR SPANISH ESTATE

Still Wants Portion of Alfonso's Fortune.

New York, April 20.—[Special.]—Don Louis de Bourbon, American citizen now living on Manhattan's upper west side, has notified the department of state at Washington and the Spanish embassy there that he has filed a petition to the Supreme court of France to recover one-fourth of the estate left by the late King Alfonso XII. of Spain—his father, he claims, by morganatic marriage.

There are two petitions, one to the Parisian courts, the other addressed to President Alcala Zemora of Spain, both of which were dispatched three days ago and both of which are directed against former King Alfonso XIII. of Spain.

Fight Is an Old One.

Similar petitions have been made within the last dozen years, among these one to Pope Pius XI. and the Sacred College of Cardinals, and one to the league of nations. In 1923 the then king of Spain, through his ambassador at Washington, formally denied any kinship whatever with Don Louis of Bourbon.

In the present attempt to recover what he considers to be his rightful share, the petitioner states that he was born on July 15, 1884, at Galatz, Rumania, the only son of Alfonso XII. and Maria Mercedes, who, the petition says, were married in the Church of St. Jerome, Spain, in 1883. As the legitimate son of this morganatic union, Don Louis says that he is "as thus entitled to the rights, honors and share of legacy left by his father."

He asserts that he has letters, documents and photostats to prove his legitimacy and that the defendant, having knowledge of this, nevertheless "has written poison pen letters to outrage the reputation of the petitioner."

As to Spanish Delay.

In his petition to the president of Spain Don Louis says in part: "The petitioner respectfully requests the Spanish government not to dispose of the property seized which belongs to his brother, Don Alfonso de Bourbon, until a decision can be obtained from the French courts, and based on that decision the petitioner shall enter a plea in the Spanish courts asking the Spanish government to restore to the plaintiff the property which lawfully belonged to the plaintiff and which property was unlawfully retained by his brother, Don Alfonso de Bourbon."

Discussing his latest attempt to recover what he considers to be his rights and property, Don Louis de Bourbon said today that he had always lived in exile, and that had he ever attempted to go to Spain he would have faced a firing squad.

"I shall carry on with this fight to the end," he said, "and I shall also see to it that my half brother never returns to Spain." He added that his mother died in a French monastery about two years ago. As to his personal pecuniary affairs, he said that he was a wealthy man, but that he fought for his rights on principle.

CHILE-ARGENTINE RAIL LINK CUT BY TARIFF WAR

Press Mules and Oxen Into Service.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VALPARAISO, Chile, April 20.—Mules and oxen were requisitioned to transport mail and passengers to Argentina today when the British management of the Trans-Andine railway, linking Chile and Argentina, closed the system and so notified the Chilean government.

Cessation of operation on the only railway connecting these two South American countries was forced by a tariff war in which Chile and Argentina have levied retaliatory duties to such an extent that the railway's losses have reached approximately $15,000 a month, the management declared.

Argentine Support Seen.

The fact that the Argentine government was not similarly notified was taken as confirmation of the Chilean claim that Argentina is backing up the British management to force Chile to change her tariff policy.

After receiving advice this morning that the Andean railroad tunnels had been sealed, the government gave orders for mail bags to be dispatched by mule packs across the mountain passes to Mendoza, whence it is hoped that Argentina will transmit them by regular rail routes.

President Juan Esteban Montero ordered the organization of an alternative southern route by way of Bariloche to carry mail to Argentina by automobile, oxcart and lake steamer.

Air Interests on Job.

Enterprising American aeronautical interests are rushing freight and passenger planes to Chile and are negotiating with the government to restore communications between the two countries.

Antagonism was aroused in ministerial and business quarters because the threat to close the railroad was carried out, and opposition is growing to anti-tariff negotiations while the line remains sealed.

The 155 mile Trans-Andine link from Mendoza, Argentina, to Los Andes, Chile, was completed in 1910 and has come to be regarded as practically indispensable. Both Chile and Argentina indirectly are financially interested in the line but stubbornness in carrying out their tariff struggles for economic self-sufficiency prevented any compromise movement to keep the railway in operation.

Arrow points to route of the 155 mile Trans-Andine railway between Mendoza, Argentina, and Los Andes, Chile, only rail connection between the two countries, which was abandoned yesterday because of financial losses induced by the Argentina-Chile tariff war.

ASSERTS BOLIVIA MASSES 7,000 MEN NEAR PARAGUAY

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, April 20.—(AP)—The newspaper Intransigente, which sent a correspondent up to the Chaco to investigate reports of Bolivian troop movements, said today 7,000 to 8,000 soldiers with 500 to 700 officers were on the Bolivian side of the Chaco area, close to Paraguay.

Gen. Mariaca Pando has set up his headquarters at Villamonte, the correspondent reported, and among the Bolivian soldiers there is a rumor that 10,000 men are to be mobilized and that virtually the whole army will be concentrated in the Chaco region. The correspondent said he had heard a Bolivian officer say they intended to take Asuncion, capital of Paraguay, and then drive toward the Paraguayan river ports, assisted by bombardment from the air.

The Bolivian government has disclaimed any intention to precipitate a new struggle over the disputed Chaco region, which lies between that country and Paraguay.

GOVERNMENT HE SERVED HONORS SENATOR HARRIS

Funeral in Senate Is Made Official.

Washington, D. C., April 20.—[Special.]—The national government of which he was a part for a number of years today paused to pay final honor to the late Senator William J. Harris [Dem., Ga.].

President Hoover and his cabinet, justices of the Supreme court, the diplomatic corps, and the house of representatives went to the senate chamber at 11 o'clock this morning to attend the simple funeral services which were conducted by the Rev. Z. Barney Phillips, senate chaplain.

Nearer to the casket than the frock coated officials sat the senator's widow and daughter.

Vice President Curtis opened the services by saying: "We have come to pay our respects to the memory of a man we all loved." The chaplain prayed. It was very still while a woman's voice, high and sweet, sang a hymn. The chaplain prayed again.

The state funeral was over. An usher waited at the widow's side. She was oblivious to him. Finally her brother-in-law, Gen. Peter C. Harris, touched her arm, led her out of the room. Then President Hoover, followed by his cabinet and other officials, walked out.

For many minutes the big room was, it seemed, absolutely still. Presently the vice president announced that the senate, in respect to its dead member, was adjourned for the day. The house likewise adjourned until tomorrow. The senatorial committee of fifteen, appointed to escort the body to internment in Cedartown, Ga., was helped into top coats by the page boys. They moved down the aisle. Then came the pallbearers with the casket. And last a page carrying the wreath of green.

MRS. L. S. HUBBARD, NOTED LANDSCAPE GARDENER, DEAD

Mrs. Louise Stone Hubbard of Winnetka, noted as a landscape and garden authority, died suddenly yesterday in Cleveland, where she had gone to deliver a lecture on Chinese gardens. The body will be brought to Chicago today. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Mrs. Hubbard lived at 849 Foxdale avenue, in Winnetka, in one of the suburb's oldest homes. Her garden was famous for the rarity of many of its flowers and plants. Mrs. Hubbard was especially interested in Chinese gardens and made several trips to China. She laid out many of the gardens of wealthy residents of the north shore and was also consulted in the designing of gardens in Honolulu.

She was the widow of Charles W. Hubbard, realty dealer, who died in 1924. She is survived by two sons, Charles and Horace.

DAVIS EXPLAINS FOREST PRESERVE LAND BUYING

Gen. Abel Davis, chairman of the forest preserve advisory committee, yesterday issued a statement explaining why the forest preserves have continued the condemnation and purchase of additional land at a time when the district had suffered a default on its bonds because of the tax situation.

"The forest preserve commissioners [Cook county board] started out six months ago on a careful retrenchment program in the acquisition of forest preserve lands," Gen. Davis stated. "In a conference with the advisory committee it was agreed to concentrate on those tracts of land on which condemnation suits were pending and particularly on such cases where the owner was willing to accept forest preserve bonds instead of cash.

"To abandon proceedings which were then under way would have caused the district to lose an investment in appraisals, detailed valuations, attorneys' fees and court costs. It was estimated that almost $200,000 in cash would have been thrown away with nothing to show for it. Therefore, the commissioners determined to consider no new acquisitions, but to confine their attention to completing those which were in the process of condemnation."

MRS. WOLON SAYS SHE WILL FILE NEW LOVE SUIT

Philadelphia, Pa., April 20.—[Special.]—"I'll be back. I'm going to sue again and carry it into court for a fight to the finish, and Mr. Welsh needn't think I'm bluffing, either."

With this parting shot, Mrs. Estelle M. Wolon, Chicago tea room owner, boarded an airplane and hopped off for home. Her $250,000 breach of promise suit against Charles Newbold Welsh, of a wealthy Philadelphia family, had been withdrawn Monday because of Mrs. Wolon's continued illness.

But the form of the withdrawal, a voluntary non-suit, left the way open for her to take up the cause for her injured feelings again, and that she definitely intends to do, according to her own statement.

"I'm going to Chicago and wait until my lawyer notifies me my case is listed for trial," she said. She has been in bed during every interview since she arrived here, but appeared in good spirits today.

CARDINAL PIFFL, ARCHBISHOP OF VIENNA, DIES, 67

VIENNA, April 21.—[Thursday.]—(AP)—Cardinal Friedrich Gustav Piffl, archbishop of Vienna, died early today after an apoplectic stroke. He was 67 years old.

Cardinal Piffl was one of the foremost ecclesiastical dignitaries of Austria and an ardent promoter of church music. He was born on Oct. 15, 1864. Emperor Francis Joseph, as apostolic emperor, appointed him archbishop of Vienna on April 1, 1913. A year later, on May 25, 1914, the archbishop was elevated by Pope Benedict XV. to the rank of cardinal.

He officiated at the funeral of Emperor Francis Joseph in 1916 and was active in behalf of relief for Austrians after the war. He attended the eucharistic congress in Chicago in 1926. Four years ago he urged Austrians to try to keep the control of radio out of the hands of those who would use it for the broadcasting of jazz.

Ohio "Orders" Contractors to Shoulder Blast Loss

Columbus, O., April 20.—(AP)—Ohio today looked to the contractors to shoulder financial responsibility for the damage caused by an explosion in the new $6,000,000 state office building last Thursday. Acting on the advice of Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, the state building commission took the position that the state was not liable for the loss, estimated at approximately $1,000,000, and ordered all contractors to "proceed immediately to the completion of the building."

3 RAIL CHIEFS REPORT BETTER PROSPECTS NOW

Earnings Boosted by Greater Economies.

BY O. A. MATHER.

While earnings of the big railroads thus far this year have been far from satisfactory, still there is encouragement in the fact that they have been showing an upward trend. This has not been due to increasing traffic, as business has been abnormally slack, but to strenuous efforts toward economy in every direction. Lower wage scales also have helped earnings. It is likely the railroads will reap the full benefit of these reduced expenses when traffic turns upward.

This summary of the present situation of the railroads was elaborated by the presidents of three big carriers yesterday. President L. A. Downs spoke before the stockholders of the Illinois Central at their annual meeting, President John J. Pelley similarly addressed the stockholders of the New York, New Haven and Hartford, and Fred W. Sargent issued a statement regarding the Chicago and North Western.

I. C. Decreases Deficit.

Mr. Downs reported that the Illinois Central incurred a deficit of about $843,000 for the first quarter of this year, which compared with a deficit of nearly $3,000,000 in the same period in 1931. This relatively better showing was made possible by a reduction of $8,069,000 in operating expenses, which more than offset a decline of $6,422,000 in revenues.

"The decrease in operating expenses was due partly to wage reductions, but largely to further economies along other lines," he said. "The basis for the latter was laid in 1930 and 1931, when operating expenses were reduced $44,632,000, or 32 per cent.

The principal economies include consolidations of work, extensive reorganizations of divisions, shops, and offices, discontinuance of unremunerative passenger and freight trains and stations, abandonment of unprofitable branch lines, extensive force reductions, savings in plant maintenance, and improvements in fuel consumption.

"The Illinois Central is in good physical condition. The drastic economies have been made with no impairment of the property or of operating efficiency. With expenses trimmed to the lowest point in years, the company is in position to reap the full benefits of the revival of business when it comes.

"Efforts to meet the competition of highway and waterway carriers are bearing fruit. They are helpful but I believe the competitive problem will not be satisfactorily solved until a semblance of equality is established between the different forms of transportation and until each agency of transportation is made to stand on its own feet and to pay its own way, as the railroads must do."

Sargent Tells of Work.

Mr. Sargent said the Chicago and North Western had net operating income of about $200,000 in March, compared with $181,000 in February and $831,000 in March, 1931. Gross revenues last month were about $6,450,000, against $6,025,000 in February and $7,891,000 in March, 1931. He said the most hopeful factor was the fine condition of the soil for seeding, it having been begun in a large part of the road's territory. On present prospects, he asserted, there should be a better-than-average winter wheat and rye crop, compared with no crop at all last year.

Mr. Pelley asserted that the New Haven established new records in operating efficiency last year, although freight traffic was the lowest since 1915 and passenger traffic the smallest since 1906.

"The New Haven's gross revenue in 1928 was about $138,000,000," he recalled. "Since that time many economies and changes have been effected, with the result that we do not need a return of 1928 traffic in order to show satisfactory net income. To illustrate, the addition of only $10,000,000 of revenues last year would have resulted in a net income, after charges, of more than $16,000,000 instead of $9,180,000 as reported."

Mr. Pelley said no preferred dividends would be paid unless they are earned. The stockholders authorized issuance of not to exceed $50,000,000 in new securities, although no financing is contemplated at present.

TAXES CONFISCATING WORKERS' EARNINGS, WILLIAMSON ASSERTS

New York, April 20.—(AP)—What the country needs, in the opinion of Frederick E. Williamson, president of the New York Central lines, is a drastic reduction of taxes and "relief from governmental meddling with its citizens and with their lawful business pursuits."

The railway executive expressed his views in a radio address this evening, under the auspices of the American Taxpayers' league. The existing tax burden, he declared, "has a strangle hold upon agriculture and industry and is actually confiscating the savings and the earnings of the home owner and the warge earner."

"If we are to have sound and lasting prosperity in this country," he said, "the government must stop looking for new places to spend more money, and to levy new additional taxes.

"The government must reduce expenses, and by this I do not mean merely reducing salaries of government officers and employés. I mean that the only practical way to reduce government expenses is to curtail government activities."

Tells Situation of Large Risk Concerns Now

BY SCRUTATOR.

In other years when the field representatives flocked in to the annual meeting of a life insurance company they were interested in other things than the investment practices of their company.

This year they have been more curious. Policyholders back home have been asking how the company is weathering the heavy seas of depression. Requests for information have been relayed to company officers by the salesmen, and many of the leading addresses at this year's company meetings have been on investments. The results have been reassuring to both salesmen and policyholders.

The liabilities of a life insurance company are deferred liabilities. For that reason a company can have a sizeable proportion of its assets invested in securities which are non-liquid, provided, of course, they are sound and continue to pay interest.

The persistent increase in the amount of loans to policyholders has been the chief problem of life insurance companies during the last year. So much money has been diverted to that channel that, according to recent estimates, loans to policyholders now average about 25 per cent of the par value of assets.

In Liquid Form.

These demands for cash have forced companies to keep more than their customary proportion of assets in liquid form. They have also prevented the investment of new money in mortgages and other nonliquid investments.

Analysis of the reports of a number of the leading life insurance companies leads to several general conclusions: 1. That the proportion of nonliquid assets is not dangerously large even though the demand for cash loans to policyholders should continue at the rate of the last few months. 2. That although market prices of many investments have declined during the last nine months income has not materially decreased. 3. That whatever might happen to business in general would affect life insurance companies last and least.

Here are some remarks from a spech by an officer of one of the nation's largest companies at a meeting of the company's agents. He states that his company started this year with more than $15,000,000 in the bank, $43,500,000 in government bonds, and investments of one billion 100 million in other securities.

"Let us now, for the sake of argument, assume that the drain upon our cash this year, due to increased demands for policy loans and the payment of surrender values, will grow enormously in volume," he says.

Would Augment Cash.

"Our first reaction would be to stop making weekly investments in mortgages and securities, thereby augmenting our cash on a conservative estimate by about $3,000,000 per week or $165,000,000 per year.

"Our second reaction would be to sell our government holdings and in addition at least $50,000,000 of other prime securities, thereby making available extra cash to supplement our regular income over a twelve-month period of at least $250,000,000."

At the beginning of 1932 this company held more than 5,000 properties acquired through foreclosure for a sum of $30,715,000; but this was only 2½ per cent of its total investment in mortgage loans. Of the company's total investment of $126,000,000 in the obligations of states, counties and municipalities less than 1¼ per cent were in default at the beginning of this year. Of the $102,000,000 invested in Canadian government bonds and municipals none were in default. The same was true of $2,500,000 invested in the bonds of Florida counties and cities.

This company had $330,000,000 in bonds and preferred stocks of public utilities, less than two-tenths of one per cent of which were in default. Of $396,000,000 in bonds, preferred and guaranted stocks and equipment trust certificates of railroads less than 1.6 per cent were in default. A total of $142,000,000 was invested in bonds and preferred stocks of miscellaneous industrial enterprises, less than seven-tenths of one per cent being in default. No common stocks were held.

Figures vary with different companies, but those given above are presented because they offer a pretty fair idea of the effect of the depression on big life insurance companies.

Combined figures for 52 legal reserve life insurance companies in the United States show that only six-tenths of one per cent of assets were invested in common stocks at the close of last year. Only about 2 per cent of assets were invested in Canadian government bonds. All other foreign government bonds held totaled only one-fifth of one per cent.

Warns Amoskeag Company It Must Balance Budget

Manchester, N. H., April 20.—(AP)—Frederick C. Dumaine, treasurer of the Amoskeag Manufacturing company, told the stockholders today that the time had come for the company to "pause, survey, and balance the budget." He reported the financial loss for 1931 as $782,667. "In view of the textile situation in New England your mill must be in a position to run without further loss, if it is to run at all," Dumaine said.

He added that were sufficient business at the moment to provide work for 6,000 people, but at prices so low it cannot be undertaken at present wages without a loss to the company. He said that at lower wages the business could be taken.

Railway Express Agency Asks Truck Line Authority

The Railway Express agency has filed application with the Illinois commerce commission for certificate of necessity and convenience to operate as a motor carrier for freight transport between any and all points within the corporate limits of Chicago. The agency will also apply for certificates to operate trucking service between this city and South Bend, Ind., and Milwaukee, Wis.

Our Steel Industry Shows Fifty Year Growth—Arrested Only In Depressions

COAL TONNAGE DECLINE HITS C. & E. I. EARNINGS

The drastic decline in the tonnage of bituminous coal handled during 1931 and the general conditions prevailing during the year resulted in a sharp decline in revenue for the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railway, the annual report discloses.

The report, issued last night by President C. T. O'Neal, shows total operating revenues of $15,135,960, as compared with $19,533,596 in the preceding year. Despite the decline in gross revenues, however, the road was able to reduce its net operating deficit to $1,700,500 from $5,505,968 in 1930. This was due to a reduction in operating expenses of nearly 39 per cent, while the drop in revenues was only 23 per cent.

The final deficit after all charges for 1931 was $3,957,539, against $7,549,263 in the previous year. Surplus deficit at the close of the year stood at $10,658,552, as compared with $6,723,115 a year earlier.

The decline in coal tonnage was due to the extremely mild winter coupled with the adverse business conditions, President O'Neal said. Trucking operations also deprived the road of tonnage to points in the vicinity of the mines, he stated.

FRANCE AGAIN CURBS IMPORTS; SOX THIS TIME

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, April 20.—Another import quota materially affecting American exports to France of cotton and artificial silk socks and stocking was announced today in an official government decree.

Imports of cotton socks, which come chiefly from the United States, are limited between March 30 and June 30 to 83,000 dozen pairs.

Of this total 39,000 dozen pairs are assigned to Germany, 20,000 dozen to Italy and 20,000 dozen are divided among Japan, Spain and Czecho-Slovakia. The United States figures under the heading "other countries," to which he allotted a total of 2,096 dozen pairs.

American officials are not yet informed as to how much of this quota they are permitted to export under this figure, but it is evident that their sales in France will be reduced to a minimum, it is said in official quarters.

In a report to President Doumer, who signed the decree, Premier Tardieu, Minister of Commerce Rollin and Finance Minister Flandin declared the new quotas necessary to protect French industry.

DRY ICE MERGER LINKS EASTERN PEORIA PLANTS

Amalgamation of the Solid Carbonic company and the Dry Ice corporation of America, two of the pioneer manufacturers and distributors of solidified carbon dioxide, popularly known as dry ice, has been announced. The combination has manufacturing plants at Niagara Falls, New York, Deepwater Pond, N. J., and Peoria, Ill.

The certificate of incorporation of Dry Ice Corporation of America is to be amended so as to provide for an authorized capital of 150,000 shares of a par value of $5 each. Of these, 134,516 shares are to be presently issued in exchange for outstanding stock of Dry Ice Holding corporation and the Solid Carbonic company, Ltd., leaving the balance available for future needs of the company.

Copper, 6c Per Pound, Available for Export

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 20.—Copper was available again today for export at 6 cents a pound, the historic low, after showing a tendency toward firmness at the beginning of the week. The exports were made under the special rule of Copper Exporters, Inc., for a limited tonnage. There was no great response to the reduction and only 500,000 pounds were taken early in the day. The domestic market continued in a rut with metal available at 5¾c a pound.

Fed. Water Service Corp. Ousts Tri-Utilities Men

New York, April 20.—At successive meeting of class A and class B stockholders of the Federal Water Service corporation today new directors were selected. All representatives of the Tri-Utilities corporation were eliminated from the board.

Stone and Webster to Pay 50c Yearly on Their Stock

New York, April 20.—(AP)—Stone & Webster, Inc., today declared a quarterly dividend of 12½ cents on the capital stock, placing it on a 50 cent annual basis, compared with $1 previously. The dividend is payable May 16 to stock of record May 2.

PULL BEER STOPPERS, OPEN TWO FACTORIES, GLASS MAGNATE SAYS

Toledo, O., April 20.—(AP)—Two of the plants of the Owens-Illinois Glass company, located at Newark, O., and Evansville, Ind., although now idle, "have been maintained in good condition, ready for operation upon short notice if beer is legalized," President William E. Levis announced in his annual report to stockholders today.

"Your company is following with greatest interest the marked trend of national sentiment toward liberalizing prohibition legislation," he declared. "The return of beer of moderate alcoholic content would greatly increase bottle sales and your company's earnings."

Directors today declared the regular dividend of 50 cents a share on common stock, payable May 15 to holders of record April 29, and the quarterly distribution of $1.50 a share to preferred stock on July 1. This means a total distribution of $581,086 for the quarter.

President Levis announced that net earnings for the year ended March 31 were $2,508,276, or equal to $2.20 a share after preferred dividend requirements, as compared with $2,620,111, or $2.32 a share, for the corresponding period a year ago.

EDISON STRONG AGAIN IN TRADE ON MARKET HERE

Further strength in Commonwealth Edison shares was the outstanding feature of yesterday's extremely dull trading period on the Chicago exchange. The 26,000 share turnover represented the lowest ebb of speculative activity here in several weeks.

While Edison moved forward again and closed just a point short of 70 other Insull issues were in the doldrums. Trading in Middle West common was the smallest in recent years with less than 1,900 shares appearing on the tape at prices ranging from 37½ to 50 cents a share.

The preferred stock was unchanged at 3 as announcement was made of the organization of a protective committee for the holders of this issue. The committee is composed of C. Frederick Childs, chairman; Robert Stevenson, secretary, and Rawleigh Warner. Harris Trust and Savings bank and the Guaranty Trust Company of New York have been designated as depositories.

Changes elsewhere in the list were nominal in most cases. However, a trade in Associated Telephone and Telegraph A was made at 12, compared with the last pervious price of 32¼.

Electric Power Output Advances Over Last Week

New York, April 20.—(AP)—Electric Power production in the United States last week showed a gain of more than 15,000,000 kilowatt hours over the previous week. Output was 9.8 per cent under the same period of 1931, but the comparison with last year was the best since the week ended March 19 when the percentage of decrase was 8.6.

Public Utility interests point out that the electric power and light industry stands to benefit substantially from even a modest recovery in business, due to the large number of industrial power users who have changed from steam to electricity during the last year.

National Biscuit Earnings Net 60c on the Common

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 20.—The National Biscuit company announced today net income equal to 60 cents a share on the common stock for the March quarter and also declared the regular quarterly dividend of 70 cents a share on that issue. Earnings for the initial 1932 period amounted to $4,219,985 after charges and taxes, compared with $4,840,670, or 70 cents a share, on the common stock for the corresponding quarter of last year.

Common dividend is payable Aug. 15 to shareholders of record July 17 and the preferred dividend May 31 to holders of record May 13.

Public Service of N. J. Has Larger March Income

Public Service company of New Jersey reported March net income of $2,229,488, as compared with $2,187,577 in the corresponding month last year. This gain of $41,911 was made in the face of a decrease in gross earnings amounting to $606,000, the total being $10,798,557, against $11,404,557. For the twelve months ended March 31, net income available for dividends and surplus was $30,715,564, against $30,675,927 for the previous twelve months, an increase of $39,637. Gross totaled $135,202,427, as compared with $138,527,233, down $3,324,806.

RAILWAYS CITE REVENUE LOSS IN GRAIN CASE

Mention Waterways, Trucks as Rivals.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Railroad officials, agricultural interests and shippers once again resumed their long drawn out fight over western freight rates for grain and grain products. New hearing on that subject was opened yesterday by Examiners Arthur R. Mackley and George J. Hall of the interstate commerce commission at the Sherman hotel.

That the hearing, which may last about three weeks, may be a lively one was indicated by a number of clashes between the railroad and agricultural groups. The railroads are seeking to justify their position that existing rates be allowed to stand through presentation of evidence depicting their serious financial plight, while the agricultural group is holding up for consideration the economic woes of the farmers.

Clashes With Ex-Governor.

Following a tilt at the opening of the session in the morning between former Gov. Clyde Reed of Kansas, representing the grain growers, and A. B. Enoch, who is presenting the roads' case, a lively clash occurred just before adjournment in the afternoon. Mr. Reed was cross-examining L. C. Fritch, vice president of the Rock Island. Mr. Fritch was the last of the three railroad men to testify.

Mr. Reed objected to testimony offered by Mr. Fritch showing a drop in revenues of the western lines, while fixed charges remained about the same. He asked Mr. Fritch:

"Is it not true that for several years the roads have been making heavy capital expenditures in the face of decreasing traffic, which may partly account for the fixed charges?"

L. E. Wettling, manager of the statistical bureau of the western lines, opened the proceedings with a long exhibit in which he showed the constant downward movement of earnings.

He pointed out that in 1926 the western roads had a 4.30 per cent return on their investment, whereas in 1931 the rate of return had dropped to 1.83 per cent.

Illustrating how other forms of transportation had cut into the railroads, he stated that the average monthly volume of freight carried on the Mississippi river in 1919 was 8,731 tons. In 1922 that had increased to 49,841 tons, in 1928 it was 119,630 tons, and even in the depression year of 1931 it was 97,598 tons. However, in January, 1932, the volume carried on the river was 130,807 tons.

Cites Panama Canal, Too.

The witness took up the business lost through intercoastal shipping traveling by way of the Panama canal, stating that in 1920 the volume of freight so carried amounted to 1,246,198 tons. In 1927 the volume was 10,862,402 tons, while in 1931 it was 8,805,375 tons.

Mr. Wettling pointed out that the average number of freight cars moved annually for the period 1925-'29 was 52,075,319 cars, while in 1931 only 37,160,314 cars. He further emphasized the straits in which the roads now find themselves by citing the reduction of number of employés from 1,805,780 workers in 1926 to 1,278,175 in 1931.

He told of the funded obligations maturing in the next few years. In round numbers these maturities are $86,000,000 for 1932; $145,000,000 in 1933; $192,000,000 in 1934; $96,000,000 in 1935, and $199,000,000 in 1936.

Mr. Wettling was followed by J. A. Brown, vice president of the Missouri Pacific in charge of traffic. Mr. Brown told of the loss to the railroads resulting from motor trucks, citing figures with regards to his own road as being representative of the roads operating in the southwest.

Upsets Commission Ruling.

The present hearing resulted from the decision of the United States Supreme court affirming the railroad protest against the new grain rates ordered by the interstate commerce commission and put into effect Aug. 1, 1931. The Supreme court agreed with the roads' contention that existing economic conditions had not been taken into account in fixing the new rates and ordered that present conditions be taken cognisance of in a hearing.

Fixing of the lower rates to which the roads objected followed hearings which opened about six years ago after the Hoch-Smith resolution had ordered a general investigation of all freight rates. The roads contended that lowering the rates would lose them many millions of dollars of revenues which they badly needed.

Two Receivers Named for United Public Service

Jersey City, N. J., April 20.—(AP)—John Milton of Jersey City and Hurst F. Broom of Montclair were appointed co-receivers of the United Public Service company, a utilities holding concern affiliated with the Insull interests. The action was taken by Vice Chancellor John Fallon tonight. Howard J. Umland of Brooklyn, N. Y., a stockholder, petitioned for the receivership on the ground that interest had been defaulted.

Six Billions for "Relief Trust," Witherow Idea

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 20.—(AP)—A six billion dollar national investment trust to stabilize business and aid relief work was suggested today by W. P. Witherow, former vice president of the Republic Steel corporation.

The plan provides for the formation of a trust to purchase securities of basic industries and to distribute the dividends and profits of a rising market to buyers of the stock and recognized relief and welfare organizations.

Talks with Hoover.

Witherow recently conferred with President Hoover and other government officials. He urged a national conference to consider the plan.

Although Witherow does not suggest that the government guarantee the securities of the proposed investment trust, he proposes that the government sponsor it. Witherow's own outline of the plan is:

"Institute a nationwide investment trust, in whose portfolio will be the highest grade securities, representing the fundamental basic industries which are the backbone of the United States. These securities can be purchased at prices which will return to the investor, with almost certain safety, from 8 to 20 per cent of the quoted prices.

"Issue against this investment trust, collateral debentures, bearing interest at the rate of 4 per cent.

Provides for Stock, Too.

"Provide for an issue of class A and class B stock of twice the amount of the debentures. For each debenture the buyer will receive one share of the class B stock. The class A stock, which represents a one-half interest in the equities of those basic industries of this country, will be set up as an endowment fund to care for relief."

The setup of the trust would provide for the incorporation of the prosperity-relief corporation and the issuance of two billion dollars in 10 year, 4 per cent debentures, two billion dollars in class A stock and a like amount of class B stock.

Purchasers of the debentures would receive equal value in class B stock and the class A stock would be allocated to relief organizations as a permanent endowment fund.

Offers Dividend Plan.

During the emergency, the plan suggests, class B stock would receive no dividends, but later both classes would share alike in the dividends.

The Witherow plan assumes that 10 per cent would be an expected return on the investments. On that assumption, the buyer of stock would receive a fixed return of 4 per cent plus one-half interest in the profit of the stocks on a rising market.

BRITAIN TO CURB CREDIT FOR TRADE WITH RUSSIANS

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 20.—The brakes are to be put on grants of British government credits on British exports to Russia and strong representations have been made concerning the balance of trade between the two countries.

Lord Snowden made this declaration to the house of lords tonight, replying to criticisms concerning the Anglo-Russian commercial policy. The government has decided not to give guarantees of further credits with Russia for more than 12 months without attaching more stringent conditions, Snowden announced, admitting that "the government is quite alive to the fact that a certain amount of risk is involved in the very heavy credits arising out of transactions with a government of the nature of the soviet government."

TREASURY BILLS FOR $50,000,000 ARE UP FOR SALE

Announcement was made through the Chicago Federal Reserve bank here yesterday of the offering of about 50 million dollar 91 day treasury bills, bids for which will be received at the reserve banks or their branches up to 3 o'clock, eastern standard time, Monday, April 25.

The bills will be dated April 27 and will mature July 27, 1932. No offer for less than $1,000 will be considered.

The notes will be exempt from state and federal taxation, and they will be without interest, that item being taken care of by the fact that they will be sold at less than face value.

CANADIAN TRADE MINISTER TURNS ON POOL CRITICS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., April 20.—It was declared today that Canadian wheat pool members still have faith in their coöperative organization and are shipping "a large portion" of their grain through pool elevators. Harry Stevens, Canada's minister of trade, so asserted in reply to articles which his statement says were published in Chicago and elsewhere to the effect that Canadian wheat pools had accomplished the "ruin of Canada wheat farmers" who were threatening to "strike against taxation and talking secession."

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 20.—There was mighty little to get excited about in today's dealings on the New York Stock exchange.

Railroad shares ranged a little higher, leading industrials sagged to still lower levels, and the vast majority of secondary issues did little more than mark time. Time dragged heavily with brokers and customers alike. Turnover was around a million shares—about the same as that of yesterday.

In brokerage house circles the opinion was widely expressed that the market having apparently pretty well completed the more necessitous liquidation overhanging it, is in for a more or less protracted period of extreme dullness, unless there is an explosion of fireworks from some unforeseen quarter to jar it out of its lethargy.

Await Steel Board Session.

Certainly observers cannot see any chance of much progress in either direction until after the highly important dividend meeting of the United States Steel corporation's board next Tuesday. The opinion prevails that the meeting will result in the year's premier omission. Such a contingency has been pretty thoroughly discounted by the steady selling in both the common and preferred shares of the Steel corporation for the last week, however. There are those who are unable to see how the anticipated announcement can have much material effect on the market as a whole.

There has been such a monotonously long string of new market lows for U. S. Steel common that the daily recording of a fresh one has ceased to become news.

Several Rails Advance.

As for the improvement in the carrier shares, observers found nothing to account for it beyond the feeling in many well informed quarters that the decline in that department has been carried far enough. Atchison rose more than 2 points on the day's dealings and advances of from a sizeable fraction to 2 points were scored by New York Central, New Haven, Union Pacific and others. Central of New Jersey jumped 10 points on a single sale.

Public utility stocks in the main were better, but there were exceptions. One of them was American Telephone, which was again under pressure. Uncertainty over the company's dividend was talked up as the price sold down. The new bottom was the lowest since 1921. Peoples Gas, Electric Power and Light, Public Service of New Jersey, Consolidated Gas, and others made fractional gains.

Gillette Safety Off.

Gillette Safety Razor was taken for a ride following publication of its report for the March quarter. The statement showed net of $1,719,049 after charges and taxes and made a pretty fair showing in comparison with the actual net of $1,421,770 for the first quarter of last year.

Recent gains in wheat and the government's predictions of a further 10 per cent increase in this most speculative of all markets are not helping the farm implement shares. Case Threshing Machine dropped to 23¾ points in the late afternoon trading, the lowest price it has touched since 1925. The preferred dipped some 4½ points to a new low since 1922.

On the face of one widely accepted set of "averages," the run of industrial stocks were selling at the close of today's market at the lowest levels since 1915.

CALL FOR BONDS OF MELWAY AND GEORGIAN FLATS

Trust Plan Fails; Turn to Committee.

If you have a defaulted real estate bond and haven't been able to get the desired information regarding it from the bondholders' protective committee or from other sources, The Tribune may be of assistance to you. Write to "The Tribune Real Estate Bond Service, Chicago Tribune." Don't ask for information regarding more than one issue at a time. Give name of underwriter and full title of the bond. Inquiries must be accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope for personal reply.

BY AL CHASE.

Bondholders of the Melway apartments, at 617 Melrose avenue and the Georgian apartments, at 537 Deming place, yesterday were asked by the protective committee for the Straus Brothers Investment company issues to deposit their securities with the Phillip State Bank and Trust company. Barnet L. Rosset is chairman of the committee. The other members are: Charles J. Young, A. S. Graven, Earle G. Krumrine, and Charles B. Lawton.

Bondholders of both these issues previously had deposited their securities for reorganization under a trust plan submitted by the house of issue, the Straus Brothers Investment company. Owing to the steady decline in the renting market, trustees of the plan declared it impossible to operate under the original plan and asked the protective committee to assume jurisdiction in order to protect the interests of the bondowners.

Trustee in Possession.

The Melway apartments issue originally was for $162,500, but has since been reduced to $139,500. The building is three stories and contains forty-two unfurnished suites. There are eighteen twos, the same number of threes and six four room flats. Foreclosure proceedings were filed on Jan. 30, 1931. Herman S. Strauss, trustee, is in possession.

The Georgian apartment building contains seventy-two small furnished suites. It was originally financed by means of a $265,000 bond issue which has been paid down to $253,000. Foreclosure proceedings were instituted on Jan. 6, 1931. The trustee, Herman S. Strauss, is in possession of the property.

Distribution of voting trust certificates representing participation in the ownership of the reorganized 250 Beacon Street building, Boston, to depositing bondholders has been started by the American Bond and Mortgage company bondholders' protective committee, it was announced yesterday by Craig B. Hazlewood, chairman. Reorganization of the property has been completed by the committee without the aid of outside financing. Earnings were used to discharge the debts and expenses incurred in foreclosure and reorganization. The Chicago area is a heavy holder of these bonds.

Beacon Street Building.

The ten story building, erected on Beacon hill in 1926, was financed by a $500,000 bond issue. At the time of the default it was reduced to $493,000. Of this amount, $458,000, or 93 per cent was on deposit when the reorganization became effective. Each depositor is receiving, for each $100 bond plus interest of $12, voting trust certificates representing eleven shares of common stock in the 250 Beacon Street company, which was organized by the committee to acquire and hold title to the property.

To insure satisfactory management of the building under a unified plan of administration and to provide for the liquidation in the event satisfactory disposition can be arranged, the committee has placed the control of the stock in the company in a voting trust composed of Mr. Hazlewood, Herbert K. Hallett of Boston, and F. G. Curry of New York City.

Gillette Razor Co. First Quarter Income Higher

Net profit of $1,714,049 after interest, depreciation and taxes was reported by the Gillette Safety Razor company for the quarter ended March 31, 1932. This compares with a net profit of $1,421,770 after interest, depreciation, taxes, and $600,000 special reserve for obsolescence in the first quarter of 1931.

CRUCIBLE STEEL OFFICIAL SEES BETTER BUSINESS

Says Underlying Conditions Are Improving.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 20.—Reports received from all sections of the country show that many of the underlying conditions are improving, according to Horace S. Wilkinson, chairman of Crucible Steel company of America, at the annual meeting of stockholders today. Mr. Wilkinson said he was confident that it would be only a matter of time until this would be true in the crucible steel industry.

"The incoming orders upon which present operations of the company are based are at the rate of about 21 per cent of normal capacity," he continued, "while up to the present this depression has lasted longer than has ever been experienced by the company in this industry before, still I am confident that the steel and tool steel business will return and give a good account of itself.

Preferred Payments.

"Stockholders will observe from the last annual report that the preferred dividends were not being earned, but have been paid out of surplus. However, there is no occasion for discussion of this matter at this time, as action will not come before the board until the regular meeting of May 18."

The record of stockholders showed that Mr. Wilkinson owns 161,492 shares of common, or 36 per cent of the outstanding issue, and 9,310 shares of preferred, being the largest single stockholder. The second largest holder was Shenango Furnace company of Pittsburgh with 44,260 shares of common.

OPERATIONS INCREASE

Operations for the week were at the rate of 22½ per cent of capacity, as compared with 21 per cent during the previous week, according to Iron Age. The improvement was attributed to the larger automobile specifications, the better demand for rails, and a gain in tinplate. Considerable importance was also attached to the resistance in finished steel prices which have held up despite the efforts of concession seekers. An unfavorable aspect, however, was the further decline in scrap prices which are ordinarily looked on as a reliable barometer.

Ford Orders Up.

"Automobile demand for steel is featured by a Ford purchase of sheets and strip steel, exclusive of body requirements, for 65,000 cars," the journal states. "This material, estimated at 10,000 tons, supplements 6,000 tons which was released for shipment to body builders a week ago. Owing to considerable stocks of bodies and parts on hand," the review continues, "the steel industry will not feel the full effects of Ford's increased production for another month or two. If, however, Ford assemblies reach a total of 100,000 in June, as is now expected, the steel mills will benefit from the Ford expansion at a time when they normally experience a decline."

90,883 TRAINS USE CHICAGO UNION STATION

A total of 90,883 trains moved in and out of the Chicago Union station last year, or an average of 249 trains a day. These trains were operated by the Burlington, Milwaukee, Pennsylvania, and Alton railroads, which control the Chicago Union Station company.

Gross income of the company was $3,648,631 and net income was $140,000, which was disbursed as a 5 per cent dividend on the $2,800,000 capital stock, which is distributed equally among the four railroads.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, April 20.—(AP)—Cotton goods were in light demand today in the finished goods field, an exception being in percales where business has been stirred up by the abandonment of a price agreement on printed percales. More inquiries and small sales were reported on unfinished lines. Burlaps were firmer on small sales. Wool goods continued unsettled by the recent price reductions by the American Woolen company. Rayon yarning has been lighter this week. Silk goods were quiet.

The hog market displayed a slightly improved tone yesterday and seemed better able to shoulder its growing burden of adverse factors. There were some signs of competition in the lightest weights on the pig order which suffered most on Tuesday's break. These came up 10@15c in value.

The general market was shoved ahead a notch, both the extreme top and general average showing 5c gain for the day at $4.20 and $3.80, respectively.

Toward the finish the trade turned sticky again and sellers immediately pulled about 6,000 hogs off the market in hopes of avoiding a setback.

Receipts during the first half of the week were largest since February, but show a decrease of more than 30 per cent in comparing with the corresponding three days in 1931 and 1930. Fresh pork loin prices have slipped down almost 2c per pound since last week's close and warmer weather has not done the market any good. Sellers are advising the country to load lightly. The trade anticipates a wider price range in the next few days, with discounts sharp in the poorer classes. Packers are planning a drive on unfinished stock. Since good grades became available at low prices, product from plainer kinds have been almost unsalable. Heavy packing sows selling at $2.65@3.00 are lowest on record, with the exception of 1896, when the inside price in the range went down to $2.40.

Light weight hogs for today's delivery were bid $4.20 on the " to arrive " market yesterday. May contracts were offered at $4.75@5.00, while June hogs were made available at $5.00. July and September light and medium weights were offered at $5.50@5.75. September heavy grades were available at $5.25.

Cattle Receipts Small.

Cattle receipts yesterday at 7,000 were smallest for mid-week in more than a month and sellers managed to drive prices slightly higher in practically all classes.

Most grades got good action on the mild upturn and toward the close gains of 25c frequently turned up. Better quality in the butcher stock division attracted buyers there and before the close fed heifers were moving freely at 25c advance.

The clearance in the cattle allevs was the earliest in some time. Toward the finish buyers were more anxious to bid, influenced probably by the light run of 5,000 posted for today. Almost 200 cattle averaging in loads from 1,026 lbs to 1,353 lbs topped the market at $8.00. Numerous loads of good to choice quality light steers sold at $6.75@7.50, while a range of $5.25@5.75 took many of the plainer classes carrying a good " kill." Only occasional lots of inferior kinds sold under $5.00.

Lambs Decline.

Buyers gained the advantage in the lamb market yesterday and broke prices fully 25c, despite the moderate supplies on hand at all places. Discouraging reports from the wholesale trade and rumors of a sharp break in country prices on the western coast were contributing factors to the decline. Packers obtained the bulk of aged wool lambs at $6.75@7.00, while city butchers and shippers paid up to $7.30. Poorer grades keenly felt the competition of Texas stock and some of these sold $1.00@2.00 under the recent high spot. Southwestern aged mutton sheep are also reported to be moving in greater volume.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 5,000 cattle, 19,000 hogs, and 11,000 sheep, against 5,705 cattle, 19,338 hogs, and 17,220 sheep the previous Thursday, and 9,382 cattle, 24,295 hogs, and 23,251 sheep a year ago.

$2.93 is the average Monthly Cost of a $225 loan under COMMONWEALTH'S Reduced Rate. This allows 25 months for repayment. There is no lower cost than this in Chicago.

THE personal property which nearly every family owns and the signatures of husband and wife enable one to secure any amount up to $300 quickly and easily.

NO FEES. You get full amount of the loan and up to 25 months to repay. Interest at the Reduced Rate is charged only while you keep the money.
